Thant Urges Mideast 'Breathing Spell' Try

Asks U.N. To Revive 'Presence'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Secretary General Thant today called for a "breathing spell" in the Middle East crisis and re-creation of the Egypt-Israel Mixed Armistice Commission as a "U.N. presence" to keep the peace.

"I greatly fear that a clash between the United Arab Republic and Israel over this issue, in the present circumstances, will inevitably set off a general conflict in the Near East," he said.

"The freedom of navigation through the Strait of Tiran (at the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba) is not, however, the only immediate issue which is endangering peace in the Near East. Other problems, such as sabotage and terrorist activities and rights of cultivation in disputed areas in the Demilitarized Zone between Israel and Syria, will, unless controlled, almost surely lead to future serious fighting.

"In my view, a peaceful outcome to the present crisis will depend upon a breathing spell which will allow tension to subside from its present explosive level. I therefore urge all parties to exercise special restraint, to forego belligerence and to avoid all other actions which could increase tension to

Bridge Hiring Bias Cover-Up Claimed

A fired Golden Gate Bridge painter asserted yesterday that a Painters Union official and James Adam, bridge general manager, used him to shield alleged job discrimination by span officials.

Jimmie Lee Wilkins, a Negro, said Harry Bigarani, secretary of Painters' District Council 8 in San Francisco, helped him get a job on the span to cover up bias against another painter, James Haugabook, who was refused a job.

Adam and Biagarani, also a San Francisco housing commissioner, denied the charges.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People charged the conspiracy included false testimony by Bigarani before the State Fair Employment Practice Commission.

When fired, Haugabook complained of racial prejudice by Adam to the FEPC. Before any hearing, however, Wilkins was hired as the bridge's first Negro painter.

Wilkins claimed his employment, arranged by Bigarani, was to deceive the FEPC into believing that Adam was not biased. Bigarani knew that he had had no experience as a bridge painter, Wilkins said.

At the hearing last March Haugabook, an experienced painter, said the hiring of the inexperienced Wilkins was evidence of discrimination against him.

Bigarani testified, however, that Wilkins worked for him in 1949 at a Pacific Gas and Electric station in San Francisco, performing work similar to bridge painting. Wilkins said yesterday he was a 15-year-old high school student in Tennessee in 1949.

Bigarani said yesterday that he testified to help Wilkins keep his job on the bridge and that Wilkins had claimed painting experience in the Navy.

Adam said he learned Wilkins was inexperienced two days after the hearing. The bridge manager said he had assumed, because of Bigarani's referral, that Wilkins was qualified.

Haugabook, rehired during the FEPC hearing, and Wilkins have since been fired for alleged incompetence. Both have complained to the FEPC.

Camping Facilities Open, But Muddy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Conditions might be soggy and muddy, but camping facilities are available at California's national forests during the Memorial Day weekend, according to the U.S. Forest Service.

Record snow and rain have left dirt roads muddy and possibly closed in some areas, the service said yesterday.

Bus Fleet May Avert Tam Jams

A special fleet of buses will shuttle 15,000 teen-agers a day up Mount Tamalpais next weekend for the two-day rock 'n' roll "happening" in the Mountain Theater, to prevent a massive traffic jam on the mountain.

Those who have bought the $2 tickets for the event will not be allowed into the amphitheater unless they leave their cars at parking lots at Tamalpais High School or the Civic Center and board buses furnished by Radio KFRC, sponsor of the event.

The buses will leave the lots every 10 minutes from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Ssturday and Sunday.

"All tickets have been sold and it will be no good any teenager taking his car onto the mountain in the hope of getting into the festival," said a KFRC spokesman.

Meanwhile, the threat of all-night illegal camping by youngsters under 18 remains. State park officials and law enforcement officers met yesterday with sponsors of the show to talk over strategy.

Caroline Christens Warship

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) —Sirens sounded, three huge letters J, F and K lighted up and Caroline Kennedy today christened a huge aircraft carrier the USS John F. Kennedy, named for her martyred father.

President Kennedy's 9-year-old daughter took two swings to smash a bottle of champagne over the bow of the huge carrier while her mother and 6-year-old brother looked on.

A few minutes earlier, President Johnson in a brief speech had expressed the hope that the years during which the ship will sail the seas "will be years of peace."

Champagne splashed over Caroline as the bottle broke on the second try. She smiled shyly.

Caroline got a roaring cheer as she smashed the bottle on the giant gray bow of the carrier, which towered overhead and stretched out the length of five city blocks.

Immediately after the christening, a 72-piece band struck up the Navy's "Anchors Aweigh," and the big ship was slowly pulled out of the dock and into the James River for another year of outfitting.

Both President Johnson and Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston, prayed that the mighty military ship would be a force for peace in the world.

Highways Jammed; Fear 750 May Die

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Thousands of winter- weary travelers are clogging the nation's highways today, bent on enjoying the Memorial Day weekend, the first warm-weather holiday of the year.

The National Safety Council feared that as many as 750 of them might never return.

A count at noon, PDT, showed that at least 100 persons had been killed in traffic accidents since 6 p.m. yesterday.

Many Marin Bills In Capitol Hopper

By WAT TAKESHITA

The County of Marin has no paid lobbyist in the State Capitol.

But County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, who scurries back and forth between the Marin Civic Center and Sacramento, is doing enough work in the Capitol to be dubbed the "unofficial lobbist for Marin."

He has about 20 items of county-sponsored legislation to push in Sacramento, along with dozens of others which he follows closely because of their effect on cities or the county.

The County Supervisors Association of California has a paid lobbyist to represent the interest of counties. Quite often, Maloney works in cooperation with him, but on strictly Marin bills, he works alone and sometimes at odds with the county supervisors association lobbyist.

For example, Marin is pushing AB-1337, under which the Marin County public defender may charge the state fees for representing parolees from San Quentin Prison. The County Supervisors Association is objecting because it wants the bill to apply to all counties, not just Marin.

Most of Marin's bills are drafted by Maloney and his deputies and introduced by Sen John F. McCarthy of Assemblyman William T. Bagley. The bills must go through the office of the State Legislative Counsel, which sometimes revises them. But most Marin legislation is so carefully drafted that it can be sent to the legislature with little or no change.

Maloney keeps in constant touch with the Marin legislators and often goes to Sacramento in person to argue for county legislation before Senate and Assembly committees.

He estimates he spends two and sometimes three days a week in the State Capitol. "We probably have more county bills

'DOUBLE FEATURE' MAGAZINE TODAY

Today's issue of the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine is a "double feature."

In addition to the regular weekend supplement, there is a special section, "The I-J Story." It tells about the new technology in newspaper publishing, and of how your Independent-Journal has adopted those techniques as part of its continuing expansion program.

Ex-Mayor Remembers Span Date

William L. Hughes, former mayor of Fairfax and one-time foreman of Marin County Grand Jury, has special reason to celebrate today's 30th anniversary of the Golden Gate Bridge opening.

For it was through the romantic old bridge that Hughes met and married his wife, Pat.

On this day, 30 years ago, Pat — then a girl of 12 — went to view the newly opened bridge and, like thousands of others, scrawled her name on the girders.

Two months later, Hughes, then aged 14, was walking across with a buddy. They stopped and looked at the names on the metal.

"My friend bet me a quarter that if I closed my eyes and pointed out a name, I wouldn't get a reply from a letter I wrote to that person," said Hughes at

Pedestrian Badly Hurt In Sausalito

Frank Dennis LaRue, 32, of 509 Brookline Avenue, Mill Valley, was in critical condition at Marin General Hospital today after being struck by a car in Sausalito last night.

LaRue underwent surgery last night for a severe head injury he received when struck at 7:45 p.m. on Gate 5 Road by a car driven by Peter Stewart Jr., 36, of Redwood City, Sausalito police reported.

Stewart, an employee at Ward Manufacturing, Inc., at 350 Gate 5 Road, told police he was blinded by the setting sun and did not see La Rue in the middle of the road.

LaRue works for California Stonecraft at 70 Gate 5 Road.

Marines Locked In Combat Near Da Nang Base

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Marines battled Communist troops on a mountain slope only 30 miles from Da Nang today and inflicted heavy casualties in one of a series of seven battles that has killed 516 Communists in two days.

In the air war U.S. pilots bombed two MIG jet bases and a pair of power plants in North Vietnam — one so near to Haiphong that an exploding Communist SAM missile fell and probably damaged an unidentified merchant ship in the Haiphong harbor.

The Communists shot down a Navy A4 Skyhawk, the 561st plane lost over Vietnam. Its pilot was listed as "missing in action." The Communists claimed four planes shot down. Two U.S. helicopters were lost in the South.

UPI Correspondent Robert C. Miller reported at least two battalions of the Marine's 5th Regiment (up to 3,000 men) battling for hours against a Communist force of the same size on the northern slopes of Lac Son Mountain 30 miles south of Da Nang.

It was another of the desperate battles against North Vietnamese who have infiltrated steadily into the south despite a series of clashes in the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) and along the borders of Laos and Cambodia, other favorite infiltration routes. This fight was taking place in the Marines' own backyard.

Reagan Spells Out Bigger Tax Bites

SACRAMENTO (AP) — First-term Gov. Ronald Reagan found himself today — less than five months after his inauguration—the author of a tax increase program totaling more than $1 billion.

Back in January, Reagan pledged that his Republican administration would turn to new taxes only if it "becomes clear that economies alone cannot balance the budget."

When Reagan's tax program was announced March 8, the figure had grown to $946 million.

And finally, yesterday the governor was forced to add another $128 million, primarily because faltering business wasn't bringing in the revenue the state's fiscal forecasters had expected.

To meet the new escalation of the state's financial crisis, Reagan proposed to:

Extend the sales tax repair services and the sales of gas and electricity for other than residential use, raising another $80 million.

Boost the insurance tax rate.

Cut the gift tax exemption from $4,000 to $3,000.

Impose a tax on real estate transfers, a federal tax which expires next Jan. 1.

Earlier, Reagan asked the legislature to raise the sales tax from 4 to 5 per cent; virtually double the amount collected by the state personal income tax, and to boost levies on liquor, cigarettes and banks and corporations.

His own bill has been stalled in committee, but an extraordinary committee-like hearing will be held in the Assembly Thursday on a similar, but even larger, tax program sponsored by Republican Assemblyman John G. Veneman.

Few legislators dispute the need for a tax increase in the vicinity of a billion dollars this year. The major argument so far has been whether or not state revenue collections should be speeded up by withholding income taxes from paychecks, such as the federal government does. Veneman's measure includes withholding.

Reagan has backed a sort of compromise — a two-part installment payment for higher tax bracket taxpayers.

A final settlement isn't expected until shortly before the start of the new fiscal year on July 1. Senators aren't inclined to decide on the tax program until the legislature has passed the budget bill, expected to run more than $5 billion, largest in the state's history.

Army Doctor Testifies Reluctantly

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — An Army doctor says he was reluctant to testify at the court-martial of Army Capt. Howard B. Levy because he possibly "might end up the goat."

Capt. Ernest Porter, an eye specialist at the Fort Jackson hospital, where Levy is a dermatologist, said he had heard "it was suggested that as a result of Dr. Mauer's testimony he's on his way to Vietnam."

Capt. Ivan Mauer testified as a prosecution witnses and said he would not train Special Forces medics if he knew they were primarily combat troops. But he said he was not convinced they were combat troops and had urged Levy to train them too. Mauer still is at Fort Jackson.

ANTI-WAR CHARGE

Levy, 30, of Brooklyn, N.Y., is charged with refusing to obey an order to train the medics and with making statements in opposition to the war in an attempt to urge enlisted men not to serve in Vietnam.

Porter, a Negro called as a defense witness yesterday, was asked if he would train Green Beret medics.

At first he declined to reply, saying he was fearful of incriminating himself. He eventually said he would continue to train the Green Beret medics. Although he did not let them use all of his special equipment because he felt they had "too little background to handle it."

WITNESS FEARFUL

Col. Earl V. Brown, law officer or judge at the court-martial, asked Porter, "Did you feel that coming over here would intimidate you?"

"By all means," repiled Porter emphatically.

"Don't you think the truth might benefit us all?" asked Brown.

"The truth might benefit us all," Porter said, "but I'm afraid I might end up the goat."

Brown said he asked Porter to telephone him later if he knew of any other persons afraid to testify because of possible intimidation.

Porter also said that orders with respect to the training of Special Forces medics had been revised since court-martial proceedings were begun against Levy several months ago.

Check Passing Charge Reduced

Gary E. Hammond, 34, of 109 Professional Center Parkway, San Rafael, yesterday pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor complaint of passing worthless checks.

Judge Hadden W. Roth dismissed a felony complaint on recommendation of Deputy Dist. Atty. Robert Birkie. He placed Hammond on a year's probation and ordered him to make restitution.

Hammond originally was accused of passing checks totaling $108.05 March 12 and April 9, both in 1966, with intent to defraud Cala Foods store in Corte Madera.

Sen. Eugene McAteer Dies; Lawmakers Pay Tributes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — State Sen. J. Eugene McAteer, whose brilliant nine-year legislative career stirred talk of his Democratic potential for governor, died yesterday of an apparent heart attack while playing handball at the Olympic Club.

McAteer was hospitalized five years ago with a heart attack.

The 51-year-old San Francisco Democrat, after playing for an hour with three friends, said "I feel faint" and slumped to the floor. Another player, Jeff Cappell, who had often gone hunting with McAteer, cradled the senator's head in his lap.

Two club physicians tried vainly to revive him and a priest administered last rites.

IN MAYOR RACE

The eloquent and personable senator, author of many enacted bills and chairman of the Governmental Efficiency Committee, recently entered the race for mayor of San Francisco against the incumbent, John F. Shelley. Political observers had said if McAteer won he would be a strong possibility for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1970.

Governor Ronald Reagan, a Republican, lauded McAteer as "an able senator and a man who had the best interest of his state at heart."

Former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, a Democrat, who was in office when McAteer was elected to the state Senate in 1958, said in Los Angeles "He was one of the strongest human beings I ever met."

Mayor Shelley, calling McAteer "a tremendous legislator," said:

"As everyone knows, Gene and I disagreed on some things recently but, in spite of the atmosphere caused by the fact that we were about to become contenders for the office of mayor, our friendship goes back over 30 years."

PIONEERED BILL

Senate President pro tem Hugh M. Burns, Fresno Democrat, praised McAteer, saying "he was a great help to me personally in the Senate."

One of the many bills he authored into law, providing medical and financial aid to innocent victims of crimes, was the first of its kind in the United States.

Other McAteer bills enacted:

Halted indiscriminate filling of San Francisco Bay.

Improved educational opportunities to children in slums.

Improved educational and home loan benefits for Vietnam veterans.

Improved programs for the mentally retarded.

McAteer had taken part yesterday morning in a Senate Education Committee hearing in Sacramento before coming to San Francisco. Handball was more than a pastime with him. He had national ranking and played in the National AAU doubles finals in 1957-59.

STAR ATHLETE

At the University of California, Berkeley, he was captain of the football team the year before his 1937 graduation.

After getting his law degree in 1941 at the University of San Francisco, he served with the Navy during World War II on destroyers and minesweepers, was wounded and decorated.

He began his political career in 1953 with his election to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors. He remained a supervisor until he entered the state Senate in 1958 by the largest vote ever given a senatorial candidate in San Francisco.

SAUSALITO RESTAURANT

McAteer owned a Fisherman's Wharf restaurant which he opened after World War II and also a restaurant in Sausalito (the Spinnaker).

He is survived by his widow, the former Frances M. Twohig, of San Francisco, and three sons, Thomas, Timothy and Terence. Timothy, like his father, starred in football. He played in the 1966 Rose Bowl game for UCLA.

McAteer's death reduces the Democratic margin in the Senate from 21-19 to 20-19. The vacancy will be filled in a special election.

The code authorizes the governor in his proclamation to set the date within three to six months. When that date is set, it will be for the general election. The primary would be held four weeks previously.

Bridge Board Backs Debt-Cancelling Bill

Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors yesterday voted 10 to 2 to support a state Senate bill which would cancel a $5 million bridge debt to the state.

The money was borrowed in the 1950s to widen the Waldo Grade approach. Under the original agreement, the debt was to have been paid back at 1½ per cent interest in 1971, after the bridge had paid off its original bonded indebtedness. Another bill before the Senate would require immediate repayment.

Blackout Disrupts Life In Downtown Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A power failure crippled downtown Cincinnati today, disrupting normal city activity and forcing three major department stores to close.

All power in a square-mile downtown area was shut down at 6:30 a.m. so repairs could be made to a cable failure that had touched off the power crisis at 11:35 p.m. yesterday.

Hotel and office building elevators were at a standstill. Essential electric facilities in restaurants and other business places were out.

Police reported numerous instances of looting and vandalism. Forty off-duty officers were called in for the emergency.

The first indication of trouble came with the short-circuiting of the 13,200 volt cable strung on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway bridge over the Ohio River, which also feeds power to Newport, Ky., at the southern end of the span.

A utility spokesman said the short-circuit caused a feed-back explosion to a generator in the company's West End plant, thus spreading the darkness.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — An unknown number of South Korean naval vessels engaged a 20-minute gun fight with North Korean shore batteries today across the armistice border off the west coast of Korea, military sources said.

It was not known whether either side suffered casualties or damages. It was the first gun battle between South Korean navy craft and Communist coastal batteries on the west coast since the 1953 armistice.

Death Probe Set

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — City and state investigations have been ordered to determine whether "violations or carelessness" were involved in the collapse of a building under demolition that claimed the life of an elderly man and injured three other motorists.

Thomas F. Fahey, 82, of Syracuse, was crushed fatally when a 70-foot-high wall of an abandoned theater collapsed yesterday, burying his automobile under a 10-foot pile of rubble.

New Lottery Try

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Two San Gabriel Valley men say they're going to try again to get a state lottery established.

'Love Book' Verdict: Guilty

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three persons were found guilty today of intent to sell obscene matter—a poem called "The Love Book."

The jury of 10 women and two men deliberated more than 10 hours before returning its verdict after the longest trial—five weeks—in San Francisco Municipal Court history.

First the jury concluded that the slim volume by Mrs. Lenore Kandel was obscene and then it decided the three book clerks knew it was obscene when they sold it—a misdemeanor.

Convicted were Jay Thelin, owner of the Psychedelic Shop in the hippie Haight-Ashbury District; Alan Cohen, a clerk in the shop, and Ronald Muszalski, a clerk for City Lights Book Store in San Francisco's North Beach section.

Jury foreman Edward N. Johnston said that not one of the jurors thought at any time that the poem had any redeeming social importance.

Riners had waited and worked for 17 years. Since 1950, when the outbreak of the Korean Conflict interrupted Riner's studies at San Francisco City College.

He first met his wife at the college, where she was a student, and they were married before he left for the war.

Seven years later, the couple attempted to return to school but an accident put Riner in a cast for a year just as he was set to go to the University of San Francisco.

Despite the setbacks and frustrations, the couple tried a third time. But fate was still to be unkind, and the Riners found themselves with big medical bills when one of the children fell sick.

They appealed to the county education authorities and were given a grant to enable them both to return to learning. Riner is at present studying sociology at Sonoma State and is due to graduate next year.

"We were lucky to get the grant," said Mrs. Riner, as the children grouped around her at their home at 219 Adobestone Court. "But we showed them we were determined to improve ourselves academically and wanted desperately to become assets to the community."

Mrs. Riner looked around at her household of children. "They are really wonderful children and without their help, all this would not have been possible," she said.

When they themsevles were not doing homework, Kathy 15, Valerie 14, Monica 12, and Gina, 10, busied themselves keeping their home spick-and-span and keeping brothers Steven 7, Kevin 6 and Timothy 4 out of mischief and away from the family television set.

"In a way they are all academiaclly oriented so they appreciated what we were doing," said Mrs. Riner.

Her husband broke in: "The mornings and the evenings had to be well organized. We had to arrange getting the kids to school and back again and getting there ourselves too."

Only little Timothy feels a little at a loss in the Riner home where everybody — just everybody — goes to school.

He has not yet started at kindergarten and, in his mother's absence, is looked after either by a sister or a babysitter.

Last night, on the eve of her longa-waited graduation, Mrs. Riner said quietly: "All my life I have wanted to return to college and I never once gave up hope . . . although there were moments."

Bolinas Revives Anti-Camping Try

Bolinas Community Inc., directors last night agreed to try again to get the county board of supervisors to pass an ordinance prohibiting overnight sleeping on Bolinas Beach.

President Thomas J. Barfield said today a similar move to get an ordinance last April died. Directors, also concerned with incidents of hooliganism on the beach, will request more frequent patrols from the sheriff and California Highway Patrol.

Car Radio Stolen

Birch Society Reports Fast Growth In Novato

The John Birch Society — rapidly expanding its membership throughout Marin — is experiencing its greatest growth in Novato, it was reported yesterday.

Mildred Sutton, volunteer worker at the society's American Opinion Library in Novato, reported that it has been necessary to split Novato's original chapter in two to accomodate newcomers.

Russell M. Willman, leader of one of the Novato chapters, said other chapters are functioning in San Rafael, Ross Valley and Southern Marin. Unlike the Novato groups, which meet at the society's American Opinion Library, the others have no chapter halls yet and meet in members' homes.

Willman said the Southern Marin Chapter Leader is William Gary Woodward of Larkspur. He declined to name other leaders, explaining that disclosure of membership is a personal matter.

The society's growing activity in Marin is indicated by its sponsorship of committees with special purposes.

One is the recently announced Support Your Local Police Committee, headed by Kenneth Leslie of Terra Linda, and two Greenbrae residents, Clifford A. Gerstner and Hugh Pessner.

No chairmen have been announced for the Truth About Civil Turmoil (TACT) committee, which has declared its objective to be demonstrating Communist control of "the so-called civil rights movement" and "exposing this fraud that is turning American against American."

Mrs. Sutton explained that the fission of the Novato chapter is to limit groups to eight or 10 persons "so we can have a book review, or discussion or see a home movie."

Mrs. Sutton said, "The society is out to teach people things. My husband and I have learned more in the last two years than ever before."

his home at 6 Fawn Ridge, Fairfax.

Hughes won his bet and won romance to boot. The two wrote to each other for years afterward. On Oct. 2, 1943 the couple were married and now are parents and grandparents.

Hughes served as mayor of Fairfax from 1950 to 1958 and headed the grand jury in 1960.

He commutes across the Golden Gate Bridge each day to his job as a brokerage partner with Kelley-Clarke Co., in San Francisco.

His wife's name has long been sandblasted off the steel girder but the romantic link has stood the test of time.

Boys Confess Unreported $1,000 Theft

Two Mill Valley teen-age boys have been cited for burglary of $1,000 from the home of Charles S. Giannini, 103 Valley Circle, Mill Valley police reported yesterday.

Both confessed to the burglary, police said. The burglary occurred May 22, but was not reported to the press during the investigation, police explained.

The boys, 15 and 16 years old, were aided by a 14-year-old boy who acted as look-out during the daylight burglary. He was not cited.

The money was in a metal cash box in a locked closet of the unlocked home, police said. No sign of forced entry into the closet could be found.

The two boys became suspects in the burglary when police received reports that they were showing off wads of $20 bills at Tamalpais High School. Approximately $400 has been recovered, police said, but most of the money was given to friends.

The boys were released to the custody of their parents.

In a statement to police, the 15-year-old confessed he "did a dumb mistake, and I'll never do it again. I'm sorry if I caused a lot of trouble to you guys."

Woman Dies Of Gunshot Near Ocean

A 30-year-old patient from an Oakland mental hospital shot and killed herself in a grove of trees near Muir Beach yesterday — the victim of what was to have been a suicide pact.

Sheriff's deputies said a woman companion, also a patient at the hospital, ran back to their car on Shoreline Highway after the shooting and flagged down a passing motorist.

Dead was Carla Batelaan, mother of a 5-year-old girl. Her husband and the child live in San Francisco. The survivor of the pact was Karen Grates, 22, of Alameda, mother of two children.

Deputies said notes found in the purses of the two women said they wanted to kill themselves because they thought they were "inadequate mothers."

According to Mrs. Grates, the two patients at Gladman Memorial Hospital in Oakland decided during the past week to kill themselves.

On Thursday they purchased a .22 caliber rifle in Oakland but exchanged it for a Winchester rifle when they thought it was not big enough.

Mrs. Batelan shot herself in the head ifrst. But Mrs. Grates, shocked by her friend's death, turned and fled back to the road. Last night, Mrs. Grates was taken to Napa State Hospital.

allow the (U.N. Security) Council to deal with the underlying causes of the present crisis and to seek solutions."

Suggesting other possible courses of action, Thant recalled he had referred to a report to the council last week on reinvigorating the Egypt-Israel Mixed Armistice Commission (EIMAC) which went out of operation when Israel denounced the 1949 armistice agreements during the brief 1956 Suez war.

(Egypt has indicated it would accept the EIMAC.)

"This form of U.N. presence could to some extent fill the vacuum left by the withdrawal of UNEF (the U.N. Emergency Force) which patrolled the Egyptian side of the border with Israel for 10 years . . .

"If UNEF had been deployed on both sides of the line as originally envisaged in pursuance of the General Assembly resolution," he said, "its buffer function would not necessarily have ended."

Thant also repeated his urging to Israel and Syria to resume participation in the Mixed Armistice Commission between their countries (ISMAC), dormant since its investigation of border incidents collapsed in February.

Israeli officials today were reported opposed to Western proposals for a United Nations solution to the Middle East crisis and braced for possibly the most fateful week in the nation's short history.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban was expected back tonight from his talks in Washington, Paris and London. He left the United States early today.

Informed sources said Eban probably had received nothing better than assurances that the West would try for a United Nations solution. And this Israeli officials considered futile.

Some of them branded this week's inconclusive Security Council meeting on the crisis as a "farce."

Eban himself was bitterly critical of the U.N. for withdrawing its peacekeeping forces from the Egyptian-Israeli border.

In the absence of diplomatic solutions, Israel was fully prepared for war and there were reports that Premier Levi Eshkol's government was under pressure to hit its Arab enemies hard before they are full organized.

Fire broke out last night in a television set on the second floor of the Emporium department store in the Northgate Shopping Center, Terra Linda, and spread to three other sets before a sprinkler system doused it.

Damage to the sets was estimated at $1,500, with water damage unknown. San Rafael firemen blamed the fire on a short circuit.

MOUNT TAMALPAIS CEMETERY

Quiet Beauty

for families of every faith

Ninety years ago, Marin pioneers set aside this lovely site as a final resting place for all faiths.

Since then, Mount Tamalpais has developed facilities to meet each family's preference. Here are lovely gardens, the Angeles Garden or Memory Chapel mausoleums for above-ground burial, Marin's modern new crematorium, and the Chapel of Light Columbarium.

If you haven't visited Mount Tamalpais, you are invited to see the beauty of its typically Marin setting. Our staff will be glad to answer your questions.

A Short Robe Doubles To Cover Your Bathing Suit

By EUNICE FARMER

May I continue with my little tips that I found so helpful in my trip, and I hope you can benefit from my experiences.

If you are staying in one of the older hotels in Europe as I did, you will find yourself needing a robe for that trip up and down the halls to the shower. Since most robes are quite heavy, I took a dark print in a short length, and it doubled beautifully as a beach cover up over my bathing suit. I saved taking one extra item in this way.

I didn't use an iron once for any of my clothes, even though a friend had kindly given me a travel iron with a plug to fit every possible voltage. I think the big secret was placing every dress in a separate plastic bag (the kind you get from the cleaners). This seemed to work much better than tissue paper or any other method I've tried. I also used the one large piece of luggage that permits your garments to hang on hangers. It was a cinch to hang up intact in any closet and saved much time packing and unpacking.

Next week we'll discuss the type of fabrics that pack the best and fit in best where there is a temperature range to be considered.

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

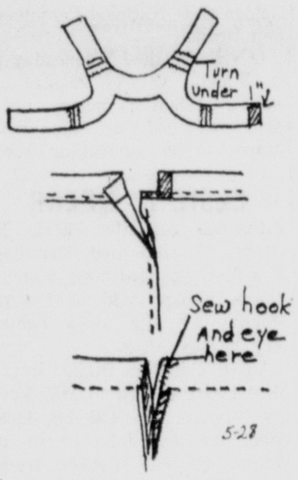
Finishing the back of the facing over the zipper seems to be the most difficult job I ever have to do. I just simply can't get this job done neatly. Can you help?

MRS. G.S.

DEAR MRS. G.S.:

I think you will find this method for finishing a lapped zipper works beautifully. However, you must follow each and every step accurately or you won't get the same results.

1. Turn in 1¼ inch on the left back facing and press. Attach facing to neck of garment.



2. Machine baste the center back seam closed up to the beginning of the facing, press this seam open. Follow instructions given on your zipper package, which includes setting zipper ¼ inch in from the seamline, for that lapped look which also conceals the zipper. Be sure the key of the zipper is at lease ½ inch below the seamline where the facing is attached to your garment.

From the right side of your garment, machine stitch or handpick the last step of the zipper. Turn your facing down, turning in the seam allowance on the right end of facing and slip stitch both ends of the facing to either side of the zipper tape. I think you'll love this method of finishing, it also looks so neat!

With all the spring formals and bridesmaids dresses coming up and the sheer tent style dresses in vogue, I thought this hemming trick I worked out would help others!

Carefully mark your hem even from the floor with a hem-marker. Cut the excess fabric ¼ inch below your hem and press the ¼ inch to the wrong side. Turn up slightly more than ⅛ inch from the fold and machine stitch. This fold will now be double. It should cover the cut edge and will make a nice even hem. (If any of you have struggled with turning a rolled hem, you will certainly find this method quicker, more accurate, and much more professional looking.)

Reporter Has Rare Chance To See Svetlana Stalin Close Up

By DANIEL JAMES
National Service

LOCUST VALLEY, N.Y. — What is Svetlana Alliluyeva really like?

Does she take after her famous father, the dreaded Russian dictator, Josef Stalin? Or is she really the charming person millions of Americans viewed on television after her dramatic arrival in this country?

This reporter has had a rare opportunity to see close up, in her own environment, the short, reddish blonde who is the most famous Soviet defector in history. She is as unlike her father as any child can be.

She is outgoing, friendly, and open — he was furtive, suspicious, and secretive. She is generous and kind — he was mean and cruel.

PEOPLE ADORE Svetlana. Not only her host, Stuart Johnson, who has kindly put his Long Island estate, "Kaintuck Farm," at her disposal, but everyone else around her.

The servants say, "she's no trouble at all," and, "she's a darling," because she is so considerate of them.

The boy at the post office in Mill Neck, where the 16-acre Johnson estate is located, is so mad for her that he came back twice for her signature to special delivery letters to keep as mementoes.

Even the police, who have the wearing job of guarding her day and night, have sought and obtained her autograph.

The Svetlana charm has apparently gotten through to those who haven't seen her, for she has been receiving marriage proposals by mail. One reads:

"Dear Miss Stalin.

"This is your first proposal of marriage from the healthy American male. Will you marry me?"

Judging by the considerable flow of mail she receives daily, Svetlana Alliluyeva has made a big hit with the American people. All but a tiny handful of letters frequently begin or end with some such phrase as this:

"I extend to you a warm welcome to our country." Or they say, refering to her forthcoming memoirs:

"I look forward to reading your book."

Many letters are of a religious nature, and come from people of various faiths. Some enclose religious tracts. They usually express the hope that her embrace of God is genuine or as one put it, that she will become "a great Christian."

The letter writers, and Americans in general, apparently do not realize that her very name has a religious connotation. Alliluyeva — her maternal grandfather's surname — means "Hallelujah."

WHAT DOES THE most famous defector from Soviet Russia do with her time? How does she keep busy?

Principally, writing and reading.

Her day usually begins before her host's, and she is busy in the study he has provided for her at the top of the stairs in his colonial home at a fairly early hour.

Answering mail occupies a great deal of her time. She tries to reply to each letter personally, especially such touching ones as that she received recently enclosing a rare photo of her deceased older brother, Yakov. Stalin's oldest child, Yakov, died a German captive during World War II.

Her most important activity is, of course, her professional writing. She works on this constantly.

At the moment, she is putting the finishing touches to the book to be published this October, which her host's daughter, Priscilla Johnson MacMillan, is presently translating.

Mrs. MacMillan is said to be doing her work apart from Svetlana in a specially rigged-up office in a local bank

Svetlana — nearly everyone around her uses her first name — is already planning a second book. That, she says, is to be "political."

Marin Women

SHE USUALLY lunches about 1 o'clock with Mr. Johnson and Priscilla MacMillan. When asked what she eats, she looks puzzled. "Why," she asks in turn, "is it so important to know what I eat and wear?" She cannot understand the interest in such personal details.

Food and amusement mean so little to her that, to date, she has patronized none of New York's restaurants or clubs, actually, she has visited the city only twice since her arrival on April 21 — once, to dine at the home of Alan U. Schwartz, the lawyer who is handling her business affairs, and a second time to shop.

She has turned down other social invitations, even from very prominent Americans, until she can get her bearings. They include invitations from such as Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, Sens. Jacob K. Javits and Robert F. Kennedy, and Mayor John Lindsay.

SHE IS AVID to learn all she can about America and Americans. In all probability, she will start making social contacts beyond her immediate circle and come out of her shell, once her literary commitments are fulfilled and she has collected herself.

For, unlike her father, who hated the United States and waged a bitter propaganda war against it most of his life, she loves this country. But it is still a question whether she will settle down here.

At the moment Svetlana's life is almost as confined as the one she lived with her father for many years. That is partly by choice and partly by circumstance.

She loves the outdoors and to take walks around the Johnson estate. But she rarely goes outside.

She does not wish to be stared at by curiosity-seekers and reporters and is inhibited by the presence of protective police. She also refuses to grant interviews to the press.

Her associates deny that the U.S. Government or the law firm handling her business is sealing her off from the public. Says Alan Schwartz:

"Svetlana calls the shots."

Though she has expressed a desire to meet American writers and intellectuals in particular — for she aspires to be a professional writer herself — she has so far made no effort to do so.

Her social contacts are restricted to Schwartz and his family, Edward S. Greenbaum, the senior partner of Schwartz's law firm, her host, Stuart Johnson and his daughter, Priscilla. The police and security men, and an English friend, Max Hayward, who is the translator of the Russian novel, "Dr. Zhivago," by Boris Pasternak, and so has special importance for Svetlana.

She reads few newspapers and doesn't seem to like television.

She did not know for days that the U.S. authorities feared harm might come to her when it was learned that one of Moscow's professional strong-arm men, Vasily Fedoróvich Sanko, had arrived in New York on April 20, the day before she did.

Suspicion immediately attached to Sanko because, in 1954, he tried to take back forcibly to Russia the wife of another Soviet defector, Vladimir Petrov.

Nor is she aware that several anonymous phone calls have been received at the Johnson house, some identified as persons with a "Russian accent."

Yet, for all her isolation, she seems content to deal with the world through books and correspondence as well as the small circle of friends and collaborators around her.

Her host, Stuart Johnson, possesses an excellent library on all sorts of subjects, and she is free to dip into it. On her reading list are works by such authors as James Joyce and Ernest Hemingway.

She has made clear publicly that she is by no means "soft" on communism, having suffered so many years under it. Quite the contrary: she is more knowledgeable on the subject than most of those who seem to be unduly concerned about her.

It is for that reason, as well as the fact that she is Stalin's only surviving child, that Svetlana Alliluyeva is an object of profound worry in the Kremlin just now. That, in turn, is of great concern to the country that has provided a haven for her.

MUSIC REVIEW

Olga Burns Brilliant At Piano

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Marin music lovers had the rare opportunity of hearing Sausalito's well known concert pianist Olga Jackson Burns last night in a recital at the Sausalito Women's Club that was marked by great technical brilliance.

Mrs. Burns' forte seems to be the romantic, both in the music of that period, such as that of Chopin, and in the general style of playing with its emphasis on rubato, strong dynamic contrasts and emotional fervor.

SHOWCASE NUMBER

Chopin's great B Flat Minor Sonata, Opus 35, was a showcase for scintillating technical prowess, as in the presto finale, and for a lovely cantabile tone. The latter was more evident in the lyric and elegaic part of the famed funeral march than anywhere else in the concert.

Of her interpretations of the three Brahms intermezzi — the E Major Opus 117, No. 1; B Flat Minor, Opus 117, No. 2; and C Major, Opus 118, No. 3 — the first, in E Major, was most appealing to us.

The Fantasie in C Minor by Bach, which opened the recital, was played in too romantic a style for our taste.

HANDLES PROKOFIEFF

Following intermission Mrs. Burns' program was even more a technical tour de force, revealing an extraordinary capacity, especially for a woman, for handling the percussion power, bold harmonics and aggressive rhythms of Prokofieff. This was in his enduring "Three Visions Fugitives," which created his early popularity, and in his Sonata No. 3 in A Minor, Opus 28.

A pyrotechnical exhibition of major proportion was Ravel's "Sonatine," followed, after one encore, by another briefer one, "Transcendental Etude No. 2 in F Mnior" by Liszt.

The encore was Chopin's lovely Valse in C Sharp Minor.

A very appreciative audience would have liked more, but it was enough after an exhausting program of this caliber.

WITCHERY IN LITTLE THEATER

Forum Recites Conflict Of Education, Home Rule

By DAVID DIETZ

The problems of local rule remain unsolved because education emphasizes the importance of big government, the Lake County administrator said yesterday during dedication ceremonies for Sonoma State's new college campus in Rohnert Park.

Richard Andrews of Lakeport made the remark duiring a forum on the future of the six-county North Bay region. Marin County was represented on the program's nine panel discussions by its five supervisors and educators and businessmen.

"There is plenty of instruction in colleges today on state and federal government, but not enough on the operation of local bodies," said Andrews, adding it was imperative that youth learn the importance of home rule.

"We're in a vacuum," he said of inter-government relations. "It's interesting to note that we could get only one federal representative at this forum. That's because they're too far away from the people."

Introduction of more courses on local government might help reduce citizen apathy, Andrews suggested. Such courses might be supplemented by intern programs with municipal officials, he said.

Joining Andrews was Albert P. Beltrami, Mendocino County administrator. He said local politics was skimmed over when he was working toward a masters degree in pubilc administration at the University of California at Berkeley.

The forum's host was slapped in two panel discussions when speakers objected to the site of the new campus off East Cotati Avenue.

"I'm disturbed that the college should be built on what appears to be prime agricultural land, rather than in the foothills nearby," Beltrami said. "If the state believes in the protection of good land, it seems to me it could have selected a better site."

Beltrami's concern was shared in panel on land use by Supervisor John Mayfield Jr., also of Mendocino County.

Sitting on the general discussion panel with Andrews and Beltrami was Marin Supervisor Peter H. Behr.

He urged the region to preserve its natural assets — notably Napa's vineyards and the beaches of Sonoma and Marin. Methods to fight water and air pollution should be sought at the same time, he said.

Behr criticized "spoilers" who, he said, believe a population explosion in Marin, Sonoma, Lake, Mendocino, Solano and Napa counties was inevitable. "I don't believe in that," he said.

A course which Behr hoped might be added to college curricula is "environmental ecology," teaching proper land use.

A panel on recreation included Ernest N. Kettenhofen, another Marin supervisor, who said government had no right to "regiment recreation" and that citizens should select facilities.

Airline officials told the group on transportation that the use of vertical landing craft in the Bay Area may come soon. It also was brought out according to Marin Supervisor Thomas T. Storer, that a state task force has been formed to study all forms of transportation.

Artist Keane Robbed

WOODSIDE (AP)—Two well-dressed men broke into the Woodside home of artist Walter Keane yesterday and robbed him of up to $35,400 in cash and an estimated $10,000 worth of his paintings, the San Mateo County Sheriff's Office reported.

Church To Split Into Three Synods

California may never be divided into two states, but the United Presbyterian Church has agreed to split it into three synods instead of one.

The present North Coastal Area of the church, including extending from the Oregon border to Monterey County, will become the Synod of the Golden Gate, a provisional title.

The other two synods will be the Synod of Southern California with Los Angeles headquarters and the Synod of the Sierras with Sacramento headquarters.

The change was approved by the church General Assembly meeting this week in Portland, Ore. The present Synod of California will meet in December or early next year to re-form into three.

Administration of the new Golden Gate synod will be substantially the same as that of the North Coastal Area, according to Rev. George F. Walker of Mill Valley, moderator of the Presbytery of the Redwoods, who attended the assembly.

The area-synod also includes the San Francisco and San Jose presbyteries.

Dr. J. Davis Illingworth, general Presbyter of the area, will probably continue as chief synod officer and the area administrative staff will remain basically the same, Walker said.

Area administrators will draw up tentative by-laws and a synod constitution for the December synod meeting, Walker said.

Counties included in the area-synod are Marin, Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino, Lake, Sonoma, Napa and part of Solano, all in Redwoods Presbytery; Alameda, Contra Costa, San Francisco and San Mateo in San Francisco Presbytery, and Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Monterey and San Benito in San Jose Presbytery.

Samaritans Are Staging Big Comeback

Samaritans are making a comeback.

A new survey made in this Jordanian city about 20 miles north of Jerusalem shows that from an all-time low of around 160 the community now is up to 345, with every prospect of increasing.

DISSIDENT SECT

They have been regarded by the Jews as a dissident Hebrew sect since Old Testament days. Christians have a particular interest in the Samaritans because they are the subject of Jesus' first parable.

High Priest Amram Isaac, a patriarchal figure in dark robes and flaming red turban, attributes the upturn to two factors: the ending of centuries of persecution, and new blood coming in through conversions of outsiders marrying into the communtiy.

The high priests's office goes back to the days of Moses. But he shows with pride the newly built white limestone temple and comfortable houses in the Samaritan quarter of Nablus as evidence of his people's new status as respected citizens of the Jordanian kingdom.

NEW SCHOOL

The world's oldest surviving Judaic sect also boasts a modern school, half-supported by the Samaritans, half by the Jordan government.

Amram also will display the Samaritan's most precious relic: the Abisha scroll of the first five books of the Bible, said to be the oldest known copy of the Pentateuch. Although the existing manuscript, on sheepskin, is said to be at least 2,000 years old, the original is dated in the 13th year of the occupation of Canaan by the Israelites 32 centuries ago.

In this ancient revision of the Bible, the Ten Commandments in Exodus are combined with those in Deuteronomy. They contain an extra commandment naming Mt. Gerizim, the holy mountain of the Samaritans, as the holy place of the Lord, instead of Jerusalem.

THE MOUNTAIN

As the Samaritan woman said to Jesus: "Our fathers worshipped in this mountain; and ye say, that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship."

Because of their belief, the Samaritans not only pray toward that mountain, which overlooks Nablus, but also celebrate their Passover there, in a setting of pastoral simplicity much as it must have been in the days of Moses.

Church Educator Will Be Speaker

Anelle Albritton of San Rafael, director of Christian Education for Marin Methodist Churches, will speak tomorrow to the adult inquirers class of the Novato Community Methodist Church.

Her topic will be: new church school curriculum for grades one through six.

Marinite Gets Youth Mission Job

Mrs. Vera Preston, 54 El Portal Drive, Greenbrae, has been selected one of six counselors to participate in the second annual Assemblies of God International Youth Witness, beginning June 28.

She will also aid Rev. Elmer Bueno of Hayward, the program's field director during her stay through August.

Her duties will include supervisiong youth from Northern California in the country where she is sent.

Mrs. Preston is a graduate of San Francisco State College and has been an elementary school teacher 15 years.

She is a member of the Novato Assembly of God Church. The church pastor is Rev. J. Kirk Loper.

$100,000 Pledge For Mission Field

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (UPI) —An anonymous pledge of $100,000, the largest individual gift to date, was received during March for the World Mission Campaign of the American Baptist Convention, according to Rev. Dr. Carrol O. Morong, national director of the project.

The gift brings the total amount from gifts and pledges in the major gifts program to $1,798,279. The campaign objective from individual pledges and church campaigns is $10 million.

Church Help Asked

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI)— While the Western Railroad was being built from Worcester to Springfield in 1837, there was so much criticism that owners of the road sent a letter to churches throughout the state asking that sermons be preached on the beneficial moral effect of railroads.

HUMAN BEHAVIOR

A Problem: When To Remain Silent

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Dietrich Bonhoeffer was a German theologian whose opposition to Hitler led him to a martyr's death on a Nazi scaffold.

At the time of his arrest in 1943, he was working on a book about ethics. The last incomplete fragment of that book, interrupted by the arrival of the secret police, deals not with tyranny, war or any other grand question, but with a homely problem of everyday behavior.

The problem is knowing when to keep your mouth shut.

Bonhoeffer noted, with regret that there are "people who feel themselves called upon to 'tell the truth,' as they put it, to everyone who crosses their path."

He acknowledged that there are times when a parent, a teacher, a pastor, an employer of someone else in a position of responsibility may have a clear moral duty to speak painful truths to another person.

But he said this does not mean that all of us have the right to go around administering vebal slaps in the name of candor.

"The claim that one is entitled to say what one thinks is completely unfounded," Bonhoeffer said in the last paragraph he wrote as a free man.

If he had been able to complete his essay on the virtue of holding your tongue he doubtless would have followed his usual custom of buttressing his point with scriptual quotations. He would have had no difficulty finding pertinent Biblical passages to cite.

"I will guard my ways," says the author of the 39th Psalm, "that I may not sin with my tongue."

The biblical writer who feels most strongly on the subjectis the author of the New Testament epistle of James.

He uses graphic metaphors to describe the power for mischief that resides in a wagging tongue.

"We put the bit into the mouths of horses to make them obey us, and we are able to make them go where we want. Or think of a ship: Big as it is, and driven by such strong winds, it can be steered by a vary small rudder, and goes wherever the pilot wants it to go.

"This is how it is with the tongue. Small as it is, it can boast about great things.

"Just think how large a forest can be set on fire by a tiny flame! And the tongue is like a fire. It is a world of wrong, occupying its place in our bodies and spreading evil through our whole being! It sets on fire the entire course of our existence with the fire that comes to it from hell itself.

"Man is able to tame, and has tamed, all other creatures — wild animals and birds, reptiles and fish. But no man has ever been able to tame the tongue. It is evil and uncontrollable, full of deadly poison.

"We use it to give thanks to our Lord and Father, and also to curse our fellow men, created in the likeness of God!

"My brothers, this should not happen. . . God is the only lawgiver and judge. Who do you think you are, to judge your fellow man."

Film Will Be Highlight Of Bible Meeting

"God Cannot Lie," is the title of a color film that will highlight three days of Bible instruction tomorrow at a Jehovah's Witnesses conference at the Sonoma County Fairgrounds in Santa Rosa.

Produced by the Watchtower Bible Society, the film seeks to emphasize the purpose of God as well as tell the story of the whole Bible, according to Francis Paulson of Mill Valley.

During the sessions which opened yesterday, Marin ministers are taking active roles. Included are William Wengert of Mill Valley, and Allen Rice of San Anselmo.

Sunday Evening Rites To Change

The First Baptist Church of San Anselmo will begin new Sunday evening service hours beginning June 4.

Time of the evening service beginning then and continuing through August will be 7 p.m.

Canoles Sets Sermon Topic

"The Cause and Cure of Fear" is the topic of the sermon of Dr. John J. Canoles at both the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services tomorrow at the Novato Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Canoles, former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael, will fill the pulpit in the absence of Rev. C. M. Croughan who will be the discussion leader for the weekend family camp sponsored by the Mariners Club of the church.

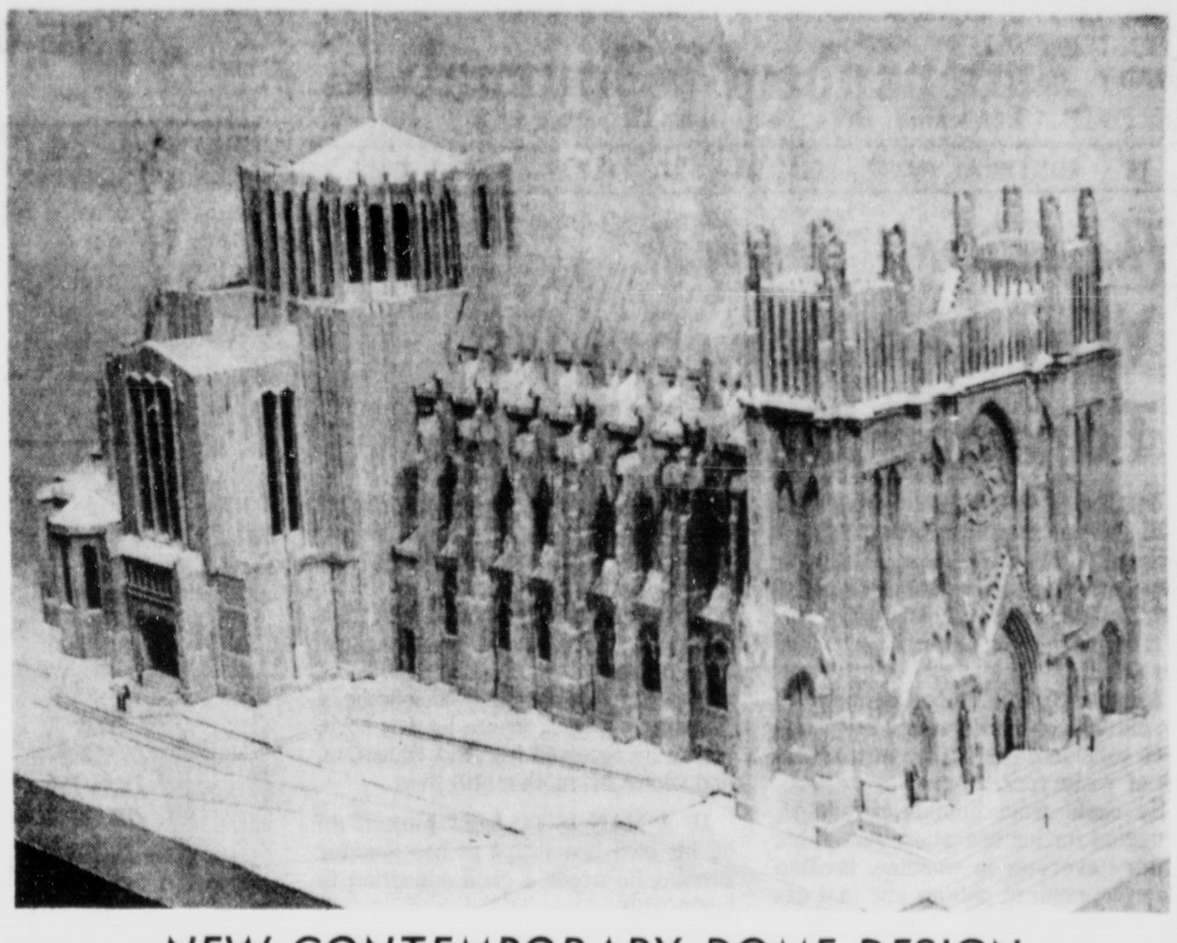
Political Role Of Churchmen

NEW YORK (UPI)—Crhristians have a responsibility to take part in political life, according to Dr. Charles Malik, former president of the United Nations General Assemly and a prominent Christian statesman.

The World Council of Churches reports that Dr. Malik, in an address to the Middle East Consultation on the Laity, held in Beirut, Lebanon, stressed the role that strong churches, especially at the congregational level, can play in nation-building. "The Christian must recognize the difficulties that public service entails, inculding the fact that compromise is often demanded," Dr. Malik said.

Budget Receipts

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Cash contributions to the American Lutheran Council during the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1967, totaled $21,463,416, an increase fo $497,056, or 2.37 per cent over the 1966 fiscal year, according to Rev. Dr. Norman A. Menter, acting executive secretary of the ALC's board of trustees.



NEW CONTEMPORARY DOME DESIGN

This is how the Cathedral of St. John the Devine in New York will appear if it is finished according to new plans. The plan calls for the cathedral to be finished with a contemporary dome of colored glass and concrete louvers instead of the soaring Gothic tower originally envisioned by the cathedral's architect. Fellowship At College To Be Told

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 1123 Court, San Rafael, will have as guests tomorrow three members of the All Faith Fellowship at College of Marin.

Forming a panel for the 9:45 a.m. adult class and the 11 a.m. worship service will be Rev. Antoninus Wall, Charles Robertson and William Muller.

The fellowship guides the religious program at the college and shares the Newman Center facilities for all-student programs in worship, study and recreation.

It has received recognition in its ecumenical approach to the college ministry, said Rev. John Riley, rector of St. Paul's.

ANOTHER CITY

Beneath St. Peter's Basilica Dome—Traces Of Christianity

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Layer upon layer of Chrsitianity's history—19 centuries of it—lie beneath the huge dome of St. Peter's Basilica.

Deep beneath that magnificent 16th Century dome is the church the Roman Emperor Constantine built about 342 A.D. in honor of St. Peter the fisherman, first Pope of the Roman Catholic Church.

Below that lies the tomb of St. Peter himself, martyred sometime between the years 64 and 67, and the tombs of hundreds of other early Christians and pagans.

There is another city down there—discovered only in 1940—a necropolis of narrrow streets that have changed little since they were built. Most tourists never take the subterranean tour, settling instead for a quick turn around the basilica and a glimpse of Michelangelo's "Pieta."

Those who do go down into the basilica's bottom-most reaches—a tour that requires signing up several days in advance—find it well worthwhile.

Archaeologists have shown beyond reasonable doubt that St. Peter was buried in the necropolis. They have found what was undoubtedly his tomb—marked with the word "Petrus"—and a small memorial constructed in his honor a century after his death.

Some archaeologists also maintain Peter's bones have been found but that hotly debated subject may never be solved.

Chief advocate is Prof. Margherita Guarducci, an archaeologist at Rome University who discovered the bones in 1965. Miss Guarducci, who has been involved in the Vatican excavations since they began, discovered the bones of a man between 60 and 70 years old in a hiding place 72 inches above Peter's tomb.

The tomb itself was empty, she maintains, because the bones had been moved to safeguard them in a dry place and protect them against possible violation. Inside the wall above the hiding place, inscribed before it was sealed, were written the words "in here is Peter."

Other experts, among them Msgr. Joseph Ruysschaert, vice prefect of the Vatican Library, are not convinced by Miss Guarducci's evidence.

"There are too many unknowns," he told reporters on a recent tour of the Vatican grottoes. "There is no continuous tracing of the bones. We lack historical proof. They could be anyone's bones."

The Vatican would seem to be on the Monsignor's side because so far it has taken no steps to officially recognize the bones as St. Peter's. It, too, apparently would like better historical evidence—which may come to light in further excavations deep under St. Peter's dome.

Presbyterians Award Grants

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United Presbyterian Commissio non Religion and Race has approved grants totaling $77,500, including support for the Suothern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLA) and the National Council of Churches (NCC).

Most of the funds were designated for assistance to United Presbyterian regional units across the country, although the largest single appropriations were made for SCLA, the NCC Religion and Race Organization, and the Presbyterian Interracial Council.

Why Not Sen. Brooke To Head GOP Ticket?

THERE HAVE BEEN POLITICAL trial balloon suggestions that Senator Edward W. Brooke (R. Mass.) should be considered for the Republican nomination for Vice President next year.

It might be even better if he headed the ticket.

Senator Brooke embodies many of the old-fashioned characteristics which were considered musts by office-seekers of yesteryear.

He came from humble parentage, struggled for his education, served his country overseas in wartime, became a lawyer, entered politics and met defeat a couple of times before winning his first victory at the polls. Last year he was elected to the U.S. Senate from Massachusetts defeating a very popular young former governor

Senator Brooke is a self-made man, as the saying goes. Furthermore, he is an advocate of advancement by performing so as to merit the respect of others. This has been his ladder to success. To repeat, he advocates this means of getting ahead in the world.

IF YOU REMEMBER WATCHING TV election returns that night a year ago, you will recall that in conceding defeat, Governor Peabody acknowledged his respect for Edward Brooke as a worthy opponent and fair campaigner.

And you may recall Senator Brooke and his attractive Italian war-bride wife accepting victory in complete humility and gratitude, returning the compliment to Governor Peabody.

That election was a great milestone in the process of racial integration.

The people of Massachusetts had reaffirmed their choice of Edward Brooke on the basis of his demonstrated abilities as a fellow human being, without regard to his color, which happens to be black.

Incidentally, TV sometimes tends to make black-skinned persons look pale. That's what happened to Senator Brooke on election night TV. But Senator Brooke's real-life complexion is coal black.

When TV depicted him as a smiling, warm-hearted individual, of great poise and tact, it showed him correctly.

If you bump into Senator Brooke today in the halls of the Capitol in Washington, you will immediately see the same friendly smile as he warmly greets friends and admirers, black or white.

ONE COULD SAY HE is worthy to be the first to represent his race in the U.S. Senate for more than a century and the first such ever chosen by popular election.

But you would be wrong. Senator Brooke doesn't represent just his race. He represents everybody. He was not chosen to represent his race. He was chosen to represent everybody. And the choice was right.

To repeat, it was an important milestone in the progress toward racial integration.

Now Senator Brooke is back home in Washington, D.C., where he was born, where he received his first education, and where his mother still lives.

IF A MAN IS TO LIFT himself up by his own bootstraps as has Senator Brooke, he needs a good education to begin with.

This is NOT possible for very many Negro children in Washington, D.C., today.

Achievement tests indicate that youngsters in our nation's capital are getting reticent about releasing test results. Is is known, for instance, that about 60 per cent of all Washington's high school students are about two grades behind in reading ability.

With some notable exceptions, schools in the upper class, white areas tend to provide better education while schools in the poverty stricken black areas tend to provide inferior educational opportunities.

The architects of the "great society" can't be very proud of themselves so long as this situation is permitted to exist almost within the shadow of the White House and the Capitol.

STOKELY CARMICHAEL, the "black power" advocate, has correctly declared that within the years just ahead, "blacks" are going to take over America's leading metropolitan centers. This contention is sustained by population trend statistics which show that Negroes will outnumber whites in America's cities in 10 years or less.

If this great reservoir of potential talent is to be developed for the welfare of all — if we are to see more Edward Brookes emerge — we need to provide better basic education for all people, including poverty-stricken minorities.

Otherwise, the door will be open for a generation of Stokely Carmichael rabble-rousers leading masses of ignorant people, unable to help themselves, and demanding help from "the government."

Putting Edward W. Brooke, the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts, at the top of the G.O.P. ticket next year could bring some common sense leadership in solving America's most threatening domestic problem.

WEATHER AFFECTS OUR PERSONALTIES

The phrase "under the weather" is more than a figure of speech, according to scientific studies of climatic conditions.

Recent research shows a close link between the weather and how we feel emotionally and physically. Here are some findings:

Hot, muggy weather makes people depressed.

Low barometric pressures cause restlessness and inability to concentrate.

Cold, dry weather steps up mental processes.

Physical work is best done at about 64 degrees.

Fog decreases mental efficiency. (One London bank locks up important files on foggy days and restricts its clerks to routine chores.)

Men are affected by weather extremes more than women.

The very knowledge that outside factors can affect our state of mind can enable us, with God's help, to overcome "the blues."

It should also spur us to cheer up others.

"A cheerful heart is good medicine."
(Proverbs 17:22)

Let me recognize my limitations, Lord, and strive to live up to the best that is in me.

CHP Car Editorial Point Challenged

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Re: Your editorial of May 22 "Highway Patrol Should Retain Clear Markings."

One of the reasons you give for retaining the markings is a reason for not having them. If all cars of the CHP were unmarked, every car on the highway becomes a potential CHP vehicle. And as you pointed out, offenses decline. Think too how no markings would help parents. They would no longer have to tell junior that traffic laws are only observed when they spot a CHP car.

Furthermore, since when has the CHP (or any other agency) started to enforce speed limits?

City, School Aides Scolded For Apathy

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your Editorial of May 23, "Law Enforcement Alone Cannot Curb Drug Use" missed one point of major concern and that was lack of co-ordination between city managers and school superintendents and the board of supervisors on May 9 to make this a success.

Only one city manager and one city police chief were available during the discussion of this venture yet, we the taxpayers, will pay the bill of $73,000 on the 1967-68 budget.

North Marin had no representation since Supervisor Gnoss was in Hawaii and when I made inquiry as to why Mr. Baget and Mr. James Bunker failed to appear despite the fact we, the citizens, furnish them a car and operational costs of their city owned and school owned vehicle. Neither found it "necessary." So, I requested a rebate of their salary for that day.

Item 14 on the agenda of the County Board of Supervisors, May 23, did have the job discription for the Inspector-Narcotics and Drug Specialist which your editorial stressed was necessary so we could really reach the young, but we will need to break the barrier being built into the operation by the cities "unwilling to approve pending clarification of organization, operations, relations with city police and focus of police responsibility." Perhaps citizens should make the telephone call to the city hall and the school district office and ask their city manager and school superintendent, "How come you didn't attend the May 9 meeting of the Board of Supervisors," for these men are the first to contend "the citizen is apathetic and it is due to lack of communication" so, we believed them and created the position of city managers and school superintendents to "fill the gap" and become informed. What do we do now when they fail to fulfill their obligations?

Novato Coed Takes Issue With Story

Editor, Independent-Journal:

After reading your article on the "brawls" at the Novato High School dance, I felt compelled to write . . .

The Carnival Dance, which you painted so vividly of drunken students and "brawls" was pretty exaggerated. (In fact, I counted about three attempted fights.) As usual, the teachers who chaperoned and Mr. Garguilo were on their toes for any trouble. They quickly broke-up the outbreaks before the fights had a chance of turning into anything.

Security guards at a high school dance? . . . Their job is to watch the doors and help if any real trouble should arise. Fortunately their assistance was not and has never been necessary.

The statements that were made in connection to a surplus of students from other schools thronging our dance is also questionable. The school has a policy that a person who is not presently attending NHS cannot enter a dance without a guest pass. To secure one of these passes, you must be signed up ahead of time by a student. There is seldom, if ever, any problem of an imbalance of strangers.

Last of all I would like to mention the remarks you chose to print in regard to the vice principal. It was extremely unfair, as well as in the poorest taste. I can frankly say I have never met a student who did not like Mr. Garguilo . . .

I think this particular article sums-up the basic reasons that I consider the I-J a poor paper. It is sad to see, in a county growing as Marin, that it does not have a paper growing with it. I hope someday the I-J will stop writing this type of small-town styled articles and use its influence to concentrate on objective and factual stories that will benefit all, instead of ones aimed at certain areas and individuals to gain support of a few dissatisfied people.

Tornado Funds Appreciated

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Those who contributed to the Belvedere-to-Belvidere Tornado Relief Fund would surely prefer that all monies be sent to the Illinois city rather than any spent for acknowledgements by mail; therefore, the Belvedere Citizens Committee is using the excellent media of the press to thank all who donated.

More than $500 has been colleted to transmit through the American Red Cross to assist in the replacement of a school bus, which insurance could not completely cover, a critical need according to the Mayor of Belvidere.

Major tragedy of the tornado was the death of 17 children and the driver when the school bus in which they were waiting was demolished.

Children of Westminster Presbyterian Church and St. Stephen's Episcopal Church filled American Red Cross gift kits which are being sent east.

The committee also appreciates the cooperation of the newspapers, so essential to the success of the fund collection, and the help of Mr. and Mrs. George Bitter, who provided announcements, and the Mill Valley Refuse Service, which addressed and mailed them to every household in Belvedere, as well as the Crocker-Citizens Bank which served as the collection agent.

Thank you to all who responded affirmatively to the question, "What if it had been an earthquake here instead of a tornado there?"

Nasser Unpredictability May Be Reason For Mideast Tension

WASHINGTON (AP)—There is enough in Gamal Abdel Nasser's background to scare anyone who tangles with him because, after his first big venture, how could anyone, including Nasser, be sure he knows what he's doing?

It's one reason why this Egyptian president's antics in the Middle East are unpredictable.

Nasser was 34 and a major in 1952 when he and a small group of other Egyptian army officers, fed up with the decadence of King Farouk, decided to throw him out and suddenly did it.

They had pulled off a bloodless revolution and then didn't know what to do with it. Nasser and the others hadn't planned beyond getting rid of Farouk.

AFTER THAT happened, they thought, others would come along with ideas for running and reforming Egypt. Nasser explained their dilemma in a book he wrote later, "The Philosophy of Revolution."

"I thought we were only the pioneers and commandos," he said, "that we would be in the front for a few hours and that we would soon be followed by the solid masses marching to the goal." But they weren't.

The officers set up a Revolutionary Council, headed by Brig. Gen. Mohammed Naguib. The badly needed reforms were begun, but slowly. And then suddenly Naguib was thrown out and Nasser replaced him.

He has been in charge ever since, first as premier, then as president. Two years after taking over he got into another jam, of his own making, although he came out of it smelling like a rose, no thanks to his own wit.

HE WANTED to build a colossal project, the Aswan Dam, to help Egyptian farming. He needed a lot of help, asked the United States for it, got a promise of it, and tried to play both ends against the middle.

He asked the Soviet Union to get in on the deal. He got very friendly with the Red Chinese. And he proclaimed himself a neutralist. By this time he had irritated the Eisenhower administration so much that the promised help to him was canceled.

NOT LONG afterwards he seized the Suez Canal. This irritated the British, French and Israelis so much they invaded Egypt. Nasser's army, hardly more than a Coxey's army, was no match for the invaders.

If it had kept up, Nasser was finished. But the United Nations intervened—backed for a change by the United States and the Soviet Union together—and demanded the invaders clear out. They did.

Nasser has been running the canal ever since and, to practically everyone's surprise, successfully. But Egypt under Nasser is a long way from the Promised Land. He has had to get help from many directions.

MEANWHILE, he has lost caste among the other leaders of the Arab world. If he could get into another rumpus with Israel, and somehow come out of it intact, he figured to regain some of his lost prestige.

At least this is one of the guesses for his belligerence now. But it's no more than a guess since he may not have done any more planning than with Farouk.

Welfare Chiseling Claims Are Big Lie

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.

The myth that people on welfare are "chiselers" who don't want to work has been repeated so often that it falls into the technique of the Big Lie — repeat a lie often enough and people will believe it. Every time a politician wants to make a hit with the home folks or a newspaper wants to boost circulation, they go back to the old welfare chiselers routine.

NOW THEY will have to find another horse to flog, because a White House official has made public the figures on welfare recipients and they show that only 50,000 — less than 1 per cent — are able to work.

There are 7.3 million people in the U.S. getting some form of welfare aid. A little over 2 million are aged, 700,000 are blind or handicapped, 3.5 million are children, and the rest are parents who are unable to support those children. Almost a million of these are mothers who can't leave their kids to go to work, while most of the 150,000 fathers on welfare are handicapped in one way or another.

THESE PEOPLE don't sound like chiselers; they are victims of a system and they are people who may have met with misfortune in life, but they must be accorded the basic dignities due all human beings. The present welfare system robs them of dignity and frustrates efforts to make them self-sufficient.

The welfare system actually helps break up many families. Children who receive welfare in the Aid to Dependent Children program often pay for the aid by losing their fathers, because of the "man-in-the-house" rule. The rule is enforced by Gestapo-like raids, usually in the middle of the night.

THERE ARE many other abuses — most states pay benefits which don't even come up to their own standards, payments average below the federal poverty standards, eligibility is often denied on unfair grounds, clients must submit to harrassment and humiliating investigations, and incentives are dimmed because benefits are cut by a dollar for each dollar earned by anyone in the family.

THERE IS ALSO another myth about welfare — that Negroes gravitate to big cities because welfare payments are better there. Only about a third of welfare recipients are Negro, and those who go to the cities are doing what millions of immigrants before them did —they go in search of work and they go to escape the brutal repression which still exists in large sections of the United States.

New York's welfare commissioner, Mitchell I. Ginsburg, recently said that the welfare system was "designed to save money rather than people, and the tragedy is that it does neither."

There are few businesses, farms, or banks, which don't receive subsidies in one form or another. Subsidies to human beings are at least as legitimate.

IT IS OBVIOUS that the nation needs an economic security program which will insure that all individuals will be guaranteed minimum payments above the poverty line, while all who can work will find jobs with the government acting as an employer of last resort if necessary.

Doctors Tell How Drugs Costs Vary

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association has reported in a survey that prices of prescription drugs vary from store to store by as much as 1200 per cent.

The AMA said the price range for every drug studied in a random sampling of drug stores here varied by more than 100 per cent.

The survey showed that prescribing drugs generically rather than by brand name does not guarantee a lower cost to the patient.

The only way a prescribing physician can assure his patient a lower cost is by actually comparing prices at pharmacies and recommending the patient go to the store which charges the lower price for the highest quality drug, the AMA said.

Marin Catholic, Redwood Lose In Tournament

By GARY TISCHLER

There are times during a baseball tournament when you almost think you are watching a grainy, flickering silent movie.

You can almost hear the rickety piano pound out screeching perils for Pauline, you can see pie in the face, and the Keystone Cops falling over each other, the hero kicking up dust on a last minute ride.

It was that way in the second day of the Redwood High School Tournament of Champions at San Rafael's Albert Field yesterday.

Almost but not quite.

Pauline got cut in half. The 7th Cavalry made a wrong turn and forgot to show up in time.

The Marin County Athletic League is without a contender for the tournament title.

The loop lost both of its contenders yesterday, as Marin Catholic fell to San Lorenzo, 3-0, and Redwood's last-gasp rally against Skyline fell short, 6-5.

The Marin Wildcats are out of the tournament. They had to win to stay alive. Redwood was in the consolation bracket today, battling Ygnacio Valley at 2 p.m. and hopefully, in the consolation finals at 6 o'clock against St. Elizabeth's of Oakland.

In the championship bracket, Petaluma played San Lorenzo at 10 a.m. today, and Berkeley met Skyline at noon. The winners of those affairs will play in the championship game at 8 tonight. The third-place fight is between the losers of the two semi-final games.

El Camino and Santa Cruz played for sixth place at Marin Catholic's diamond at 2 o'clock.

In other games yesterday, Berkeley whipped Ygnacio Valley, 6-0, and St. Elizabeth's ripped El Camino, 16-0, in a consolation bracket game at Marin Catholic, highlighted by a 13-run inning.

Marin Catholic's batters saw nothing but lush curves yesterday, which would be all right standing on a street corner but it was sheer frustration in the batter's box.

Mike Gartrell, alternating between a sidearm pitch and a high kick a la Marichal, was the winner.

He gave up six hits, two of them to Rich Denning and centerfielder Gerry Handlos, but he came in with the big outs when they counted, particularly in the fifth inning when the Wildcats had runners on second and third, nobody out.

Tom Schalich, long out of action with a sore arm, started for the Wildcats and looked like a healthy man again for four innings until San Lorenzo squeezed in a run on a sneaky steal play in the third, then scored twice in the fourth on three singles and a wild pitch.

That ended Marin Catholic's bid for a second straight tourney title.

If the Wildcats fell cleanly and in short order, the Giants went out screaming, kicking and booting.

And Kevin Wilson deserved better. For the compact Redwood pitcher-outfielder, it looked like one of those days where you jump out of bed and step on a rusty nail.

For three smooth innings, it looked like the Giants would ride home on a Punch and Judy show of enemy errors and infield hits.

They led 2-0 in the first by routing Skyline starter Bud Maklson on a walk, and a stolen base, a wild throw, scoring one run, a walk and a perfect bunt by Doug Grey that loaded the bases.

In came Skyline ace Mark Resser, who gave up a blooper to Scott Davis in back of short that scored a run. Then he proceeded to strike out Giants in high style.

But Wilson seemed to be in command until the fourth when he was betrayed by the Keystone Cops and one fat pitch. Third baseman Keith Valk muffed two chances, one of them scoring a run, and Wilson gave up a two-run triple. With another run coming in on an infield out, it made it a 4-2 lead for Skyline.

Skyline added another run in the fifth, and scored again in the sixth when Wilson came up with a cramp in his hand.

Present Day Hitters Puzzle Ted Williams

Ted Williams can't understand the attitude of baseball's present day .300 hitters. It baffles him to see their ready acceptance of .300 averages when they have the talent to do better.

"They're satisfied to be .310 hitters and I can't understand it," said Williams who was an Astrodome guest during last weekend's four-game series between the Giants and Astros.

TED WILLIAMS

"They just don't seem to want to work at all. Maybe it's the way they practice. The guy who can't hit the curve ball should beg for curves in batting practice. But he keeps asking for the fast ball because that's the one he can hit out of sight."

Everybody agrees that Williams was one of the greatest hitters in baseball history. Of course, his lifetime batting average of .344, the fact he was the last of the .400 hitters and the fourth man to hit more than 500 homers already have put him in the Hall of Fame.

"What kills me is to see the mistakes hitters make," said Williams who suddenly switched from criticism to praise as Rusty Staub came to bat.

Rates Staub One Of The Best

"I'm glad to see Rusty is finally coming around. I've never understood why he hasn't hit better. Of course, it takes time.

"I was scouting for the Red Sox when I first saw him in New Orleans in 1962. He was the best high school hitter I've ever seen. The Red Sox were interested in him and Dalton Jones at the time. They were playing against each other in an American Legion game and I went to see them. The Red Sox were more interested in Jones because he was an infielder. But Staub really impressed me."

Staub now is among the top 10 hitters in the National League. "And that's where he should be," said Williams who thinks somebody must have changed Rusty's natural swing during an experimental period. "But he's got it back now."

Remembers Advice From O'Doul

Williams still remembers the advice he received from Lefty O'Doul. First time O'Doul saw Williams swinging a bat in San Diego, the then manager of the old San Francisco Seals told him:

"Kid, whatever you do, don't ever let anyone change that swing."

Williams was such a great natural hitter that even after two wars in which he flew Marine Corps fighter planes he picked up where he left off in baseball and in his last turn at bat in September of 1960 bowed out with a homer.

If World War II and the Korean War had not interrupted his baseball career, Williams almost certainly would have cracked Babe Ruth's all-time homer mark of 714.

N. L. Beware: Marichal Better, Faster

It's said there are no sure things in baseball, but it would be hard to convince the Los Angeles Dodgers when Juan Marichal takes the mound at Candlestick Park.

The ace San Francisco Giants' right-hander ran his record to 14-0 at Candlestick against the Dodgers last night when he hurled a tidy six-hit, 4-1 victory in the opener of a three-game series.

Manager Herman Franks of the Giants sent left-hander Mike McCormick (3-2) against the Dodgers' Don Drysdale (4-3) this afternoon. Gaylord Perry (2-4) and Claude Osteen (6-3) conclude the series tomorrow.

Besides continuing his hex over the Dodgers in San Francisco, Marichal became the major leagues' first eight game winner. His tight pitching also leap-frogged the Giants over Atlanta and Chicago into fourth place in the National League.

The win was Marichal's eighth straight after three season-opening defeats. He draws a parallel with the current streak and his ten consecutive victories at the outset of the 1966 season. He finished 25-6.

"I have better stuff now," Marichal declared. "My fast ball is faster and I'm striking out more batters. I could even have more strikeouts if I tried harder for them with men on base."

Having too many men on base, however, isn't common for Marichal, who struck out seven Dodgers and walked only one last night. In fact, he would have posted his second 1967 shutout in a row over the defending National League Champions if Wes Parker and Willie Davis hadn't bunched singles in an eighth-inning rally.

While the right-hander was conservatively doling out singles, the Giants erupted for a rash of extra base power to score all their runs off loser Don Sutton, now 1-6, the first four innings.

Jim Hart hammered a curve ball for a 425-foot homer to dead center in the second inning, and Ollie Brown belted a solo homer in the fourth. The fifth home run of the season for each.

Bob Schroder's single, Willie Mays' triple and Willie McCovey's double accounted for two third-inning runs. Mays' blast just missed clearing the center field fence, as it appeared Davis knocked the ball back to the field.

Marichal couldn't explain his amazing success against Los Angeles at Candlestick Park. He's only 8-8 against them at Dodger Stadium.

"I don't know what it is," said Marichal, "but it's easier to pitch to them now with Maury Wills not in the lineup. Whenever he got on base, you knew he would steal. If a good right field hitter was up, you'd really have to worry."

The pitcher admitted he was concerned about his performance after missing a turn in Philadelphia Wednesday after the Phillies declared a 50-degree "freeze out."

"The first thing that came to my mind was how would I pitch with six days rest," he offered. "But I felt good when I stepped on the mound. It was colder here than it was in Philadelphia."

Franks, however, had no doubts his ace would do his customary excellent job against the Dodgers.

"A few extra days won't hurt a guy like Marichal," said the manager. "Nothing bothers a pitcher as good as he is. Juan's the greatest."

Dodger pitcher Joe Moeller, sent yesterday to Spokane of the Pacific Coast League, said he is considering quitting baseball rather than return to the minors.

"I've got too much pride to return to Spokane a third time," said the 24-year-old right-hander. "I think I'll quit unless I'm traded."

Dodger General Manager E.J. (Buzzie) Bavasi said: "We're giving Moeller until Monday to make up his mind. It's sort of a cooling off period."

'Bridesmaid,' 'Bride' Grab Golf Lead

OKLAMOHA CITY, Okla. —A perennial "bridesmaid" and a brand new "bride" — Miller Barber and Dave Stockton — shared the second round lead after a windy Friday at the Oklahoma City Open Golf Tournament.

Barber, whose only tour victory has been the 1964 Cajun Classic, and Stockton, who collected his first tournament triumph last week at Colonial's National Invitational, bettered the gusty winds for two-round totals of two-under-par 142.

PLAYING WELL

"I'm playing as well as I know how," said Barber, whose four birdies and four bogeys netted an even par 72 to go with his two under 70 Thursday.

Barber has won $18,053 on the tour this year with his best finish a fourth-place tie in the Texas Open.

Stockton, who captured the coveted Colonial title only a week ago, fired a 71 yesterday and said he wasn't a bit tired of being interviewed by reporters.

Machen Stopped In Third By Young Seattle Heavy

SEATTLE (AP) — Young Boone Kirkman of nearby Renton floored Eddie Machen three times last night to win a technical knockout over the veteran San Francisco heavyweight.

Kirkman, a protege of veteran manager Deacon Jack Hurley, was rocked by a counter-punching left in the opening round. But late in the second round of the scheduled 10-rounder, Kirkman caught Machen on the ropes and poured in a straight right that floored the Californian.

Jones' Hot Turbine Causes Ruckus At Indy Speedway

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Mario Andretti, Parnelli Jones and other contenders in the 500-mile Memorial Day auto race moved five miles today from the Indianapolis Motor Speedway to a relatively safe stock car event at Indianapolis Raceway Park.

Drivers qualified for the rich 500-miler Tuesday are forbidden only to race within 24 hours of the big show. They figured they'll have plenty of time to rest from the IRP race, the Yankee 300.

The Yankee 300 was postponed from May 7 after a torrential rain left the parking lots impassable.

Last meaningful preliminaries to the 500 were concluded yesterday with an unprecedented secret briefing of drivers and crew chiefs on the starting and race rules, and a final three-hour session of shakedown runs.

Temperatures which had been uncommonly chilly for May suddenly zoomed to 82 and other drivers complained bitterly about shimmering waves of heat rolling back of Parnelli Jones controversial STP-Pratt & Whitney turbine car.

Andy Granatelli, president of Studebaker's STP division and builder of the Jones car, was told by Chief Steward Harlan Fengler to install a deflector to raise the angle of the turbine's exhaust.

S. A. Silberman, head of the race technical committee, said earlier that exhaust from the turbine is cooler than that from the conventional piston engines in all the other cars. But there is a lot more of it.

The private session on the rules apparently was an effort to give more emphasis to warnings from Fengler and other officials. The usual drivers' meeting the afternoon before the race has become a sideshow with presentation of numerous special awards and introductions of visiting celebrities.

Fengler told the drivers that he would insist on a clean start even if the field had to make five circuits of the track before he ordered Chief Starter Pat Vidan to wave the green flag and start competition.

Eleven cars were knocked out of the 1966 field in a massive pileup only yards from the starting line. Nobody was seriously hurt, possibly because the cars had not reached high speed.

Clemente The Crusader Scores Sweet Revenge

Whenever — and wherever — Roberto Clemente and the Cincinnati Reds run into each other it's a fight for survival.

Clemente continued his one-man crusade against Cincinnati by stroking a bases-loaded single in the 12th inning last night that gave the Pittsburg Pirates a 6-5 nod over the National League leaders.

In other N.L. action, Philadelphia topped St. Louis 7-4 on Don Lock's three-run homer, New York nipped Atlanta 1-0 on Don Cardwell's three-hitter and Houston flattened Chicago 17-4 in a club-record scoring spree.

Clemente, the league's leading hitter, settled an 11-day-old score with Cincinnati by breaking up the extra-inning struggle at Pittsburgh. When the clubs opened a three-game series at Cincinnati on May 15, Clemente drove in seven runs with three homers and a double, only to come out on the short end of an 8-7, 10-inning decision.

The Reds, however, gave Clemente a dizzy run for his money. He singled in the first inning, was robbed of an extra-base hit by right fielder Tommy Harper in the third, and chopped a hard grounder in the fifth that got through shortstop Leo Cardenas for a two-run error.

With the score tied 2-2 in the seventh, the Pirates' superstar struck out. With the game deadlocked 4-4 in the ninth, he reached base on another error by Cardenas, but was thrown out at the plate trying to score from second on a passed ball.

Finally, after Cincy reliever Darrell Osteen loaded the bases on a walk and two hit batters in the 12th, Clemente delivered the hit to left field that broke a 5-5 tangle.

Lock capped a four-run Philadelphia rally in the eighth inning with his three-run blast after getting a life when Cards second baseman Phil Gagliano misjudged his foul pop outside first base.

Johnny Callison crashed a pair of homers for the Phillies and Rich Allen singled across the tying run in the eighth before Lock connected.

The Mets' Cardwell made Jerry Buchek's second inning home run stand up against the Braves, who have scored in only one inning of their last three starts and have had just eight hits during that stretch.

The Astros walloped four homers, good for 10 runs, in topping their previous high of 16 runs, scored against the Mets in 1962. Rusty Staub and Joe Morgan hit three-run homers while Jim Wynn and Ron Davis belted two-run shots.

Marin's Two Champs Lose In Tourney

Bill Poole came in to relieve, threw too many balls, two wild pitches and gave up a run-scoring infield out.

In the Redwood fifth, Kenny Johnson sent one for a ride into center for what looked like a triple but the All-League shortstop neglected to touch second base and was called out. Wilson then poked one over the left field fence for a home run.

The missed base became crucial in the sixth as time and luck ran out for the Giants. Resser committed two jim-dandy throwing errors, the Giants got an infield hit and scored two runs. But Resser, with enough egg on his face already, struck out pinch hitter Gary Peters to end the MCAL's and Redwood's chances.

A Personable Prexy For Pro Grid League

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — The office of president of the National Football League has become an unpaid, temporary position under the new pro football setip of ever-increasing centralization authority in Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Art Modell, owner of the Cleveland Browns, will double in brass as a personable NFL president with a fine public relations sense while running his own club's affairs, at least until the next league meetings in February.

Rozelle, busily reorganizing his office and expanding the staff of the commissioner to implement the full merging of the NFL and American Football League by the 1970 target date, thus gave up one of the two hats he has been wearing.

As both commissioner of the two leagues and commissioner of the NFL, Rozelle had found himself in a difficult position. Now Modell will make all statements involving the NFL from his Cleveland office and will work with Rozelle on fulfilling the merger.

Milt Woodard, elected president of the AFL after the June merger, will continue in that post. He is a salaried official.

TOGETHERNESS

"Since we announced our plans to merge into a single expanded league by 1970 last June 8," said Rozelle, "we have met in the same hotel, held a common draft and arranged preseason games for this season. At this meeting we have seen Cincinnati added as the 10 team to the AFL. Now we have a president of each league. We are working out the rest of our reorganization plans."

In the future there will be a AFL-NFL All-Star game, probably not before Jan. 1971, according to Rozelle and the owners. They cite various commitments, including two television contracts that would make it impossible to start before that date. However, the players think they may be able to remove some of the obstacles and play the game before 1971.

PENSION INCREASED

After the 16 owners met with the 16 player representatives and their legal counsel, Creighton Miller, the NFL owners announced they would guarantee the pension fund $1.2 million a year for the next three years, an increase of $275,000. This means $900,000 for the pension fund and $300,000 for insurance and medical benefits. The owners also voted to give each veteran vested in the pension plan five years a $10,000 life insurance policy, plus $1,000 for each additional year up to a maximum of $25,000.

A possibility that the Super Bowl money might be distributed more widely to include second and third place teams was discussed.

Pair Share Oklahoma Golf Lead

"It just means I'm hitting 'em and finding 'em," he said.

Stockton and Barber were in an uneasy first place, with 27 golfers within five shots of them.

Only nine golfers were shooting par or better, as the cutoff soared to 152, highest on the tour this year.

CASPER HOT

Casper, shooting his first subpar round in the last two tournaments, carved a 69 as he used only 28 putts and had eight one-putt greens.

"It was tough to play out there because of the wind," Casper said. "But I like the wind because I hit the ball low." Billy Maxwell, who had the top round of the day with a four under 68, and Kermit Zarley, who skied to a 75 after tieing for the first-round lead, both had even par 144 for the two rounds.

Jack Rule Jr., who won here in 1965 and was tied with Zarley for the first-round lead at 69, shot a 76 and came in with five other golfers at 145.

Giants Camera Day Set June 17

There will be 50 prizes for best pictures given by Brooks Cameras, co-sponsors of the event. In addition to posed pictures, the photographers can take pictures of the action during or after the game, and of unique scenes in the parking area around Candlestick Park.

Entry blanks will be available Candlestick Park prior to the game.

Fresno State Has Stanford Reeling

FRESNO (AP) — Stanford, No. 1 collegiate baseball team in the nation, was one game away from elimination after losing 7-3 to Fresno State Friday on the Stanford diamond in the opener of the best-of-three for the Distirct 8 NCAA title.

It would be all over should Fresno State, the California Collegiate Athletic Association champion with a 35-8 record, win the second game today in Fresno. There will be a doubleheader should Stanford, 31-3 as Pacific-8 champion, even the series.

Stanford pinned its hopes on sophomore Rod Poteete who has a 3-0 record. Fresno chose Tom Sharpe, 7-2.

Fresno broke a 3-3 tie in the ninth with four hits, including a triple by Buddy Vickers and a double by Dave Schmidt. Two Indians errors and two wild pitches figured in the four-run rally.

Stanford started Sandy Vance, 10-0. He gave way in the eighth to Don Rose who took the loss.

Fresno's Larry Gonsalves, 15-2, got off to a shaky start. Stanford's Ron Schotts slammed a two-run homer in the first inning.

San Rafael Nine Faces A Busy Four-Game Slate

The San Rafael Braves have only four practice games to go before they open their Western Baseball Association conference slate June 3 and they will be done in the next four days.

The Braves, with ex-Marin Catholic star Ben Burch and Bill Wakefield handling the starting chores, will take on the Fresno Yellowjackets in a doubleheader at San Rafael's Albert Field tomorrow beginning at 11 a.m.

On Memorial Day, the Braves will collide with San Carlos in another doubleheader at Albert Field beginning at noon.

The Braves now have a 6-2 practice game record.

Today is Saturday, May 27, the 147th day of 1967 with 218 to follow.

The moon is between the full phase and last quarter. The morning star is Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Born on this day in 1819 was American poet Julia Ward Howe.

On this day in history:

In 1935, the U.S. Supreme Court decided unanimously that the National Industrial Recovery Act was unconstitutional.

In 1941, the German battleship "Bismark" was sunk 400 miles west of Brest, France.

In 1942, Reinhard Heydrich, the hangman of Czechoslovakia, was murdered by patriots in that country.

A thought for the day — Spanish novelist Miguel de Cervantes once said: "My honour is dearer to me than my life."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Don't Always Depend Upon Old Habits To Score Well

Good habits will save you much time and effort, but you must know when to do independent thought instead of relying on your habits.

If somebody would only ring a bell to tell us when to start thinking we would all be far more successful bridge players.

Opening lead — ♡ J

LOW TO DUMMY

West opened the jack of hearts, and declarer played low from the dummy. East played low also, and South stole a trick with the singleton king.

Now he could afford to give up a trump trick, and his slam was home.

It's quite true that East should have played the ace of hearts, but this is a difficult play. We can't dismiss the actual play as senseless, because the hand was played in the finals of the 1965 Swedish national championships.

If you weren't looking at all of the cards, it might happen to you on a bad night.

PLACING BLAME

Most experts later blamed West for the bad result. West knew that he had a trump trick and he hoped to develop a heart trick. He should have opened a low heart rather than the jack.

If East has the ace of hearts, he will win the trick without having a problem. If East has the king of hearts behind the ace, the low lead is as good as the jack.

COST NOTHING

The low lead will cost nothing even if dummy has the queen and South has the ace of hearts. No lead matters if either declarer or the dummy has a singleton heart. If South has A-x of hearts with Q-x in the dummy, he will surely put up dummy's queen when a low heart is led, and then East will make good use of his king.

If somebody had rung a bell, West might have abandoned habit in choosing the right heart to lead.

DAILY QUESTION

What do you say?

ANSWER: Raise to two hearts.

This shows trump support, with about 6 to 9 points, counting distribution as well as high cards.

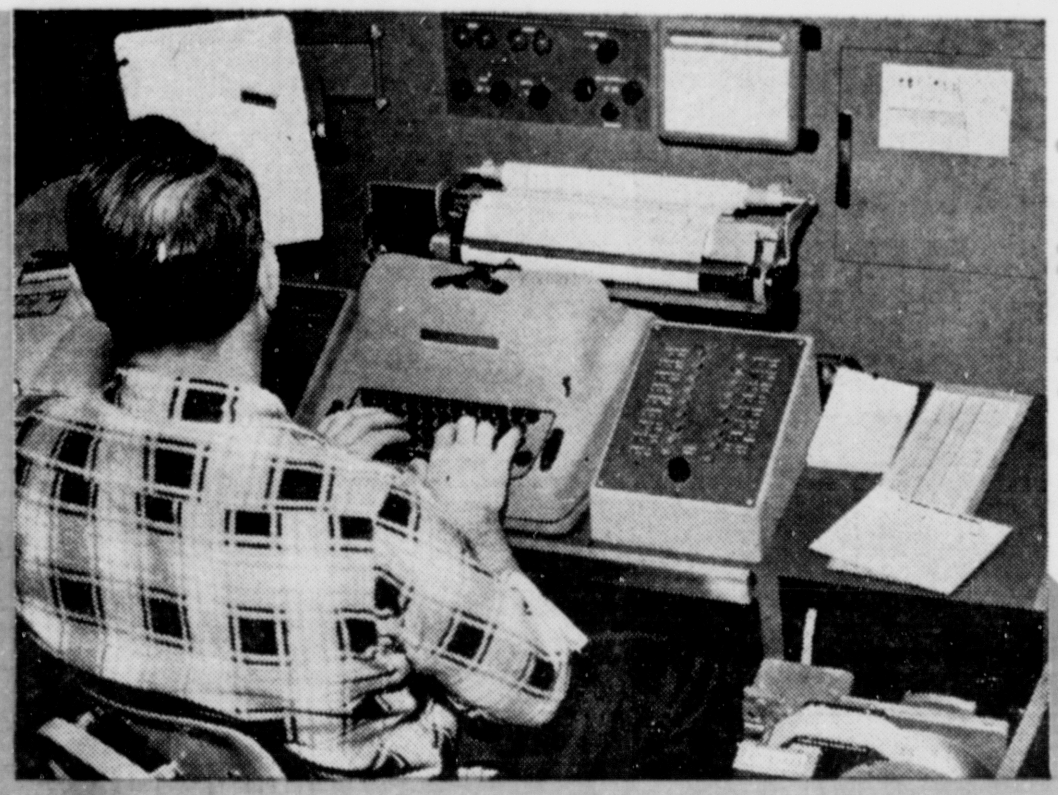
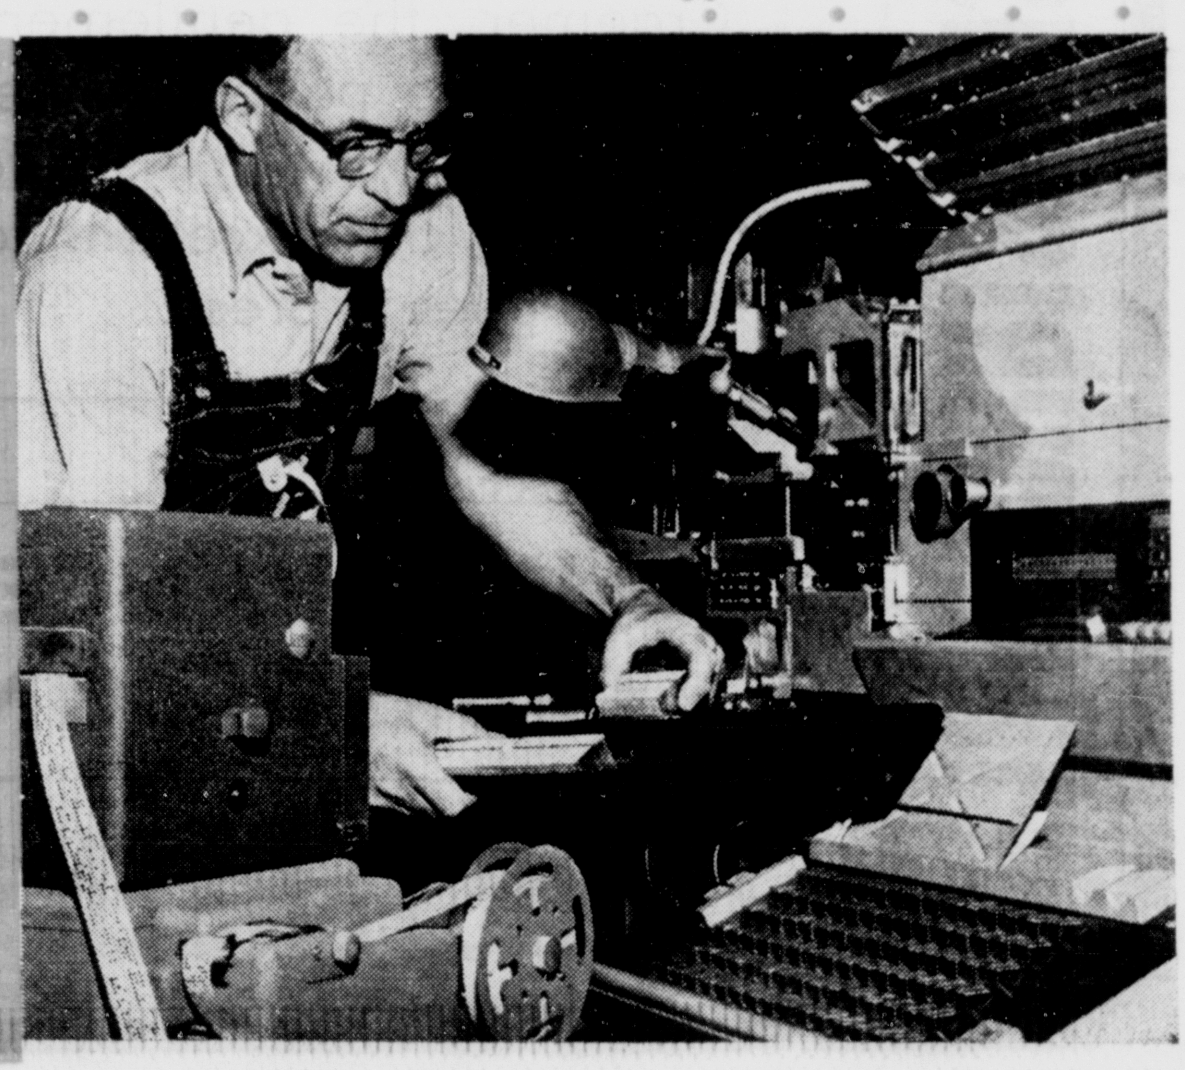
The I-J Story

The new technology in publishing



Your I-J has made far-ahead advances in electronics, in computerization, in new printing and building facilities--all to stay ahead of Marin's continuing growth and its need for a look-ahead newspaper.

COME INSIDE AND SEE



Independent Journal

SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, MAY 27, 1967

PHOTOGRAPHED FROM Fifth Avenue and A Street in San Rafael, the newly expanded Independent-Journal building at Fifth and B now looks like this. At its east end, nearest the camera, is the latest addition built to house the new five-unit Hoe Colormatic press. It was built on property acquired by California Newspapers Inc., publishers of the I-J, from the City of San Rafael, and was formerly the site of the San Rafael City Hall. Mid-State Construction Co. of San Francisco was the builder. Gromme and Priestley were the architects for the steel-frame project using more than 100 tons of steel and 1,500 cubic yards of reinforced concrete.

H.N. CHRISTENSEN CO.

HEARTIEST CONGRATULATIONS AND BEST WISHES to the I-J . . . Your present high status among newspapers is a tribute to the vision and energy of the late Roy Brown and Justus Craemer, the gentlemen who led the way in making the paper the best possible to serve this community. We salute the staff and management for the excellent job done every day that the I-J goes to press.

The I-J Keeps Step With Growing Marin

Newspaper Has Undergone Major Expansion Program

By DAVID DIETZ

A bold expansion program in recent years has enabled the Independent-Journal to match the rapid growth of Marin County and to compete successfully in the fast-changing communications field

In the last 20 years, the I-J has:

Erected a new plant, expanded a staff of about 25 persons to more than 200, opened four branch offices, and installed tons of new equipment to produce a bigger and better newspaper.

DEVELOPMENT has been coordinated with Marin's growth. When the San Rafael Daily Independent and Marin Journal were merged in 1948, the population of Marin was about 85,000. Today it exceeds 200,000.

I-J circulation, meanwhile, has climbed from about 12,000 two decades ago to nearly 42,000.

Credit for the paper's expansion is due largely to Roy A. Brown and Justus F. Craemer, owners of the Daily Independent who bought the Journal and combined the papers. As Marin grew after World War II, they were quick to meet its needs for newspaper services.

THE NEW plant, constructed in stages adjacent to the original office, was their epitaph. Both Brown and Craemer died in the spring of 1966.

Work on the facility began in 1956. A new main office, comprising 20,500 square feet, was finished in just over a year. It was built by Ralph E. Murphy and Sons, San Rafael contractors, and designed by Gromme and Priestley, San Rafael architects.

The editorial department was among the first to move into the new quarters. Other departments followed over a period of eight years as new construction and remodeling was completed. These included business, advertising, dispatch, composing room, stereotyping and photography personnel.

PERHAPS THE biggest addition on the plant site was made in the summer of 1965 when a new five-unit Hoe Colormatic press was installed in specially built quarters along Fifth Avenue. Cost of the press, which can print 70,000 papers an hour, and its building was one-and-a-half million dollars.

The press, one of the most advanced in the newspaper industry, doubled the capacity of the I-J's old unit. It enables production of an 80-page newspaper, with color, on a single run.

The three-story giant weighs 250 tons and requires 10 miles of power wiring to operate. In a normal day's work, it prints about one and nine-tenths million pages — representing about 75 miles of newsprint.

WITH NEW machinery to print the paper, the I-J also has purchased modern equipment to assemble it for the presses.

Recently installed in the composing room on the second floor of the new wing is a computer which swallows tape punched from copy and decides when to space and hyphenate type. The "Justape" computer's speed: 6,000 lines an hour.

From the computer, the tape is fed into Linotypes which set the words into metal automatically. Of the 14 Linotype machines in the composing room, six are capable of setting type automatically.

A NEW Linofilm photo-compositor sets display advertising. Using a keyboard similar to that on a typewriter, the operator punches out tape which is fed into a machine to create a photographic image of the advertisement. Typographers then insert the ad in its proper place on the page of metal.

The I-J was among the first newspapers in California to use the Linofilm

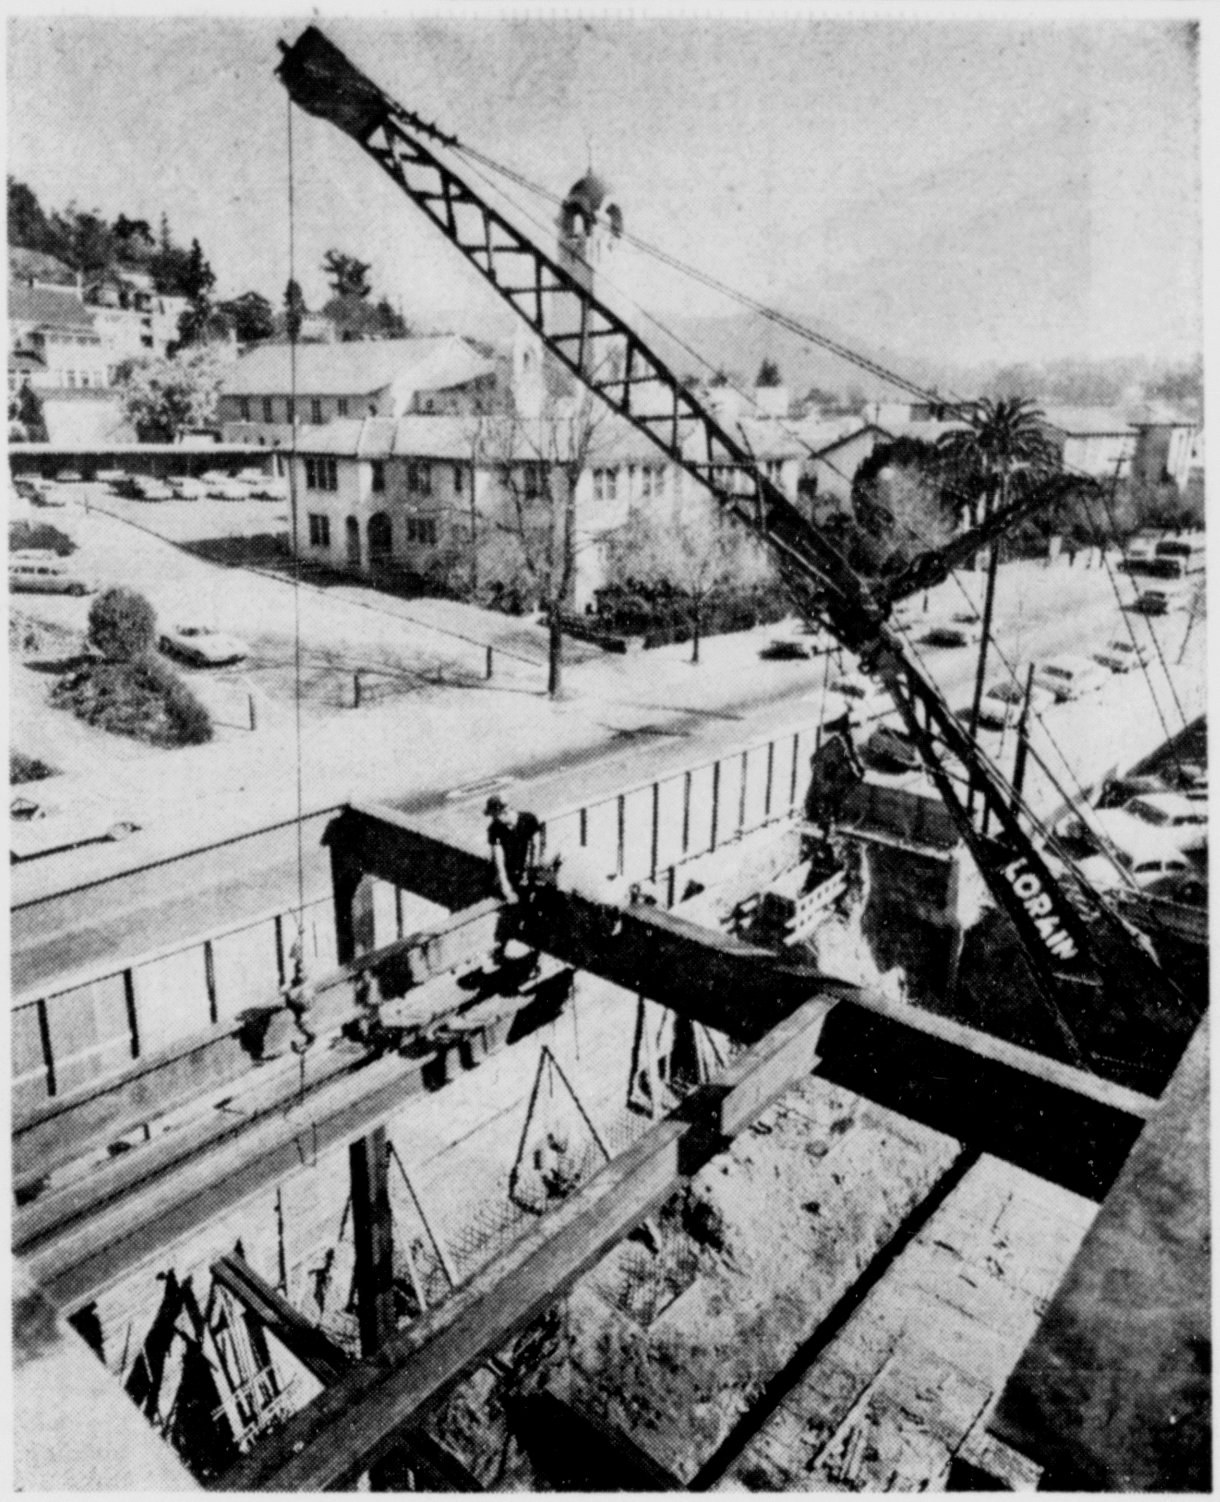
Modern facilities also have been installed above the composing room in the engraving department. Included are a PAKO processor, which automatically develops and dries exposed film for processing; a DM 48 etching machine, which can etch two pages at a time; a darkroom, acid dispensing equipment and modern cameras.

THE DEPARTMENT also has been redecorated. A new floor and air conditioning are among the improvements.

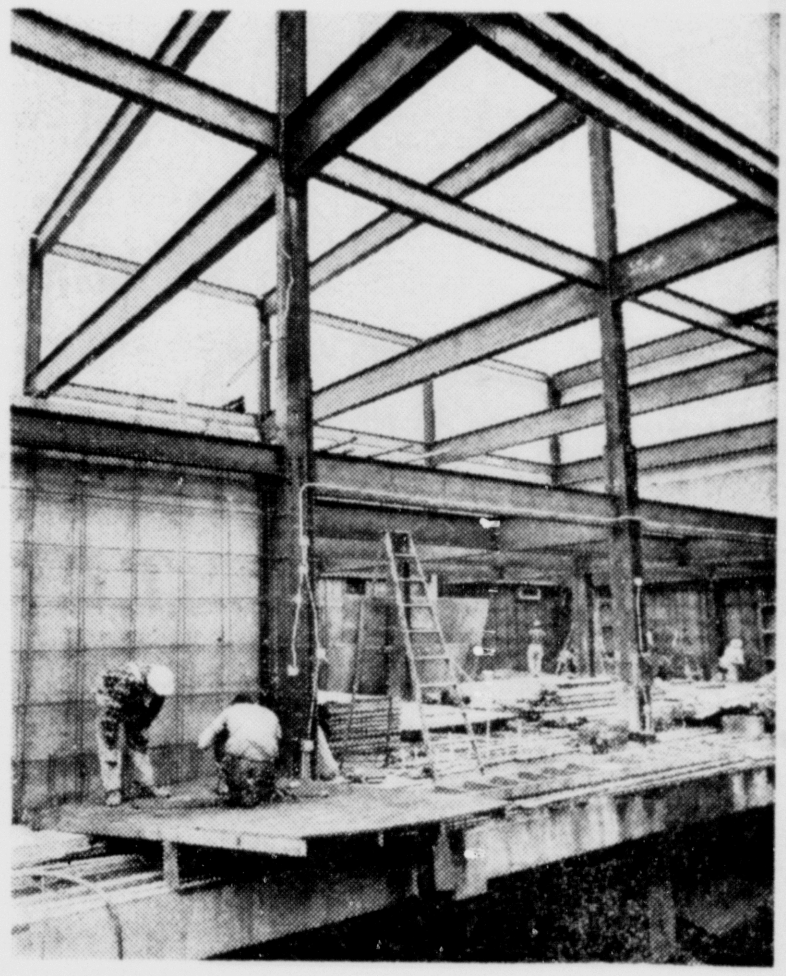
Most of the I-J's business chores are performed by an NCR 395 accounting system, installed recently in the business office on the main floor of the new building. Figuring swiftly, it can draw up the newspaper's million-dollar payroll in about three hours, as compared to the 12 man hours formerly required.

The machine also breezes through tax reports, circulation figures and posting of cash and charges.

TO MINIMIZE lifting of heavy metal plates, the stereotype department has been relocated next door to the presses. The plates, which once had to be carried to an elevator, now ride rollers to the new Hoe unit.



MARINITES watched with interest as the new addition to the Independent-Journal building took shape along Fifth Avenue. Excavation began in late 1964 after the awarding of the contract to Mid-State Construction Co. for a figure of $378,000. By fall of 1965, the new Hoe Colormatic press was operating within the new edifice, which also provided space for other mechanical department expansion. Independent-Journal photographers kept readers of the newspaper informed on the progress of the project with photographs like these.



Classified advertising, located next to the business office, has a new look. A counter with stools for walk-in advertisers has been installed, along with improved telephone service to handle incoming calls, new telephone headsets for the clerks and a pneumatic tube to the composing room.

New reader services were introduced recently in the news room. Among these are expanded financial and picture coverage. More than 100,000 words are teletyped into the editorial department daily from AP and UPI machines and the I-J bureaus in Novato, the Marin Civic Center, Corte Madera, Tiburon and Mill Valley.

SPORTS HAS added an AP teletype and a reporter, boosting the staff to three full-time members.

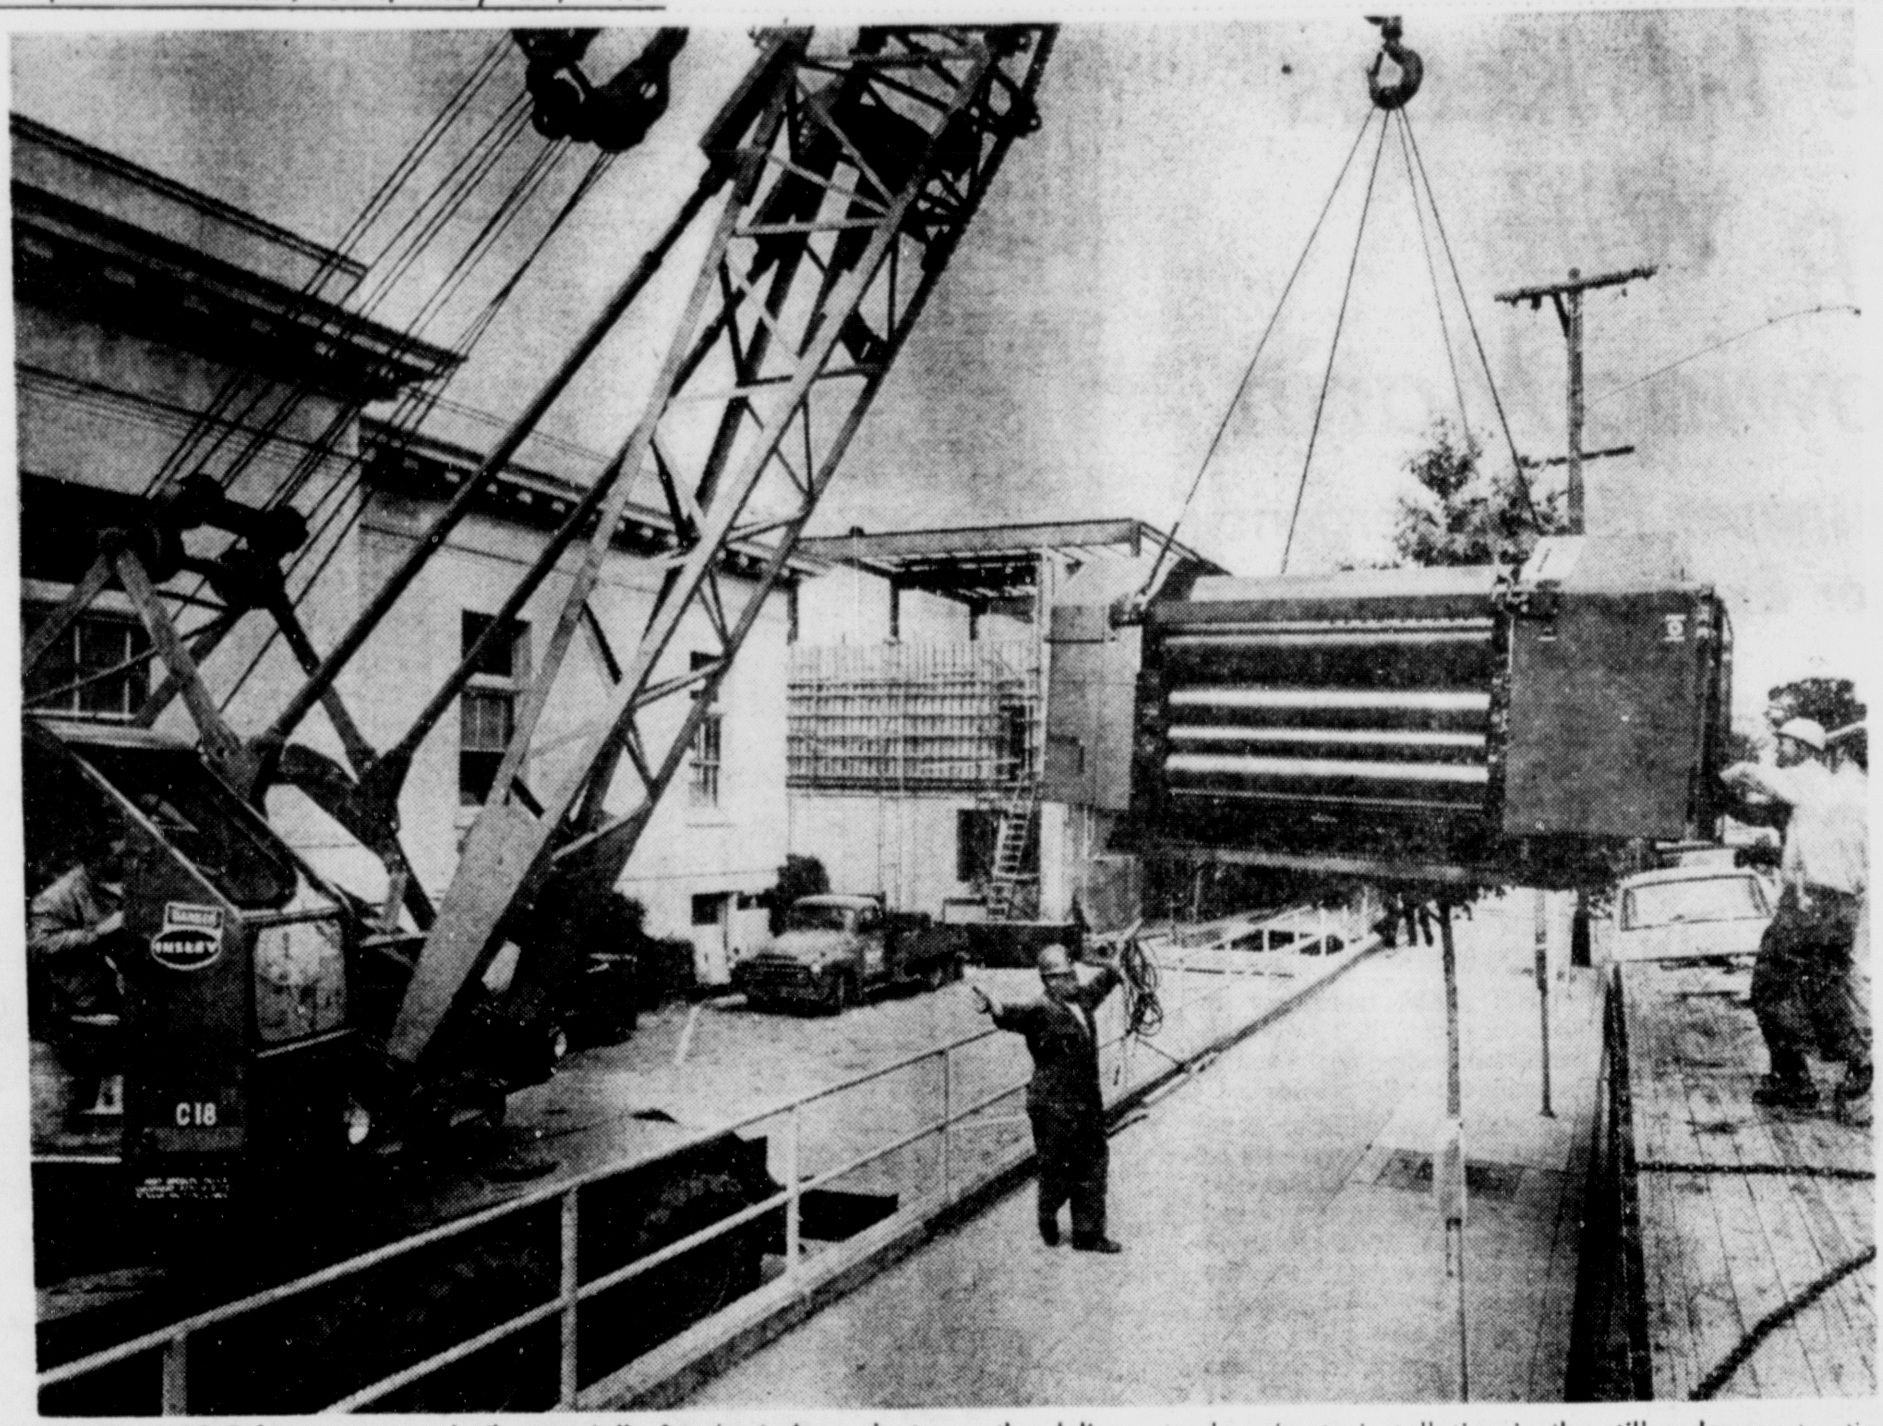
With new quarters behind the newsroom, I-J photographers are able to process film in separate rooms and photograph set-up pictures in a small room near the darkroom entrance.

Also with new space, the advertising services department has improved its filing system to offer more efficient service to the I-J advertising salesmen.

THE CIRCULATION department boasts a fleet of new delivery trucks, including 12 added in the last year and a half. A staff of 800 carrier boys delivers the I-J to Marin homes.

Completion of I-J expansion into the new quarters came last fall when the executive offices were opened on the third floor.

Development of the paper will not stop here, however. Wishard A. Brown, publisher, and Jack Craemer, editor and co-publisher, have assured the people of Marin that the I-J will continue to expand to meet the county's needs.



THE NEW HOE Colormatic press built especially for the Independent-Journal arrived in units, five in all. One is being lifted here from the delivery truck, prior to installation in the still-under-construction building. The press assembled weighs 250 tons and stands nearly three stories high.

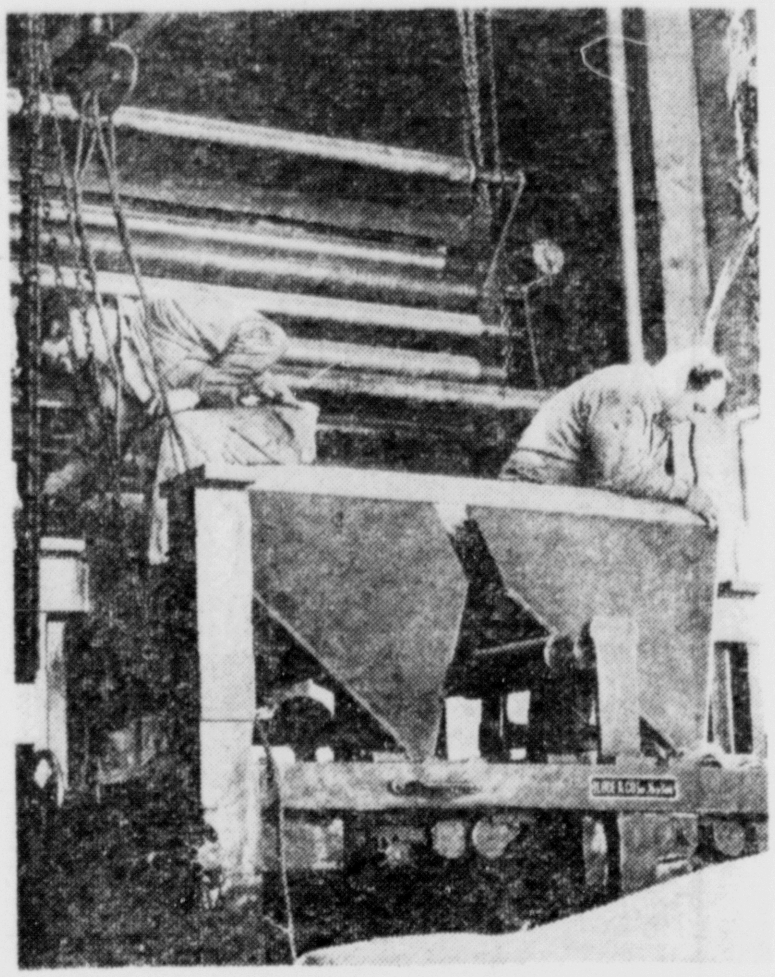
BECAUSE OF THE tremendous weight of the new Hoe Colormatic press, advance preparations for its arrival had to include this foundation inside the new press building, laid on bedrock with concrete and steel to a depth of five feet.



THE INSTALLATION of the new Hoe Colormatic press was a job for experts. And they came from Newspaper Equipment Services, the installer for the mammoth piece of printing equipment. The men, seen at work in photos above, were under the direction of a supervisor supplied by the manufacturer of the press, R. Hoe and Co., world's largest maker of newspaper presses.

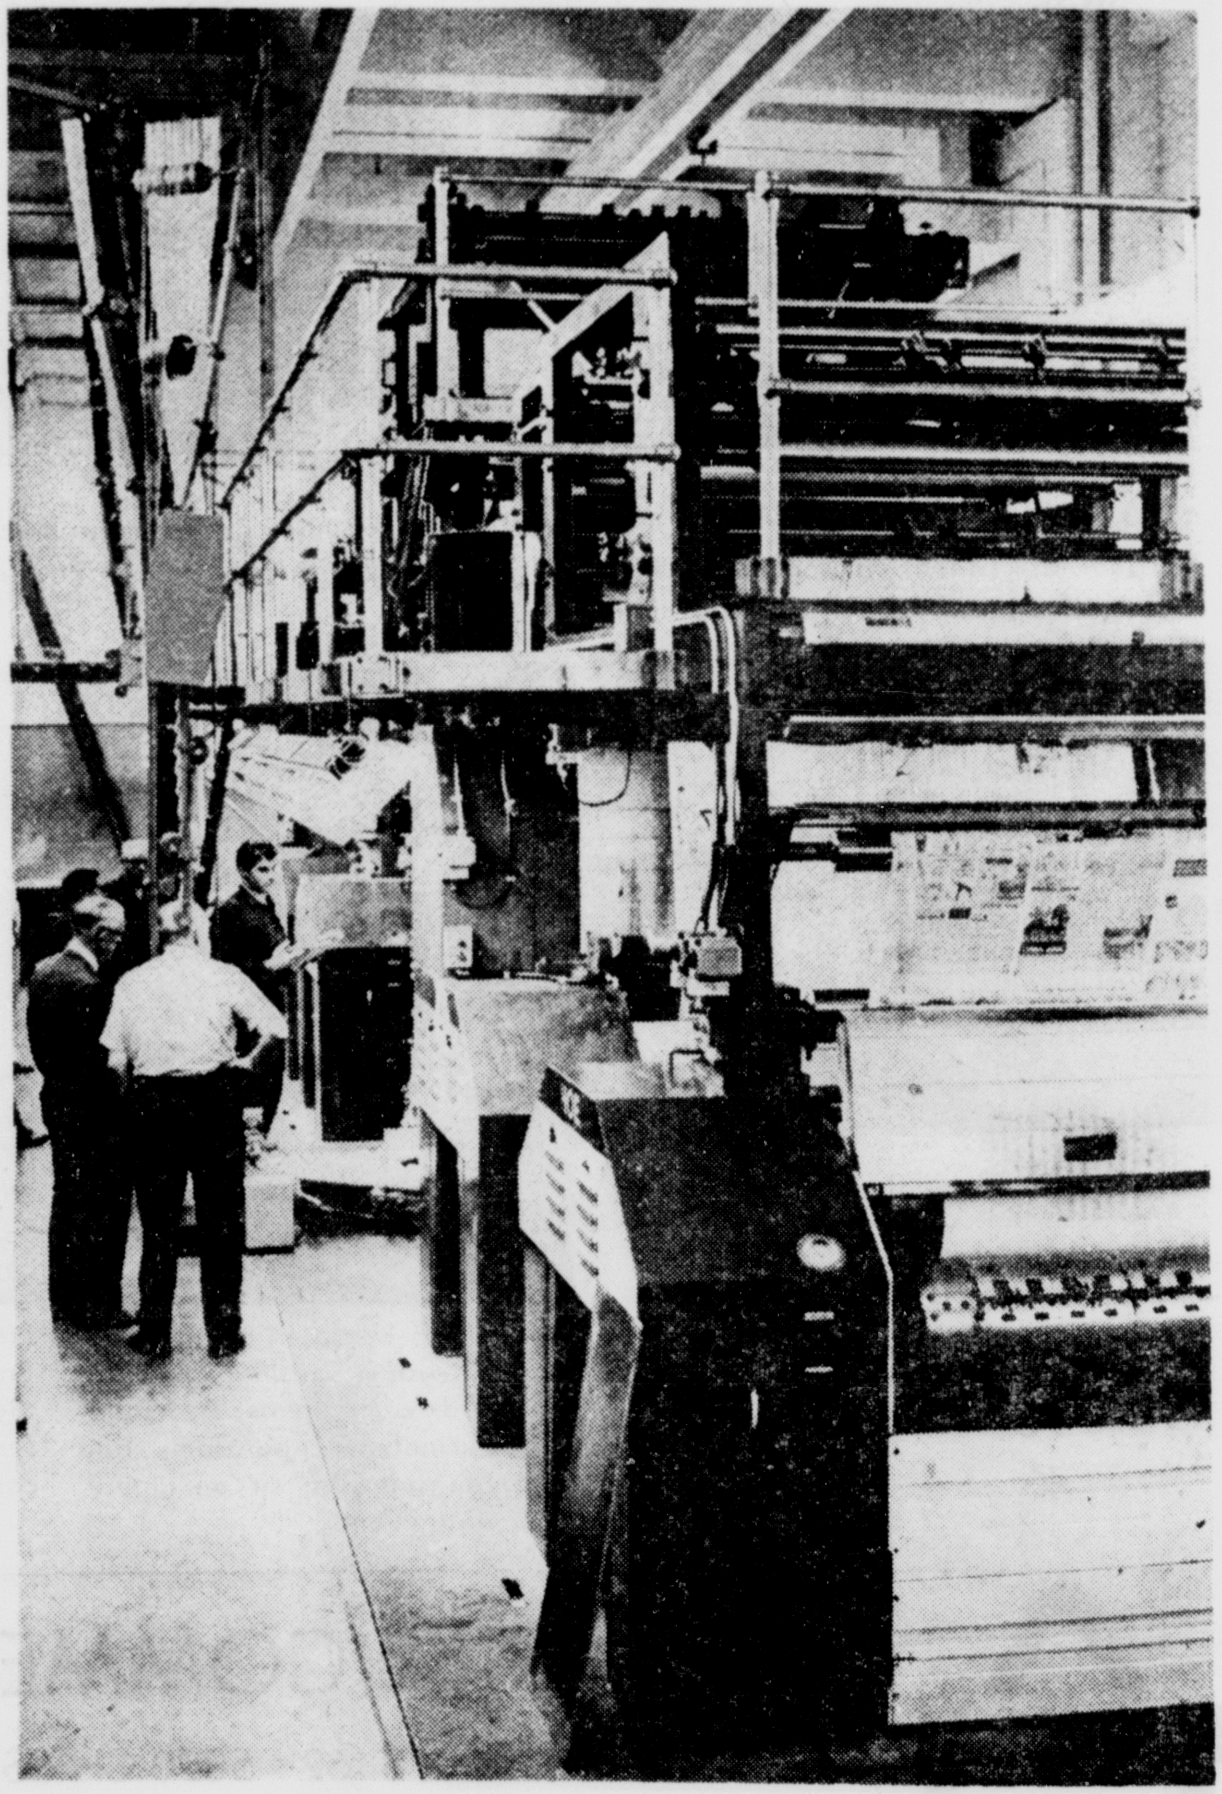
PAGE PLATES from the stereotype department are being placed on the new Hoe Colormatic press at left. At top is a color unit, below it a black-and-white unit. Above, an end view of the five-unit press in operation. It can produce a paper of 80 pages including 16 with color, and turn out 70,000 folded newspapers an hour. Conveyor at left carries the printed papers to the circulation department's mailing room.



ROY A. BROWN, the late publisher of the Independent-Journal, could experience a deep sense of satisfaction as he joined Gordon Dixon, the newspaper's mechanical superintendent, to watch the new Hoe Colormatic press in operation. It represents the most advanced approach to newspaper printing.

EXPERIENCE IS WHAT COUNTS!!!

CIMINO ELECTRIC CO., INC., was selected by the Independent-Journal on the basis of its experience in the installation of electrical wiring and equipment in the commercial field. The pre-scheduling and detailing work amounted to over 100 man-hours to insure uninterrupted operation of the presses and a rapid, efficient change-over of operations. More than 2,576 man-hours were required to install 1,000,000 feet of electrical wiring, electronic control equipment and other electrical material.

Cimino Electric Co.'s success is attributed to its experienced men. Sebastian 'Jack' Cimino, President and General Manager of Cimino Electric Co., Inc., has been in the electrical contracting business in Marin County the past 22 years, formerly located in San Francisco. Mr. Cimino has over 45 years experience in the electrical industry; Arnold Segerquist, Superintendent, 40 years experience, and Fred Brusati, General Foreman, 35 years, for a combined total of 120 years. Due to the tremendous growth and expansion of the electrical industry, the experience of these key men has enabled them to keep abreast of the latest developments in complicated electrical applications.

Major installations made by Cimino Electric Company during the past several years include College of Marin Student Center Building, Petrini's Market, Dominican College, Northgate Shopping Center, and Fairchild Semi-Conductor Corp., as well as numerous schools, office buildings and other commercial buildings. In addition to electrical installations, Cimino Electric Company offers 24-hour service by licensed electricians for maintenance and repair with 14 trucks available for service calls.

A MAJOR STEP in the Independent-Journal's movement with automated advances in newspaper printing is the use of coded tape for the setting of hot type. At left can be seen the teletype machines upon which the newspaper receives wire service copy coded on tape. The Elektron Linotype machines through which the tape will be run can be seen in the composing room background. Local news copy can also be set on these machines, after first being punched onto tape as shown above.

CONGRATULATIONS!

No person, no group, can ever know as much about a city as the people who publish its newspapers. Their specialty is knowledge in depth about the citizens, the personalities, the finances, and the prospects of the community they serve.

So when the publishers of the Independent-Journal decided to invest in a magnificent new plant, they were saying some important things about you and your city, about their confidence in your future.

And the fact that they knew so much about you before they took this step should make everyone in town feel pretty optimistic. That is why we congratulate not just the Independent-Journal, but all of Marin County. Seems you have a good thing going . . .

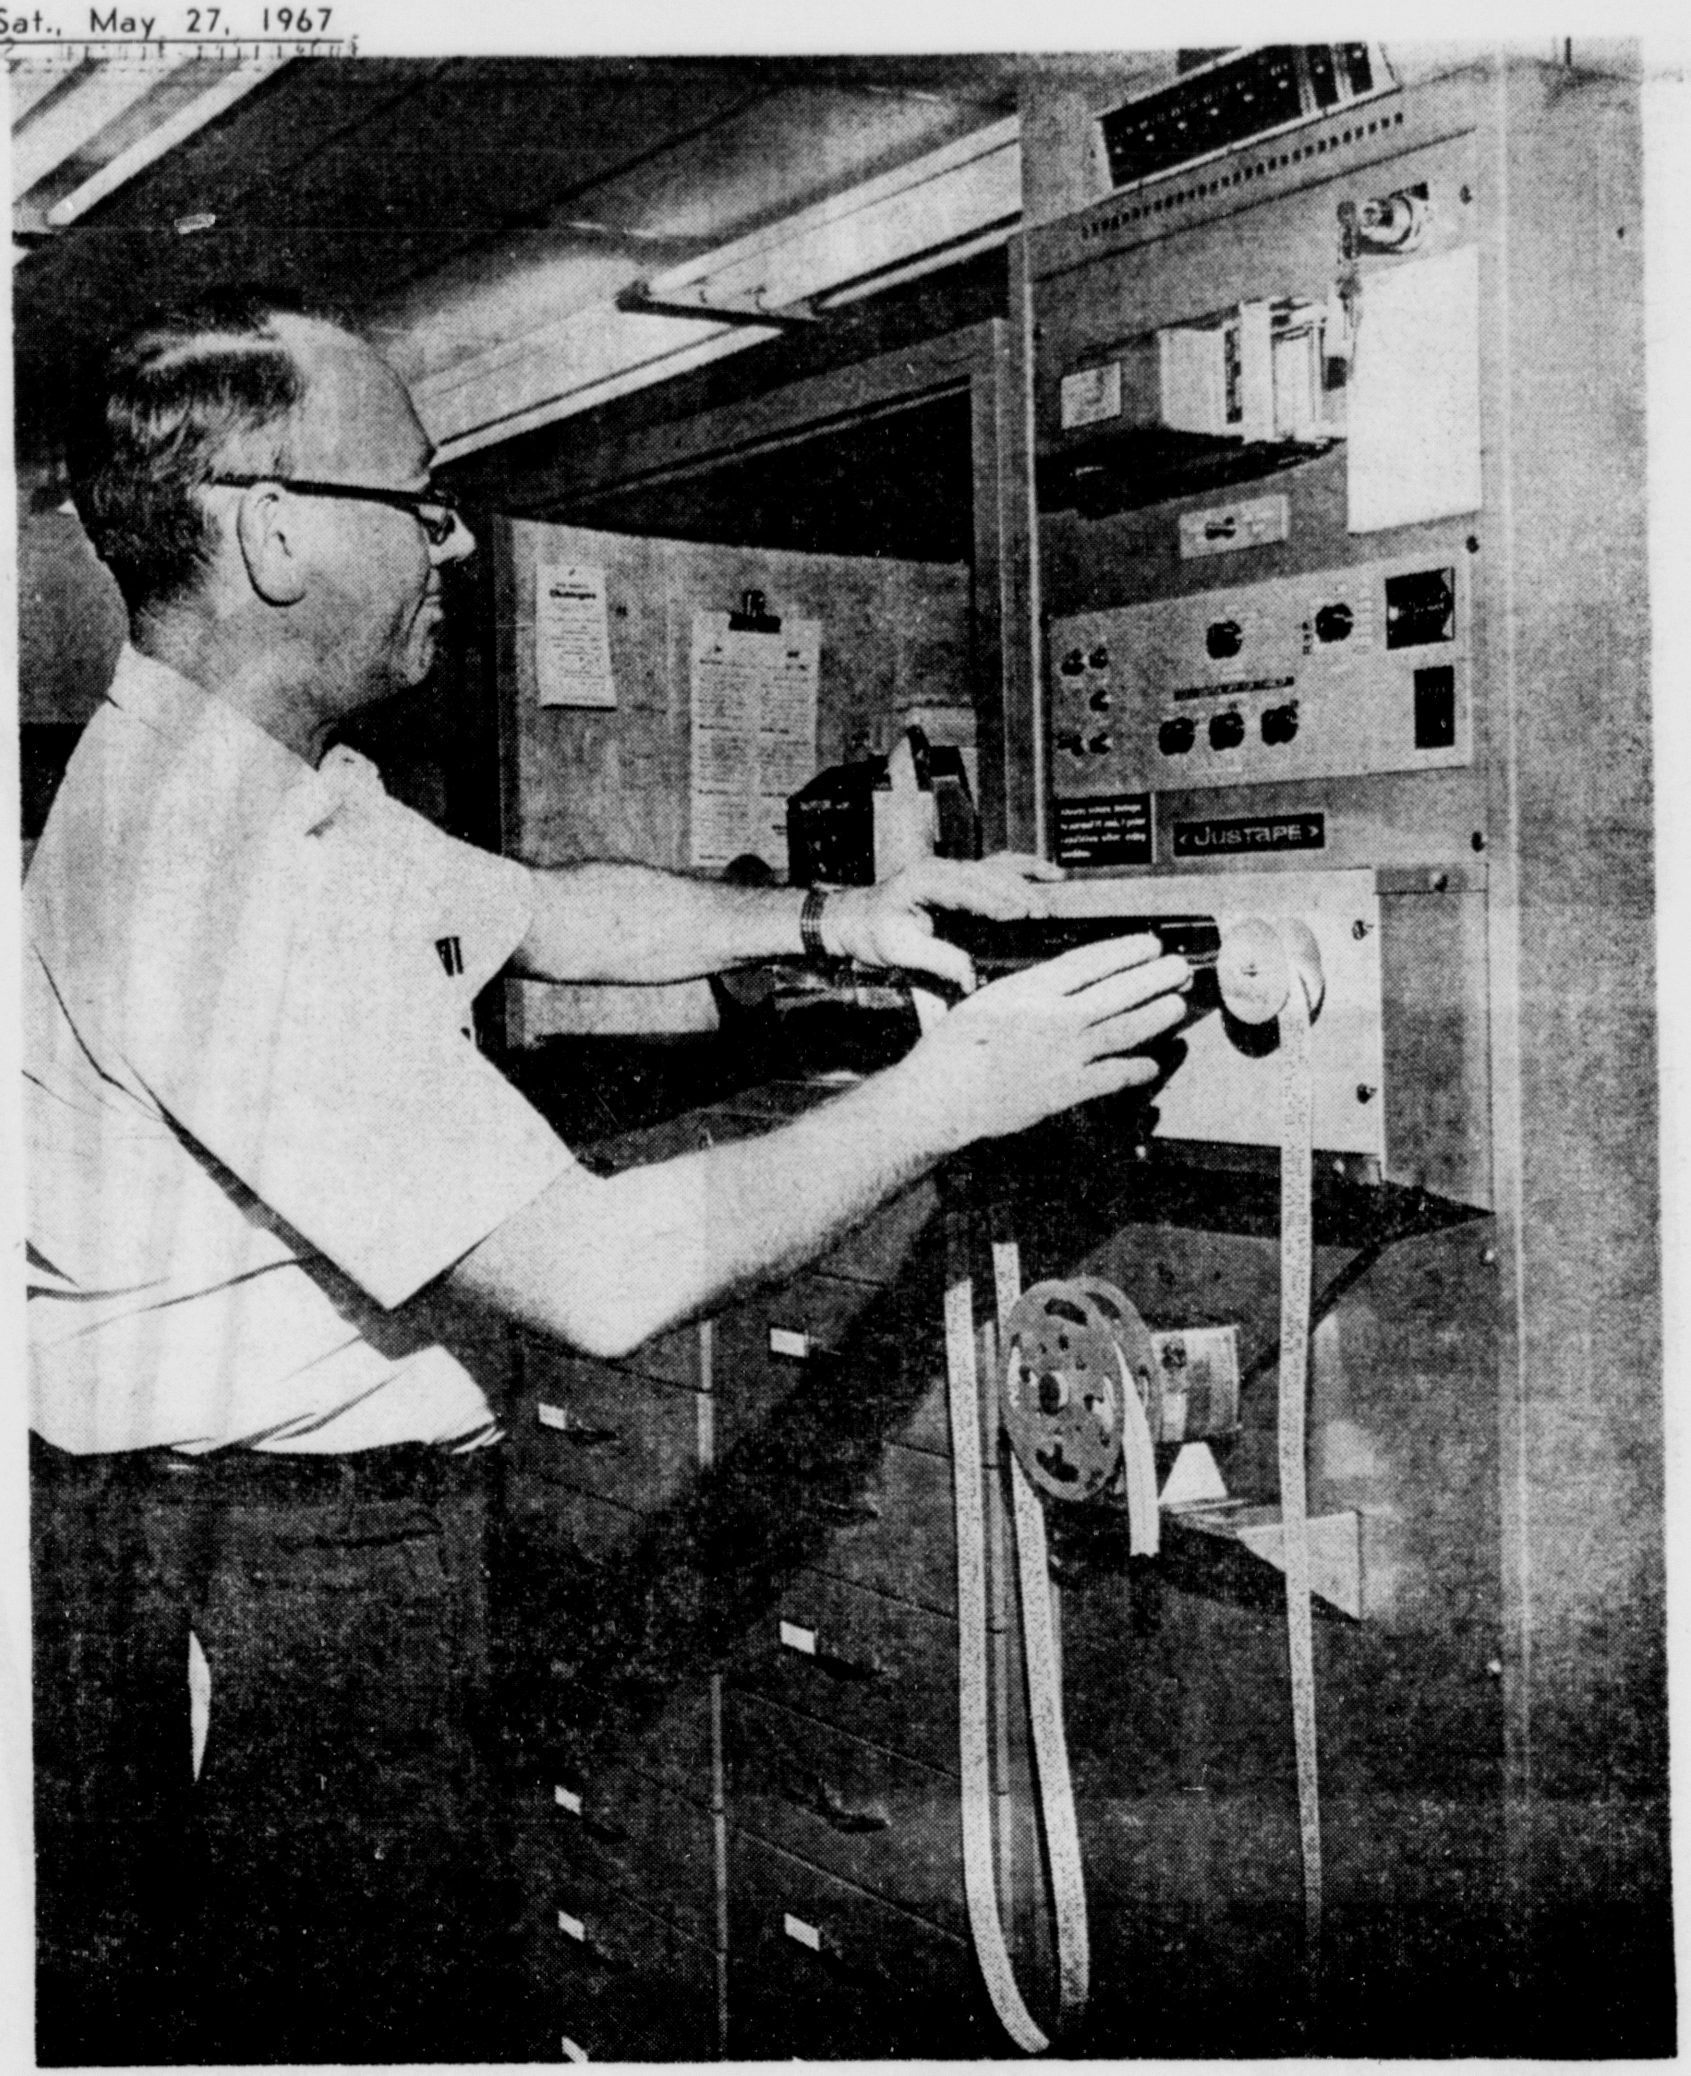
STRAIGHT UP!



A PRODUCT of the computer age is this 1967 addition to the Independent-Journal's composing room. It is called the Justape computer. And what it does is to take "raw" coded tape and so arrange words and phrases that they fit into one-column widths with uniform margins. The computer even hyphenates when this is necessary to make the words fit evenly into lines. In the past, a Linotype operator did this manually. More recently, a tape puncher took over that job. But the Justape makes possible a much faster output. From the computer, the tape will go to the Linotype to be converted into metal type from which the newspaper will ultimately be printed. Hal McDowell is the operator.

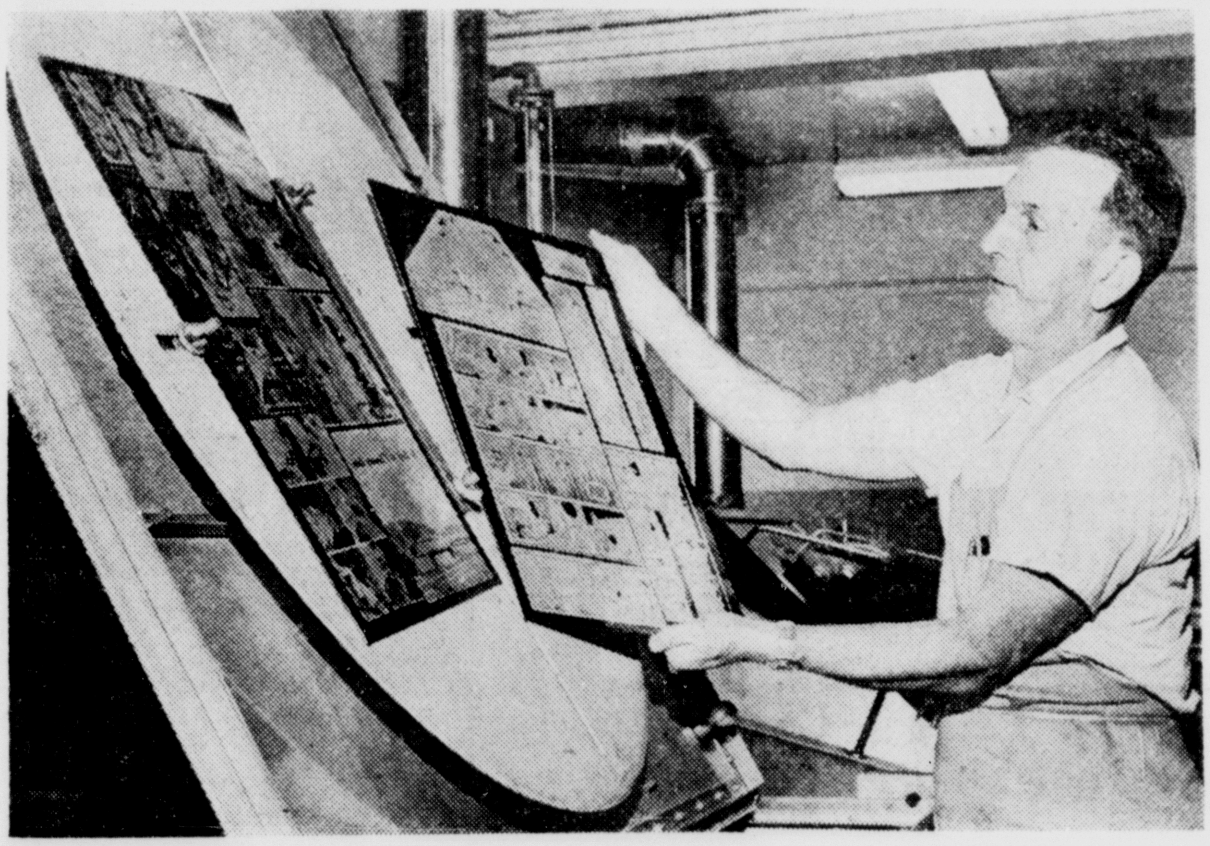
IN THE ALL-NEW stereotype department of the Independent-Journal, an $80,000 Wood tension plate-caster not only casts, but mills and cools the page plates before sending them on their way to the pressroom. Plates are handled automatically from casting to their return, after use, to the 10-ton melting pot.

MOST OF THE display advertising now seen in the Independent-Journal is the product of the Linofilm, a new photo-composition "cold type" technique in which the I-J has pioneered in California.



NEW AND MODERN equipment in the engraving department includes the etching machine being used here by Cecil Landis, department foreman, which handles two plates as compared to one by its predecessor. A second camera and a new printing frame are other recent additions.

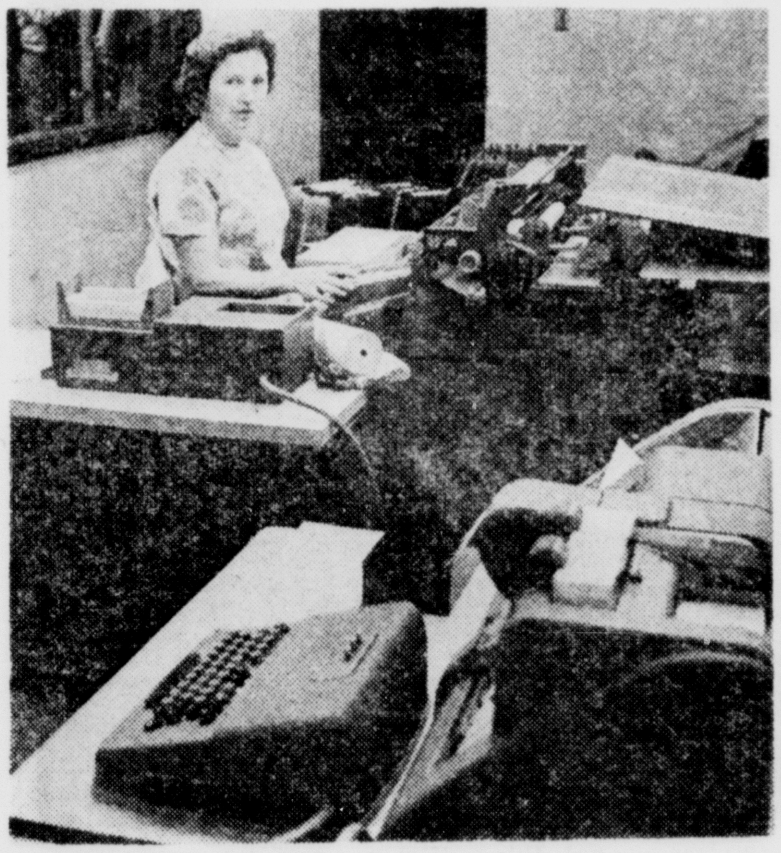
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING staff members of the Independent-Journal found new and spacious quarters in the newspaper's expansion program. Customer service counter with stools and attentive clerks await clients just inside the I-J entry door at the corner of Fifth and B.

A REVOLVING DOOR is something of a novelty in San Rafael, but the Independent-Journal installed one at its new entrance at the corner of Fifth Avenue and B Street, leading to the switchboard, the classified advertising department and the business office.

THE INDEPENDENT-Journal began operations in its new business office with a new two-position switchboard, replacing an old one-position board. The switchboard also serves as an information desk for I-J visitors.



IN THE BUSINESS office, the work of making out the payroll, tax reports, etc., is now handled quickly by a computerized NCR 395 accounting system.

THE MAILING ROOM of the circulation department has shared in the Independent-Journal's growing trend toward automation. Conveyors transport the newspapers, fresh from the pressroom. While counting is manual, the papers are bundled automatically. From the mailing room, the bundled I-Js go out onto the new loading dock and to the distributors responsible for seeing that the newspapers reach the carriers and the final step in the day of an I-J—the delivery.

MAJOR FIGURES IN the growth of the Independent-Journal, including the planning for and carrying out of the most recent expansion program, were the late Roy A. Brown, left, publisher, and the late Justus F. Craemer, chairman of the board of California Newspapers Inc. They, with a third partner, William Hart, acquired the San Rafael Daily Independent in 1937, and later purchased the Marin Journal. Both men died in 1966 a short time apart.

The Story Of Marin's Daily Newspaper

Independent-Journal Has Its Roots In Two Pioneer Publications

The Independent-Journal, now a part of progressive Marin County, dates back 106 years to a hand-printed operation serving but a few early settlers.

Marin's newspaper, which now requires more than 200 employees and complex machinery to produce, once was put out in a small room by a Maryland printer and his son, a miner.

The newspaper that Jerome Barney and his son, Al, printed — the Marin Journal — was merged in 1948 with the San Rafael Independent, founded in 1900. Thus, the Independent-Journal was born.

THE JOURNAL began publication March 23, 1861, as a weekly. It was a four-column newspaper, hand set in small type. Advertising occupied half of page one. Spot news went inside.

But development was slow, and Jerome Barney sold the paper in 1872 to Simon Barstow, a Connecticut printer who came to California in 1854. Under Barstow, the paper began to flourish because Marin's dairy industry was booming and construction of a railroad had started.

Also by this time, the paper had a political identity — Republican — and it rapped the drums hard for the party.

IN 1897, BARSTOW sold the Journal to Wallace C. Brown, a local newspaperman who promised improvements. But eight months later, he sold out, too.

The buyers were Stephen and Cassius Clay Olmstead, brothers from San Diego. They purchased new type, presses and Linotype machines for the Journal plant, located on Fourth Street between B and C streets. Circulation grew under the Olmsteads.

Soon, another weekly — the Independent — began publication. The founder was H. H. Granice, a San Francisco printer, who opened the paper across the street from the Journal.

Granice brought in his daughter, Celeste, as editor in 1902. A versatile newspaperwoman who previously had written for the San Francisco papers, she worked a 12-hour day — selling advertising, handling business affairs and even covering the police beat.

But when his daughter was unable to convert the paper into a daily, Granice sold the Independent in 1903 to Michael F. (Mike) Cochrane, a 27-year-old insurance man. Cochrane later was to be named San Rafael postmaster by President Woodrow Wilson and became a member of the State Harbor Commission.

COCHRANE, discarding the Independent's non-partisan editorial policy, hoisted Democratic colors. He enlarged the staff and moved the newspaper to a converted ice house at B and Julia streets, site of the present I-J.

HARRY LUTGENS was the publisher of the San Rafael Daily Independent from whom Roy A. Brown, Justus F. Craemer and William Hart purchased the paper in 1937. Lutgens, publisher of Western Banker, is still a San Rafael resident.

Meanwhile, the Journal had a new owner. He was E. L. (Ed) Kynoch, a former Sacramento newspaper reporter and school principal, who bought the paper of Stephen Olmstead.

Kynoch moved the Journal to Fourth and E streets. Several times he sold the paper only to buy it back, finally taking in partners. Kynoch died in 1942.

KYNOCH'S DAUGHTER, June, published the paper about a year before selling it to T. Fred Bagshaw, then chairman of the Marin Board of Supervisors and now assistant director of the State Department of Public Works.

After increasing plant size and with circulation about 1,500, Bagshaw sold the Journal in 1947 to Henry W. Jackson, member of a prominent Connecticut newspaper family who owned a string of Marin weeklies.

Jackson began publishing the paper twice a week. In May, 1948, with an enlarged staff, the Journal became a daily.

COCHRANE DIED in 1926, and his family sold the Independent to Harry Lutgens, former owner of a Sonoma County newspaper who had become secretary to former Gov. Friend W. Richardson.

In 1927, Lutgens made the paper Marin's first daily, changed its name to the Daily Independent, and built a second story on the plant.

He owned the paper 11 years, watching it grow to a circulation of about 10,000. The buyers in 1937 were the late Roy A. Brown, publisher of the Sanger Herald; the late Justus F. Craemer and the late William O. Hart, who were partners in the Orange Daily News in Southern California. The three formed California Newspapers Inc.

LUTGENS, still a resident of San Rafael, is editor and publisher of Western Banker magazine.

Under Brown, Craemer and Hart, the Independent prospered. New machinery was installed, more employees were hired and news coverage was expanded.

On Nov. 30, 1948, six months after Jackson turned the Journal into a daily, Brown and Craemer — Hart was killed in a 1942 plane crash — bought the newspaper and merged it with the Daily Independent.

After completion of a new I-J plant, publisher Brown and Craemer, board chairman of California Newspapers Inc., both died in the spring of 1966. Their sons, Wishard A. Brown and Jack Craemer, succeeded them as president and publisher and editor and co-publisher, respectively.

The Golden Gate Bridge Has A Birthday

Our Golden Gate Bridge Turns 30 Today

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

"The construction of the Golden Gate Bridge certainly was the single most influental man-made event in all of Marin's history."

It is an especially significant year for the dramatic span, for it marks the 30th anniversary of the bridge.

AND TODAY — May 27 — is an especially important day. It is the "birthday" of the bridge, for on May 27, 1937, the bridge was first opened to pedestrian traffic. The following day vehicular traffic began to move across it.

The population of Marin County then was less than 50,000. Much of the growth that has followed has been made possible by the existence of what is probably the most famous bridge in the Americas, and one of the most famous in all the world.

Talk about spanning the Golden Gate had been heard well in advance of the launching of the ambitious construction program.

THE LATE James Wilkins, newspaper man and former mayor of San Rafael, wrote an article in the San Francisco Bulletin on Aug. 26, 1916, outlining earlier plans of the Central Pacific Railroad.

Wilkins wrote then: "In 1872 I was present at a session of Marin supervisors when Charles Crocker explained his plans, among which was a suspension bridge across the Golden Gate. Detailed plans and estimates for such a bridge were made by the Central Pacific engineers . . ."

Of himself, Wilkins wrote: "I am a graduate civil engineer, and know a thing or two about applied mathematics and mechanics," and with characteristic humor: "I am familiar with construction work, from building pigsties to building railroads—I have built both."

THE WRITER then described his own ideas for a bridge across the Golden Gate, "giving a continuous dry-shod passage around the entire circuit of our inland sea."

Wilkins pointed out that such a bridge should appeal to San Francisco with "overwhelming force" because "the northern coast counties, almost an empire in extent with potentialities barely surface-scratched, contain a present population that has passed well beyond the 200,000 mark . . . offer room and opportunity for at least two million people . . . Nature has tied their fortunes to San Francisco."

Wilkins went on: "Such a bridge would be of the suspension type, almost 150 feet above high water, sufficient to clear the tallest ships and offer no interference with navigation."

HE DETAILED how the bridge should be built from the rocky bluff of Lime Point and on the high ground above Fort Point. "The towers, over which the cables pass, would be so located as to give a central span of 3,000 feet and side spans of approximately 1,000 feet."

The writer advocated a railroad line on the bridge. He also said: "From this plan might be omitted the upper or promenade deck leaving only rail and automobile roadways."

Wilkins' proposal engendered interest but no action.

THE OFFICIAL conception of the Golden Gate Bridge project came Aug. 25, 1919, when Rich-

THE FATHER of the Golden Gate Bridge was chief engineer Joseph B. Strauss, the man who played the key role in its planning and then directed its construction. But a great many people played a part in the gigantic engineering and construction feat. Strauss died shortly after his masterpiece opened in 1937.

ard J. Welch, then a San Francisco supervisor introduced a resolution, unanimously adopted by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, directing the promotion of legislation necessary to make the Golden Gate Bridge a reality. Welch was then chairman of the San Francisco Commercial Development and Trans-Bay Bridge Committee.

As a result Joseph B. Strauss of Chicago, world-known bridge engineer, was called upon to submit a plan. Strauss concluded from a preliminary investigation that the gate could be bridged, but a span approximately 4,000 feet long would be required, more than two times as long as any span yet built.

Enthusiasm grew in San Francisco and in the counties north of the bay. Most of the counties sent representatives to a meeting called in Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, on Jan. 13, 1923, when the Bridging of the Golden Gate Association was formed.

AN EXECUTIVE committee to spearhead the drive was appointed. This committee decided a bill should be introduced in the 1923 California Legislature to create a bridge district to finance, construct and operate the bridge. Opposition was strong from railroads, ferry companies and lumber interests.

The bridge bill was passed. In the spring of 1924, Marin and

THIRTY-years-old today, the Golden Gate Bridge has played a vital role in the economic growth of the North Bay Area. It has established itself, too, as one of the world's major tourist attractions, an engineering feat that 30 years after its completion still amazes and impresses visitors from many lands. Building Of The Bridge

San Francisco counties made joint application to the U.S. War Department for authorization to build the bridge on the basis of plans by Strauss. On May 6, 1924, the first War Department hearing was held in San Francisco. John W. Weeks, secretary of war, on Dec. 20, 1924, notified the committee the plans had been approved.

It seems impossible now, that there should have been strong opposition to construction of the Golden Gate span.

R. A. O'BRIEN, publisher of the Ukiah Republican who was a director of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, told of the bitter fight waged by some of the northern counties. He wrote: "Lake County would not go into the bridge district. The redwood timber interests had kept Humboldt County out. Mendocino County, by the narrowest margin, had gone into the bridge district, but a tremendous drive, financed by the redwood timber interests, to take the county out, was started.

"Men and women, paid by funds from the timber interests, were sent about the county. They went from ranch to ranch telling the owners the bridge would cost more than 100 million dollars and that their ranches would be confiscated for taxes.

"They said the only way in which the politicians who were promoting the bridge, could be stopped would be by having the board of supervisors of the county rescind its resolution making the county a member of the bridge district.

"THE FARM Bureau, anti-bridge, went in solid; chambers of commerce were worked on to pass hostile resolutions and the Bar Association opposed the formation of the district. All but two newspapers fought Mendocino County going into the district.

"In my case more than 250 subscribers stopped my paper because I took a stand for the bridge.

"The fight developed quickly. It grew tense. Then it became bitter. Caspar Ornbaum, San Francisco attorney, was picked to make the fight for the anti-bridge people. Soon after this, a war chest to pay the lawyers was needed and printed forms were distributed which pledged the signers to guarantee to give certain sums in installments to fight the project and 'save the ranches' . . ."

PROPAGANDA was launched to prey on the fears of the people.

The ranchers were warned that space between two points on the Golden Gate was so vast that when the cable had been spun, it would weigh so much no human power could raise it to the top of the towers and, even if this were done, the weight of the cables would pull down the towers.

Just about this time a great earthquike fault was "discovered" at exactly the place where the piers were to be built.

THE FIGHT became bitterer and bitterer. The pro-bridge forces, headed by the late George H. Harlan of Sausalito, a brilliant lawyer, fought back, and as O'Brien explained: "Mendocino County supervisors by a four to one vote remained in the bridge district. Had Mendocino County quit, the entire bridge district would have been dissolved."

But the anti-forces continued their fight. Suits were filed to keep the county from entering the bridge district and this case was carried to the Supreme Court of the United States and was lost there by the bridge foes.

Because Humboldt and Lake counties did not "come into" the bridge district, amendments to the Bridge Act were introduced in the 1925 Legislature and passed.

THE LONG FIGHT to prevent the Golden Gate Bridge District from being formed cost the district $150,000 in court costs alone. The bridge obstructionists spent more money, tens of thousands dollars. Just how much is a matter of conjecture.

But there was some benefit to the district from the long delay. Strauss' original design for a bridge was a cantilever and suspension span. There was also a proposal for a second deck for railroad trains. At that time, trains ran from the northern counties through Marin and to Sausalito.

This idea for the second deck was abandoned, although it might have solved commute problems of today.

THE REASON for the cantilever and suspension bridge design was that at the time Strauss submitted his original plan, engineering authorities believed a single span longer than 1,800 feet was impossible.

In the years of court litigation that blocked the project, the science of bridge building made vast strides. Stronger wire cables and sturdier steel for towers were developed.

So in August of 1929, when Strauss met with his consulting engineers to determine the final basic design, he proposed instead of the cantilever-suspension, the use of a simple suspension bridge. He is quoted as saying: "It can be done now."

THE 35-MILLION-dollar bond issue to build the Golden Gate Bridge was sold in the the open market without borrowing from the federal government. The bonds were bought and marketed by Bank of America and several investment companies.

Financing of the bridge in this country's depression years was remarkable. Proposals to seek the loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were rejected to avoid long delays.

The Bank of America went to the bridge's support with cash almost as soon as the legal obstacles were cleared away. The incorporation of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District was delayed until Dec. 3, 1928. At the meeting of the board of directors on Jan. 23, 1929, William P. Filmer of San Francisco was elected president, Robart H. Trumbull of Marin County, vice president; W. W. Felt Jr. of Sonoma County, secretary, and John R. Ruckstell of San Francisco, auditor.

GEORGE HARLAN was elected attorney.

Directors were Frank P. Doyle, John P. McLaughlin, Harry Lutgens, R. A. O'Brien, Thomas Maxwell, Milton McVay, Warren Shannon, Richard J. Welch, F. V. Keesling, J. A. McMinn, Hugo D. Newhouse, Arthur Brown, Trumbull and Filmer.

Strauss' bid was accepted Aug. 15, 1929, and he was named chief engineer.

On Nov. 25, 1929, diamond drill borings were started at the selected piers and anchorages. These were completed in February of 1930. Bids were taken on various units of the project.

A BOND election was held Nov. 4, 1930, and despite all efforts to sabotage the project, the bonds carried by a tremendous margin.

The people in the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District were elated over the vision of a construction program that would start immediately. But they were doomed to disappointment.

The bridge opponents, undaunted by their defeat at the polls, launched further litigation, which not only cost the taxpayers large sums of money but delayed the start of construction two years.

GROUND BREAKING ceremonies were held Feb. 26, 1933, at Crissy Field, attended by a tremendous throng.

WHAT LOOKS LIKE a bridge that starts and ends in open space is actually the Golden Gate span while still under construction, with the steelwork reaching out from the San Francisco tower. The roadway was built in sections. To keep the huge structure in proper balance, the exact same rate of progress had to be maintained on both sides of each tower.

Gate Bridge, at that time the longest suspension span in the world, was accomplished by overcoming many natural obstacles as well as human opponents. Repeated investigations were carried on to determine the exact constituency of the 65-foot deep rock foundation. This was to answer the criticism that the rock foundation would not be able to sustain the load. Borings proved the foundation was satisfactory.

An access trestle had to be built from the Presidio shore 1,100 feet into the turbulent waters of the Golden Gate.

REPEATED STORMS and ship collisions carried away this trestle. This was rebuilt but the most difficult job was still to be done — the construction of the pier.

Strauss said: "To build the pier it was essential to have quiet water. I do not know of any place on the globe where we have more violent conditions of water and weather, than we have here. I decided to build an enclosure of concrete and steel within which we could build the pier." Strauss described the oval structure built in the open sea.

Strauss explained that the structure was built in units, each section (there were 22) was five stories high.

"WE LEFT the east end open with the idea of floating in a wooden caisson to build the pier in the dry. We got the caisson in at 4 a.m. At 8 that night I was told to come out to the pier. Heavy swells had come in and and caisson was tossing around like a cork and acting like a ramrod on the fender, it looked like it would batter it to pieces."

Strauss told how he discussed the problem with the contractor and decided to take the caisson out and sink it in the ocean. "It cost us $360,000."

Strauss explained that the open-end foundation was closed by using a series of 10 bells, 10 feet in diameter, located at different points, providing air locks at their top —"So we could descend into the bells and inspect the rock bottom."

THIS WAS found in excellent condition. A 40-foot mat of con-

A graphic collection can be a decorator's focal point, an investment whose value will surely increase, or a purely aesthetic joy for the collector. Regardless of the reasons, there is little question that original prints have come back into their own as works not only to be taken seriously but to be assembled as avidly as art in any other media. To select a print, it is important, first, to be able to see a good cross-section of media and styles. Since adding graphics to our permanent collection, Musee d'Art International has consistently kept a balanced group that shows the trends and variety of the past hundred years. This showing expands our list of artists and styles even farther and will be of great interest both to the casual and to the serious collector. crete was poured under water over the whole area and water pumped out of the fender. The fender was used as a coffer dam and the "pier was built in the dry."

In contrast, the pier on the Marin side was comparatively simple to construct. The top of projecting rock was cut off and the tower was hoisted into the air by a big crane anchored to the lower leg. Men crawled over the tower riveting the steel sections togther. Others signaled the crane operator where to place the mammoth metal blocks.

Provisions for earthquake forces were made in both piers, as each pier base was tied to the rock and keyed in at a depth of 30 feet.

In November of 1935, cable spinning on the bridge was underway. Strauss remarked: "Only 79,999 more miles to spin."

A catwalk was suspended between the north and south towers and a huge spinning wheel whirred to life. In a year, 80,000 miles of wire were spun into cable. The cable was manacled and crushed by compression into one round fat strand. This was anchored in a saddle high in the bridge tower.

Labor erected the Golden Gate Bridge without a single dispute of any importance with the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District or the contractors who did the job.

Shortly after work on the bridge began, the district directors pledged that only workmen from the seven counties in the district would be employed. This policy was adhered to except where some specialized positions could not be filled from within the district.

PROBABLY FEW people know about the Half-Way Club, but this most unique organization in the world has a closed membership — 14 men saved from death by the safety net. Strauss, knowing that in such a huge project as construction of the bridge, there were always hazards to the lives of workmen, insisted a safety net be installed.

When Strauss ordered the net placed below the bridge skeleton, immediately he met opposition. Some said it had never been done. Others declared it would cost too much, especially when it was learned "a bunch of rope" would cost $100,000.

After months of discussion, the rope was bought. An agreement was reached between Bethlehem Steel Co. and the bridge directorate, with the district paying $82,000 for a permanent net to be hung under the span from end to end and with the steel concern paying for a traveling net to be moved along under the steel construction work.

THE MESH HUNG like a giant trapeze beneath the framework of steel where hundreds of workers labored.

The net had its first test on Oct. 6, 1936. Ward Chamberlain, a steel worker, slipped and fell 15 feet, landing on the framework of the traveling net, suffering only minor injuries.

On October 16, George Murray, a carpenter, working on the bridge highway deck off of Lime Point, was brushed off the deck by a load car. He landed in the net.

FOUR DAYS later, Alfred Zampa, working on the Marin side of the bridge, slipped on a wet girder and hurtled into the net. On Oct. 21, 1936 Miles Green was catapulted into the net when a derrick collapsed. Another worker was crushed to death as the derrick fell on him.

So it went.

Paul Terry and J. E. Roberts were on a scaffold when a plank snapped. They were saved by the net and the next day were back at work. Next member to join the Half-Way Club was John H. Terry, a painter.

OTHER MEMBERS of the club were Jack Miller, John Delayes, Edward Stanley, Peter Paterson. The membership grew.

On Feb. 17, 1937 the five-ton scaffold on which 12 men were working gave way and ripped one whole section of the net loose from its fastening. Even in that multiple tragedy which claimed 10 lives, two, E. C. Lambert and Oscar Osberg were saved by the net. They clung to the mesh until it hit the water, then kept afloat until they were rescued.

The section was replaced and on April 19, Frederick Crosthwaite, a carpenter, slipped and fell into the net.

ALL THIS brings us ahead of the story on the bridge: Harry Lutgens, owner and publisher of the San Rafael Independent, a bridge director, wrote editorials in which he deplored needless expenditures of money to allay fears and wild rumors. On Jan. 25, 1934, he wrote: "Yesterday the directors approved an expenditure of $5,000 for soundings and divers' fees for work in the area surrounding the San Francisco pier. This is the third time that sounding or borings have been made in this area.

"The work was occasioned by widespread rumors that a cavern existed beneath the pier base, and that when the load of the pier and tower was placed over it, it would cave in. So in order to reassure the public this additional work was undertaken. Soundings have now been taken in a 400-foot area on each side of the pier base. Nothing was discovered that was not known by the board of engineers before . . .

"THE GOVERNMENT has made innumerable surveys of the bottom of the Golden Gate

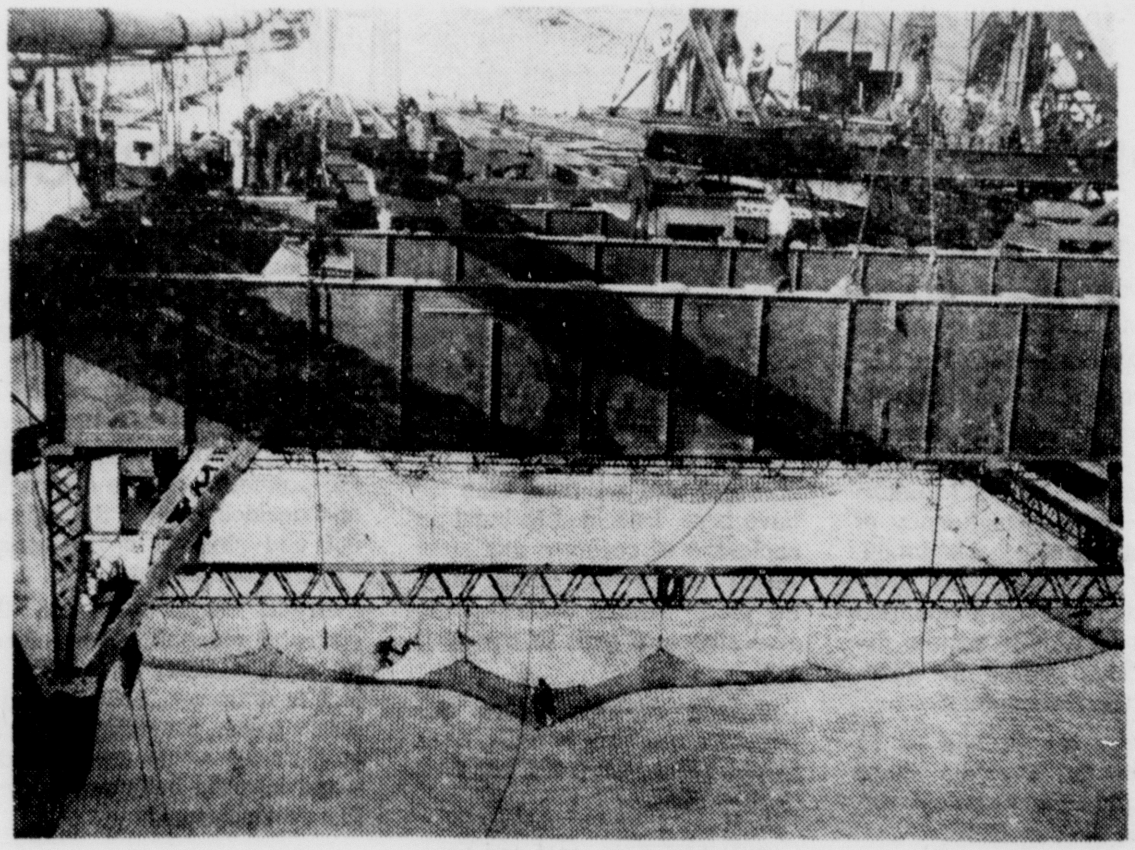
A WORK CREW putting support casting for the suspender cable into place labored at dizzying heights, as did their fellow construction workers.



MEN WERE IN the safety net placed beneath the Golden Gate Bridge while the huge span was under construction. These men had gone down to recover dropped tools. But the net saved the lives of other workers who fell accidentally from the bridge works.

and no shelf nor cavern has ever been disclosed . . . Enemies of the bridge are attempting to show there is great discord among the directors and officials. There have been innumerable differences of opinion . . . but these differences have been beneficial . . .

"If everything is going along satisfactorily and routine reports are published the people are not nearly as interested in them as they are in intimations of failure and mismanagement."

With the bridge construction came another problem. This was the delay in building the Waldo approach to the bridge.

In July of 1935 the Redwood Empire Association was pleading for retention of one million dollars in state highways funds for construction of the vital approach.

IF IT WERE not built in time, traffic on the bridge could not start as scheduled in 1937 and taxpayers of the district would have to make up the loss. All of the counties in the district made pleas to Sacramento.

On Nov. 14, 1935 the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce invited "all interested organizations to make a mass appeal to Gov. F. F. Merriam for immediate action on starting construction of the Waldo approach."

TIMOTHY REARDON, member of the State Highway Commission, answered: "We have pledged the money for the approach and we have it in the budget. But we can't call for bids unless federal funds are assured."

Gail Apperson of Ross, president of the supervisors' unit, Redwood Empire Association, urged the mayors of the cities in the "empire" to demand immediate action.

By the end of 1935, prospects were brighter; James Reed, general manager of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, said work would begin on the Sausalito lateral "before Christmas."

On December 30, Strauss stated that "the California Highway Commission will start construction of the extension of Route 1, Redwood Highway, from Waldo to the north abutment of the bridge." Strauss said this would be a four-lane highway with tunnel.

ON JAN. 3, 1936, the California State Highway Commission added $1,250,000 to the $500,000 that had been budgeted previously. On May 22, 1936 cable spinning by John A. Roeblings Sons Co. was completed, and on July 12, 1936, the J. H. Pomeroy Co. commenced erection of the great arch over Fort Winfield Scott. By April 27,1937, steel work on the span was completed with the driving of the golden rivet.

Then came the long-awaited day — May 27, 1937. The bridge was opened for pedestrian traffic.

Thousands of people walked across the mighty span, an experience and day never to be forgotten. It was a holiday for many of those in the district.

EMPLOYEES OF the San Rafael Independent were driven to the north side of the bridge and joined the throng of pedestrians.

A United Press writer described "pedestrian day" like this: "The West joined in the dedication of the world's largest suspension bridge across the Golden Gate—once the destination of prairie schooners and westbound pioneers. By noon, 50,000 persons had walked across the bridge. It was a gay fiesta crowd, garbed in costumes of the old West—somberos, bright bandannas, cowboy boots, Spanish serapes—that christened the huge span.

"At a nickel apiece they walked, danced, ran, pushed pill boxes, peanuts and baby carriages."

"Why Have Garments Drycleaned?"

The Dept. of Home Economics of the National Education Assn. published a booklet "The Clothes We Wear" for use by public school teachers. This booklet lists five reasons for drycleaning garments which are so sound we'll repeat them:

1. Many types of soil are not removed by water, but require drycleaning solvents which also remove oily and greasy soil more readily than water.

2. Successful removal of spots requires a specialist's knowledge of fabrics, dyes and finishes in relation to the spotting reagent and the methods and technics required to effect removal.

3. Specialized finishing equipment used by drycleaners is designed to accommodate intricate garment details that cannot be pressed by hand on the home ironing board.

4. Some fabrics require the replacement of special finishes; this can be done more readily thru commercial procedures which are not adaptable to home use.

5. Cleaning a garment in drycleaning solvent rather than water has the advantage of minimizing shrinkage, preserving tailoring details and many of the colors and finishes applied to modern-day fabrics.

To these we would add —no headaches, no worries.

Bridge Stands As A Tribute To Man's Determination

Vision And Hard Work Saw The Project Through To Completion

On May 23, 1967, the bridge was opened for vehicular traffic when President Franklin D. Roosevelt, from the White House, switched on a green light at the toll plaza of the bridge and chains were lifted from the portals of the six-lane bridge highway. Hundreds of automobiles (some of the drivers had waited in line all night) surged onto the span.

Several chain-cutting ceremonies took place. Probably the most spectacular was on the Marin side when a huge redwood log was sawed in two by lumberjacks, symbolizing that the gateway to the Redwood Empire was open.

Five hundred Navy planes dipped and soared overhead. Dignitaries from many countries as well as state officials, headed by Governor Merriam, and national figures were present at the fiesta.

Many were the speeches. Joseph B. Strauss, the man who brought the modern miracle to the state, said simply: "Here is the bridge of your dreams."

THE GREAT SPAN has brought many changes to Marin. This is made evident by looking at the special edition of the San Rafael Independent, published May 25, 1937.

On the front page are pictures of the Golden Gate bridge with a ferryboat crossing the bay, the old Redwood Highway Bridge across Richardson's Bay, the Marin County Courthouse and scenes of Mount Tamalpais and on Sir Francis Drake Highway.

Inside are stories on dairying. The headline said "Dairying is an outstanding industry." The story explained: "Marin County of recent years has come to the fore in the production of two farm crops, artichokes and peas, for which its soil has been found especially suitable."

A PICTURE shows boxes of artichokes, packed for the market. The caption said most of these were raised on the Pt. Reyes Peninsula. "In less than half a decade the Marin County artichoke industry has expanded until it produced upwards of a quarter million dollars in this industry last year."

Columns were devoted to dairy ranches. Value of dairy cattle was quoted at two million dollars; beef cattle, $72,704; sheep, $43,862; hogs, $14,744; horses and mules, $106,110.

The same article bemoaned the fact that Sleepy Hollow Certified Dairy, operated by S. K. Herzog, had been forced to move across the Marin-Sonoma line because of the "great suburban growth of Southern Marin."

PICTURED WAS Ross General Hospital, "a modern hospital institution . . . which was established and developed to its present large capacity by the late Dr. A. J. Ritter." There were two "modern" hospitals. The other, the Cottage, in San Rafael.

The Lagunitas Development Co. advertised the "garden homes" in San Geronimo Valley, "quickly accessible over the Golden Gate Bridge and hard surfaced roads."

NORTHWESTERN Pacific Railroad Co. ran a quarter page ad, stating: "A vital factor in the upbuilding of Marin County is the adequate transportation facilities established by Northwestern Pacific Railroad for travel between Marin County and San Francisco and between interurban points in the county."

Under the heading "Marin's low tax rate attracts" was the statement: "In spite of the fact that 5 per cent of its area is given over to military reservations and other public lands which are non-taxable, Marin County boasts an assessed valuation for the current fiscal year of $45,858,820 and points to its low basic tax rate of $1.16 per $100 assessed valuation."

The article went on to say that "the area of Marin County is 339,440 acres, approximately 10,440 acres of which are embraced in the Marin Municipal Water District and which includes virtually all of Mount Tamalpais and its immediate foothills.

"THE UNITED STATES Army at Hamilton Field Air Base and the two coast defense fortifications, Fort Baker and Fort Barry, maintain military posts on 5,104 acres of the county's lands. Nearly 1,000 acres have been taken over by the government for enlargement of the Fort Barry fortifications and the placing of two of the four mightiest coast defense rifles ever built, 16-inch guns, which will shoot projectiles weighing one ton a distance of 27 miles to sea. . . .

"Nor does this acreage given over to military purposes take into account the Angel Island immigration station . . . within the statutory confines of Marin County. From Marin's acreage the State of California deducts another 364 acres of non-accessable lands for its penitentiary at San Quentin, the Nautical School at California City and other minor state properties.

"In the absence of late official census reports, the population of Marin County, computed on the basis of voter registration, can be conservatively estimated at 48,818, giving the county a per capita wealth of approximately $1,000 for every man, woman and child."

This was Marin County in 1937 as the Golden Gate Bridge was opened: Before it lay the dark years of World War II and after that the tremendous influx of people into Marin and a period of spectacular growth and progress. The bridge has played no small role in that development.

A Marin Movie-Maker On Market Street

By ELIZABETH ROGERS

Given an assignment to make an original film, young Theile took his crew to San Francisco to document the Market Street scene.

"To begin with," says Jim, "we chose Market Street because of its inherent qualities of movement, sound and human activity.

"BUT WE WANTED to do something more than just a typical documentary. We wanted to inject some spontaneous drama into the picture.

"So we included an eight-foot plastic sphere, which I had originally made for Ann Halprin's dance workshop. I wore a jumpsuit with fluorescent stripes, and rolled the ball down Market. Our film shows the reaction of the man on the street to this curious spectacle."

"One man asked, 'What's this —an advertising gimmick?' A woman wanted to know, 'Are you from Planet 3?' Frequent questions were, 'Why are you doing this?' or 'What are you supposed to symbolize?'

"AND ONE man asked, 'What's this—an H-bomb?'"

As for his own reaction to the experience, Jim says:

"At first it was overwhelming — too many stimuli from too many sources. It took me a little while to adjust to the idea that I really was pushing this thing down the street wearing this outlandish garb. I wasn't sure I was equal to it.

"But it was an unforgettable experience, and I wouldn't have missed it for anything."

HOW DID HE happen to get interested in film-making?

"At San Rafael High School, I began to study art and continued, using sculpture as a medium at College of Marin.

"Then I studied for a year at Ann Halprin's Dancers' Workshop.

"YOU MIGHT say that the two areas of interest, kinetic sculpture and the production of 'happenings,' became synthesized in the medium of film. I hope to continue in this field because it offers the greatest opportunity to bring together a variety of art forms."

College of Marin's class in cinema-making, taught by Lou Caillat, is one of many now in progress in schools and institutions across the country. It appears to be an outgrowth of the avant garde films that have received wide acceptance today.

EXPERIMENTERS, not bound by studio schedules and professional box office demands, have opened new vistas in the performing and graphic arts. It has stimulated, too, the interest of educators who see increasing use of film as part of the new educational processes.

Today's cinematography student may be in training to make a contribution to education or to the arts, or just for the fun of it. They are all part of a movement.

Jim Theile's film, entitled "Market Street in a Glimpse," along with others made by students, will be shown tonight and tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall, College of Marin, Kentfield, as a benefit for the summer workshop program in film to be conducted at the college during the summer session.

COLLEGE OF Marin cinematography student Jim Theile is shown at work synchronizing the footage of the film, "Market Street in a Glimpse," he made in San Francisco. The film will be part of a student movie program at the college in Kentfield next Saturday and Sunday. For photos of the young director starring in his own unusual film, see pages M10 and M11.

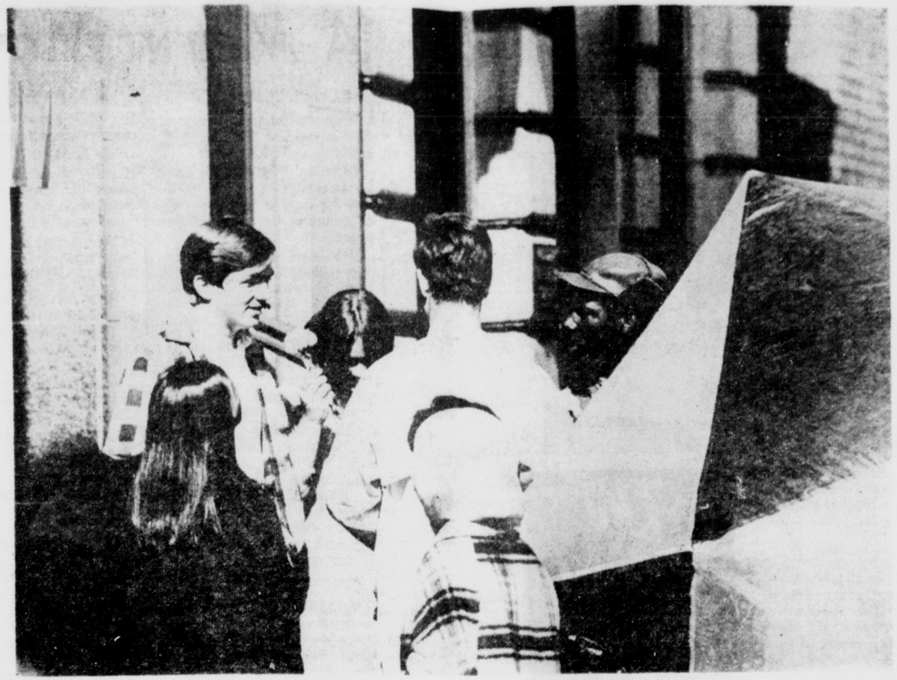
NOT EVEN ON San Francisco's Market Street do you often encounter a young man in a fluorescent suit carrying an eight-foot plastic sphere. Thus the turned heads as College of Marin movie-making student Jim Theile, in costume, carries his chief prop while the camera captures spectator reactions.



NOT SURPRISINGLY, Jim Theile in illuminated jumpsuit and with plastic sphere trailing behind attracted bystanders with questions as to just what it was all about. Here some young people halt their Market Street stroll to talk it over with the movie-maker while others listen in.

A Man And His Plastic Sphere

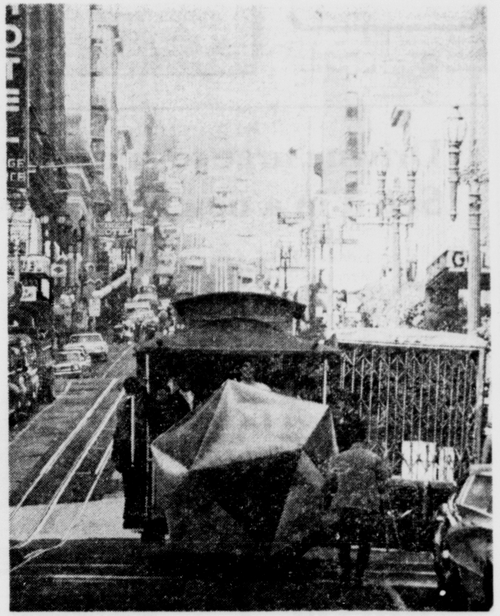
The Reactions Were Varied When Jim Took His Market Street Stroll

"ARE YOU FROM Planet 3?" this passer-by queried of Jim Theile, her attention caught by his unusual garb of jumpsuit with fluorescent stripes. It was only one of many questions which curious onlookers aimed at this young cinematography student as he made his film. And those reactions were an integral part of the movie.

"THEY'RE FLYING awfully low these days" seems to be the reaction of this San Francisco police officer as he watches Jim Theile's plastic sphere float by. Workmen, too, interrupt their toil to take in the unusual spectacle. The experience was, Theile admits, a bit "overwhelming" at first.

ANOTHER POLICE OFFICER takes an interest in Jim Theile, his plastic sphere and the cameramen who are following. "Do you have a license for that?" the officer might be asking. But curiosity satisfied, Jim and prop were allowed to proceed.

GRIPMAN, conductor and passengers as well all seem a bit dubious as, at Market and Powell, Jim Theile decides to take his sphere for a ride in one of San Francisco's famous cable cars. "I just can't leave it behind," Theile explains earnestly to the puzzled crewmen of the little cable car.



HIS ARGUMENT won and the plastic sphere cleared for transportation via the cable car, providing it trail behind, Jim Theile and charge take off on their way up Nob Hill's steep incline. Some of his fellow passengers thought it funny and others apparently feared some kind of plot. (Photos by Cliff Lawrence)

B. C.'s Peace River Country

THE FINEST moose hunting in Canada is offered by the Big Country — British Columbia's Peace River area. The moose attain enormous size, and hunters flock to the region in late autumn.

The Travel Pages

Civilization has not yet rasped its heavy hand too roughly across the face of British Columbia's Peace River Country.

Why? Well, civilization was a late starter, and there really is just too much country.

Simon Fraser and his swarthy canoemen passed this way in 1792 making the first tranverse of the continent from Atlantic to Pacific, and the Klondykers trekked north more than a century later. But until recently, the land was the domain of the nomadic Indians, prospectors, fur traders and the homesteaders who cleared the rich lands around the bustling town of Dawson Creek.

SINCE THE war, men and machines seeking oil and minerals have barely scraped here and there across this vast land.

So it is still the frontier, still known as the Big Country and still one of the finest recreational lands in the world, for the camper, the hunter, fisherman and horizon watcher.

It is so vast that it transcends geographical boundaries, except its southern base. As a vast rectangle, it could end at the Yukon boundary or at the Arctic Ocean.

The Big Country is as big as you wish it to be.

AND YET IT is not that remote, for roads do wend and wind through its valleys, and the keen-eyed bush pilots know every lake and tiny settlement on the bend of a river.

A visitor, with the proper vehicle, or guided by someone who has the savvy, can reach almost any part of this Big Country, by boat or plane or scow or jeep or Land Rover, and, more often than it would seem possible, by his own auto.

Part of its wealth comes from logging, but virgin forests sweep for hundreds of miles. Huge fires can often burn part of a summer because they have not been discovered, or are too remote to bring in firefighters.

MOUNTAIN ranges can be located on maps, but most individual peaks are unnamed and a few have never been climbed.

Small but husky streams join bigger rivers — which would be considered monsters further south — and they all finally merge into the mighty Mackenzie, the marine highway of the Northwest Territories to the Arctic Ocean.

This is the country of the finest moose hunting in Canada, and therefore the world.

Bush planes fly low scattering the swirling cariboo herds in annual migration. The sheep and goats of the high passes are invariably trophy size. On the lower slopes of the Rockies are the grizzly bears.

BLACK BEARS are a common sight, while the mule deer play in herds in the natural meadows amid the stands of poplar and aspen.

But the real trophy is the moose, for in this country they attain enormous stature and hunters come in the late autumn from many parts of the world to take a Peace River trophy.

IN THE FAST-flowing rivers, there are grayling and in the lakes the troll-liner or still fisherman can take tasty pickerel and the jackfish.

In the autumn, the Peace is a paradise for the shotgunners. Several types of grouse abound and waterfowl, ducks and geese, gather in their millions before starting down the long flyway to the Texas and Mexican wintering grounds.

The southern "capital" of this rich area is Dawson Creek, a busy place of 13,000 people serving the surrounding farmers, the mines and oil fields as well as the Alaska Highway. This is the jump-off point of the highway and the white post at the town's main intersection is Mile 0, perhaps the most photographed eight-foot pole in the world.

AROUND DAWSON Creek, and north the 50 paved miles to Fort St. John, population 5,500, the country is not unlike Saskatchewan or Kansas. Grain fields and cattle grazing, but on the horizon, friend, see that blue ridge of hills or that line of dark spruce or that yellow river swirling through its gorge. Beyond that is frontier.

And how do you get there?

From Vancouver, the tourist drives through the lush Fraser Valley, up the Fraser Canyon and through the ranching country to Cache Creek. The highway then rolls north through the cattle empires of B. C. to Quesnel and then over the 255-mile Hart Highway from Prince George to Dawson Creek.

SPRING COMES late to this country, and autumn comes early, so your best months to visit are June, July, August and early September.

Autumn is for grouse and moose and deer hunters.

Warm Weather Driving

From Memorial Day to Labor Day, America is a country on wheels.

Over 82 per cent of vacationers take their own cars and head across country for the hills, dales, beaches and campsites. Summer driving has some real built-in hazards starting with the heavily loaded trunk, the too soft tires, the tired transmission, the overheated motor — not to mention the whining children and nagging wife. You may have laughed as you whizzed by the broken-down car on the side of the highway — but are you sure your vehicle is road-worthy for your summer trip?

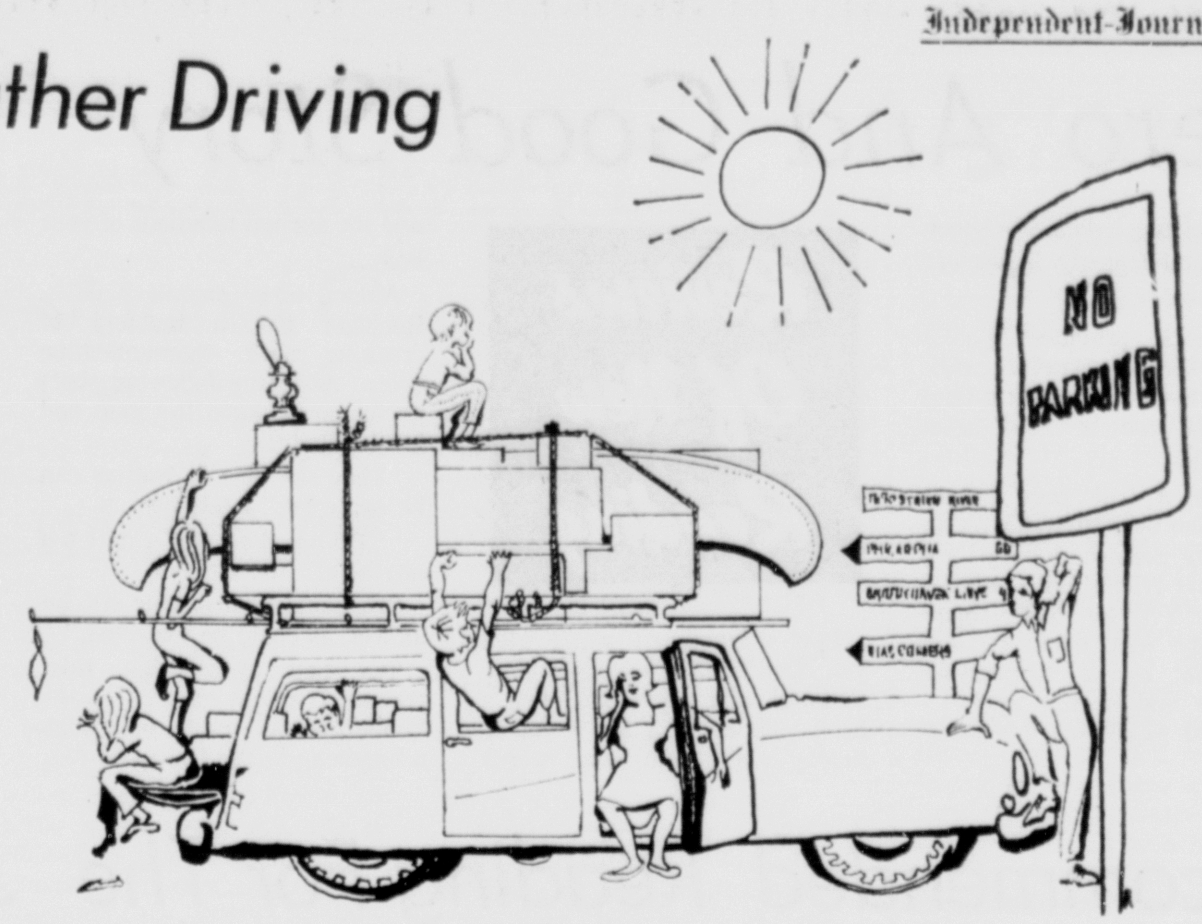
If your car radiator overheats, don't turn off the engine if the temperature gauge starts to rise or the warning light indicates overheating. Instead, if stuck in a long line of waiting cars (a frequent summer woe), shift to neutral and race the engine for 30 seconds at two-minute intervals.

Even before you get into your car you should check the water level. If it's low, start the engine and add water with the engine running.

THE WINDSHIELD wiper is adjusted, the oil checked, the brakes adjusted and wheels aligned. Okay? Now what about the muscle of the car — the automatic transmission? With close to 90 per cent late model passenger cars in the U. S. using automatic transmissions, it would be wise to include yours in the check list.



Don't squint in the face of the summer sun. Sun glare can contribute directly to an accident by dazzling the driver at a critical moment. Optometrists say glare "causes muscular, neural and mental strain." Sunglasses should be worn on sunny days as well as bright cloudy days.

Keep your driving habits cool, too. Avoid jack-rabbit starts and fast acceleration from low speeds, or else you'll strain your transmission. Shift to reverse only from a dead stop. Shift to neutral when stopped in heavy traffic during the hot weather; it minimizes the danger of transmission overheating.

A True Hero And Good Story

The pace is fast, the timing acute, and the balance between comedy and tragedy is perfect in this novel.

This book provides good evidence for Eric Hoffer's contention that everything worthwhile can be said in a small book.

Here is a true hero — an Englishman over 80, living on an inadequate pension, burying friend after friend, until only he remains. Yet he looks upon death only with curiosity, accepts life as a fascinating challenge and always seeks a self-reliant solution to his problems.

Reviews Of New Reading

Two warnings I must give you: Don't read this if you hate to laugh and cry aloud over a book, and avoid it too if you're finicky about four-letter words and the normal functions of your body.

Among other countless skills, Bermant has a mastery of cracking our communication codes, as in the following short exchange between the man and his landlady:

"They say he's as well as can be expected," I told her.

"That doesn't mean anything," she said.

"He could be dead and still be as well as could be expected."

Too bad about that title, though. It might have to go the "underground" route with such a handicap in the United States.

A Glib Waste Of Talent

Miss Mitchell bases her second novel on the racial eruptions of a small Southern town.

Her writing technique is impressive. Quick, rhythmic, direct. The story she tells involves a number of townspeople and she pencils in a relevant background for each. At all times she is in control of the many strands she skillfully weaves together.

Two or three violent scenes (the castration of a Negro, the throat-cutting at an elegant dinner party) genuinely jar the senses.

Nevertheless, she has written a boring book. For she is content to take the glib, ladies' fiction view, slicking over the surface at a fast pace.

And here they all are: The evil white supremist, the saintly Negro servants, the proud, beautiful heroine, frustrated by hatred of her husband and all he stands for . . . and of course the Northern liberal with a crooked grin who frees her with love and civil rights. These cardboard cut-outs do not entertain, much less involve, the reader.

Recommended Reading For The Juniors

Some new reading for the juniors:

Marin's busy Adrien Stoutenburg has authored yet another appealing books for young people. "A Vanishing Thunder" (Natural History Press, $3.50) is a book with a purpose — to instill in youngsters the theory and the spirit of conservationism. It is an account of extinct birds and of species threatened with extinction. Miss Stoutenburg makes her account interesting as well as meaningful, and John Schoenherr has supplied excellent nature sketches.

Adults too often underestimate the attraction that poetry has for small ones. Children delight in good verse. "Favorite Poems for the Children's Hour" (Platt & Munk, $2.95) is an excellent collection of the kind that delights boys and girls, whether it be read to them or they read it for themselves. The poems come from many lands and many ages. The book deserves a "something special" label.

A new batch of StarLine paperback books from Four Winds Press is headed by Eva Moore's "Johnny Appleseed," an excellent version of one of America's most beloved legends for second and third graders. Appearing with it are "Shag" by Thomas C. Hinkle, adventure book for boys 9 through 12, and "Young Skin Divers" by Dwight Tracy, a guide for youngsters in their early teens interested in one of the country's fastest growing sports. "Johnny Appleseed" sells for 45 cents, the other two for 35 cents each.

"Did You See What I Said?" Doubleday, $2.75) by Shan Ellentuck is a funny little story about a little old lady named Miss Pandora Parker. More than that, it pokes some fun at some of our most common sayings by taking them quite literally. Both text and pictures strike a rollicking note, and the jacket is a delight in itself. For up to 8-year-olds.

Especially designed for readers of 12 and older is "Great Stories of Heroism and Adventure," by Stephen Crane (Platt & Munk, $2.95), putting under one cover the famed 19th century journalist's novel "The Red Badge of Courage," and many worthy short stories. The stories are about young people and should appeal to a young age; but older readers, too, will thrill to Crane's virile writing.

"Oath of Silence" (Doubleday, $3.50) by Phyllis Bentley is a historical novel with Gothic-like atmosphere for the pre- and early teens. The setting is Yorkshire in the early 19th century where young Ned Carver is let into danger and adventure by his ailiance with the mysterious band of workers known as the Luddites who are determined to fight for their rights against their economic masters. Miss McGinley does this sort of thing very well, as she proved with her earlier "The Adventures of Tom Leigh."

The Western Hemisphere Before The Coming Of The Europeans

ANCIENT AMERICA by Jonathan Norton Leonard and the editors of Time-Life Books Inc., 185 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"Ancient America" is the latest in the Time-Life "Great Ages of Man" series, and like its predecessors, is well-written, beautifully illustrated, a pleasure to read and to keep.

Also like some of its predecessors, it has a rather misleading title.

Jonathan Norton Leonard, who has been Latin American editor of Time, writes almost entirely of the pre-conquest civilizations of Mexico and Peru, and principally of them during the few centuries before the coming of the Spaniards. His book, therefore, is more of medieval America than of ancient America.

The first chapter deals briefly with the first coming of man to the American continent — or what is known and conjectured of it. The second moves to the ancient Olmec civilization in Mexico. Most of the remainder deals with the Aztecs and their contemporaries in Mexico — with lesser attention to the Mayans — and the Incas of Peru.

All these, though, were long-lived civilizations at the time. Rome survived a millenium; the series of Indian civilizations in Middle America and Peru lasted more than twice as long. But there was much change during that long period.

"Ancient America" is absorbingly written, beautifully printed and illustrated. Twelfth of Time-Life's "Great Ages" series, it is in some respect the finest yet.

Star-Gazing — A Last Frontier For The Amateur In Science

One of the last fields in which the amateur scientist can compete with the high-powered university, industrial and government-employed scientists is — discovering comets.

Richardson describes well the thrill of making such a find. He tells the story of humble Masaji Nagata of Brawley, barely north of the Mexican border.

Nagata, a skillful melon farmer but no man of science, was fond of star-gazing. On the nights of July 14, 15 and 16, 1931, he discovered in a tiny telescope a fuzzy, glowing sky object moving near Neptune — and had his name placed in the comet discovery catalogs.

It's often this way with comet finders, Richardson reports; the big telescopes are busy looking far into space and seldom watch for solar system visitors.

The author, a professional astronomer turned writer, thoroughly tells the ambitious amateur how to go about the whole business. If you're not prone to stay up all night star-gazing, the book is interesting anyway.

Richardson makes no attempt to gloss over the confusion and conflicting theories of astronomy, but his writing is clear and simple, though far from simple - minded. The charts, tables and photos are excellent. Good reading for adult or high schooler.

Felipe Alou — Baseball Talent And A Strong Faith In God

MY LIFE IN BASEBALL by Felipe Alou with Herm Weiskopf, World Books, 154 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Gary Tischler.

Felipe Alou, now a home run, high average hitter for the Atlanta Braves, is probably most remembered in the Bay Area as one of the Alous that got away.

His brother Matty was the National League's top hitter last year with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Jesus Alou is still with the Giants.

What is not so well known is that Felipe has had a long row to hoe, so to speak. And that he is a genuinely nice guy with a strong faith in God.

Alou covers both aspects competently, with the help of Weiskopf.

The early part of his life in the Dominican Republic is both amusing and exciting. The baseball is interesting for the baseball fan. The faith is for the general reader who may find it nice to know that there are still people like Alou around who are not embarrassed to admit it.

The world is not going there in a wastebasket, yet.

Wartime Spies And Every-Day Killers Pose Moral Questions

By DON KEOWN

In the 1930s even more starkly it confronted and haunted the many Germans who were horrified or repelled by the precepts of Adolf Hitler's barbarous National Socialism.

With the advent of World War II, these Germans could no longer delay a decision. The preponderance of their numbers, through patriotism, self-interest or apathy, determined to go along, at least outwardly, with the excesses of the Nazis and their fellow travelers.

But there were exceptions. A brilliant book by two very capable French journalists, Pierre Accoce and Pierre Quet, entitled "A Man Called Lucy," is about the most noteworthy group among them—11 men who decided to fight Nazism in the most effective manner available to them, through espionage, even if it meant helping the enemies of their country and causing the deaths of their countrymen. Far worse consequences would befall all mankind if Hitler's madness was not stopped.

The key figure was an unlikely espionage agent by the name of Rudolf Roessler, who left Germany for Switzerland and there became the most vital link in the most-effective spy ring of World War II. At the other end of the line, in Germany, were 10 high military officers, five of them generals, all devoutly anti-Nazi and privy to the German staff's most vital secrets.

Through Roessler they fed key information to Russia and to Switzerland, which despite a pretense of neutrality made much of the data available to the western allies.

Germany's foes did not always make effective use of the information. But, nonetheless, it was unquestionably one of the determinative factors of the war.

Accoce and Quet received little cooperation from governments or surviving individuals involved, making their document all the more extraordinary. Not only do they detail the amazing operations of the spy ring, but they also cast much new light upon the overall military and political history of the time.

Despite Accoce's and Quet's splendid efforts, Roessler remains a shadowy figure as befits a successful spy. His 10 colleagues in Germany are cloaked in anonymity, necessary, the authors explain, because, although they are dead, vengeful Germans might still wreak violence upon their kin. This is a disturbing observation about the new Germany.

Some other figures are drawn more distinctly including an incredibly courageous Englishman named Alexander Foote, a ne'er-do-well who found his proper calling as an agent; Walter Schellenberg, Reinhard Heydrich's successor as Germany's secret service chief who seems to have won something approaching respect if not admiration from the two French writers, and Brigadier Roger Masson, the Swiss secret service boss who walked a tightrope between two warring sides.

This is an altogether praiseworthy book, a remarkable example of painstaking investigation and polished presentation of a most difficult and fascinating subject.

MAN IS A violence-prone animal.

This is reflected in his wars, the senseless slaughter on his highways, the sadism that infects so much of his entertainment, his blood sports — and his obsession with murder and murderers.

Why is it that murder, in particular, holds such a fascination for him, when its harvest of human lives is small in comparison with, for instance, the automotive carnage, war and some of the more virulent diseases?

By reading British novelist John Brophy's "The Meaning of Murder," you reach with him ultimately the conclusion that this is because we all feel an emotional kinship to the murderer. Man, essentially, is a selfish, non-social creature. Denied his way, resentment arises. Resentment uncontrolled leads ultimately to violence and to murder.

Even man's long-favored means of dealing with the killer by killing him in turn reflects a need for an outlet for the killer instinct that lies buried not too deeply in so many of us.

Murder can also serve man's thirst for the dramatic — for the spectacle. Public executions were once the climax of this grim pageantry. Now attention focusses upon the trial with a special, morbid preoccupation when the life of the defendant is at stake.

Before leading you to such conclusions, Brophy does a good bit of groundwork that includes the analysis of some of history's most infamous murders, most, but not all, of them of British origin.

Included are the cases of Lizzie Borden (Brophy shares Edward Radin's belief that she was innocent, but not his theory that the maid Bridget Sullivan was the guilty one), William Herbert Wallace (very likely not guilty, says Brophy, and thus some one got away with the so-called "perfect murder"), burglar Charley Peace, James Hanratty, Neill Cream, Mrs. Maybrick, George Chapman, Harry Thaw, body-snatchers William Burke and William Hare, Alfred Arthur Rouse, Madame Steinheil, William Palmer the Rugeley poisoner, the never identified Jack the Ripper, William Corder, Leopold and Loeb, Neville Heath, Donald Merrett and may more.

The book is a great deal more, however, than just a recitation of grisly facts and theories concerning past murders. It is a genuine search by Brophy for clues as to why man kills his fellow wilfully, and why that act holds such a fascination for the rest of society. He provides some insights that are provocative.

TIME-LIFE Books has published volume two of its Library of America series, this one entitled "The Heartlands" and covering the states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Robert McLaughlin, a Time editor, has written the text and has acquitted himself well. Sen. Everett Dirksen has provided the introduction and is less hammy and windy than one might expect. And, not surprisingly, Time-Life has assembled a superb collection of photographs of the region, a good many of which are presented in color. The covers that the publisher has produced for the two volumes to date in this series (the first book covered the Far West) are among the most attractive you will find in this price range — $4.95.

When publication of the Library of America series is complete, owners of a total set will possess a survey of these United States as they stand today that will be quite readable and generally serviceable, if a little on the glossy side.

Sleuths & Suspense

The veteran Gruber has written a corking good suspense yarn combining elements of the spy thriller and the mystery novel.

His chief character is Jim Rand, former professional assassin for the American government but now awaiting death on the western desert from an incurable disease. The arrival of a strange teenage girl at his adobe hideout forces him to give up his hermit-like existence and return to the violence and danger he has known before.

The scenes shift rapidly across country from West to East to Midwest, back to the West. The action is fast and exciting.

If the novel has a weakness, it is Gruber's failure to explain fully just why a man of Rand's character was drawn originally into the profession of killing.

But that is a minor complaint, and the reader will find this a thoroughly entertaining tale.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

Some new releases from Columbia:

MAHLER: Symphony No. 8 — Spoorenberg / Jones / Annear / Reynolds / Procter / Mitchinson / Ruzdiak / McIntyre / The Leeds Festival Chorus / The London Symphony Orchestra Chorus / Orpington Junior Singers / Highgate School Boy's Choire / Finchley Children's Music Group / Leonard Bernstein conducting — Columbia M2S 751:

Having read about the recording of this gigantic piece in London in a British music magazine, I was especially excited when it arrived for review.

Since first discovering the sensual and intellectual pleasures of Mahler, the amazing Eight has been one of my favorites. Since then, the old mono Holland Festival performance has been replaced by a very good one on Vanguard with Abravanel conducting. It is against that version that I compare Bernstein's herculean effort and find it superior in every respect.

In fact, even the engineering on the Columbia sets new standards for fullness and clarity without distortion, and my copy of the Vanguard version is on a prerecorded stereo tape!

Musically, the symphony pulls out all the stops, with full organ, offstage brass bands, various childrens' choruses, bells, and you name it. The libretto is a mouthful of mystical visions, part in Latin and part in German. But the final proof is in the pudding, and if after hearing this on a good stereo system the hackles on the back of your neck aren't rising a bit, have your hearing checked.

CORELLI: Twelve Concerti Grossi Opus 6 complete — The Vienna Sinfonietta / Max Goberman conducting — Odyssey 32 36 0002:

The new bargain label of CBS (Columbia), Odyssey, has begun life with a strong offering in the Baroque and Classic areas. Chief among these are the highly acclaimed series by the late Max Goberman, originally recorded for his own mail-order record company.

Haydn symphonies were Goberman's specialty, and Vivaldi was also very well served.

Here is a spectacular performance of the best of Corelli's concerti, and a first in stereo. No. 8 of the set is the famous "Christmas Concerto," but all one dozen are equally tuneful, dancelike and muscular rhythmically as is the best of Vivaldi.

The sound is great and so is the price of this triple-disc package!

LIGHT & LATIN — The Unique Paraguayan Harp Artistry of Luis Bordon — Epic BN 26208:

The scintillating sound of the Paraguayan harp is a delightful experience that one shouldn't miss. Perhaps it will be the next "new sound" in American pop music, but don't wait for that. Enjoy the real thing right now with this excellent album of instrumentals. It's rather hard to describe — one could say it's catchy, that it swings, but you have to hear it.

America's No. 1 composer, judging by record sales.

Orchestral works have had most if not all of the recording attention thus far, but here is the neglected vocal music area, where our first truly great composer did some of his most unorthodox "ear-stretching."

"General William Booth Enters Into Heaven" is a free-for-all that quotes hymns, gospel songs, and "Reveille" along the way. Some of the short songs are for wordless voices. The "Three Harvest Home Chorales" may clash a lot of notes together, but the end result is a noble and touching feeling.

On Side two of the LP are five psalm settings, in which Ives' spirit of experimentation is not one bit squashed.

Stereo is certainly useful here in keeping some musical sense.

IN A SCENE from the Terra Linda Little Theater's production of "Dark of the Moon" are Stan Rice, as the Witch Boy, and Pat Rice, as Barbara Allen. The play is seen Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. in The Church In Ignacio, 400 Ignacio Boulevard.

ADDRESS: TO THE POET MAO

Your soil my friend
Is besmirched
Your platitudes of Hitlerian disgust
Mirror no reflection
Of Chinese heritage respect.
The admiration of the world
Is yours in distress
Mon cher and Chinois
There is no skinly difference
To starvation and want —
We beg of your control
The sane renewal of former trust
A Free China whose forward thrust
Mismatch those of other countries' holy dust.

Yes, You Can Build Outdoor Furniture That Looks Smart

Start With A Chaise Longue That Wheels And Stores Away

Those who appreciate the decorative as well as utilitarian values inherent in wood furniture will be interested in a build-it-yourself chaise.

Matching chairs and settees, tables, complete sets, or individual pieces, can also be built from materials readily available in lumber yards. Each costs but a fraction of the price normally paid for comparable pieces purchased ready-made.

THE PATTERN offered here assumes the user has never built a chaise. It provides step-by-step directions and full-size templates that are truly easy to follow.

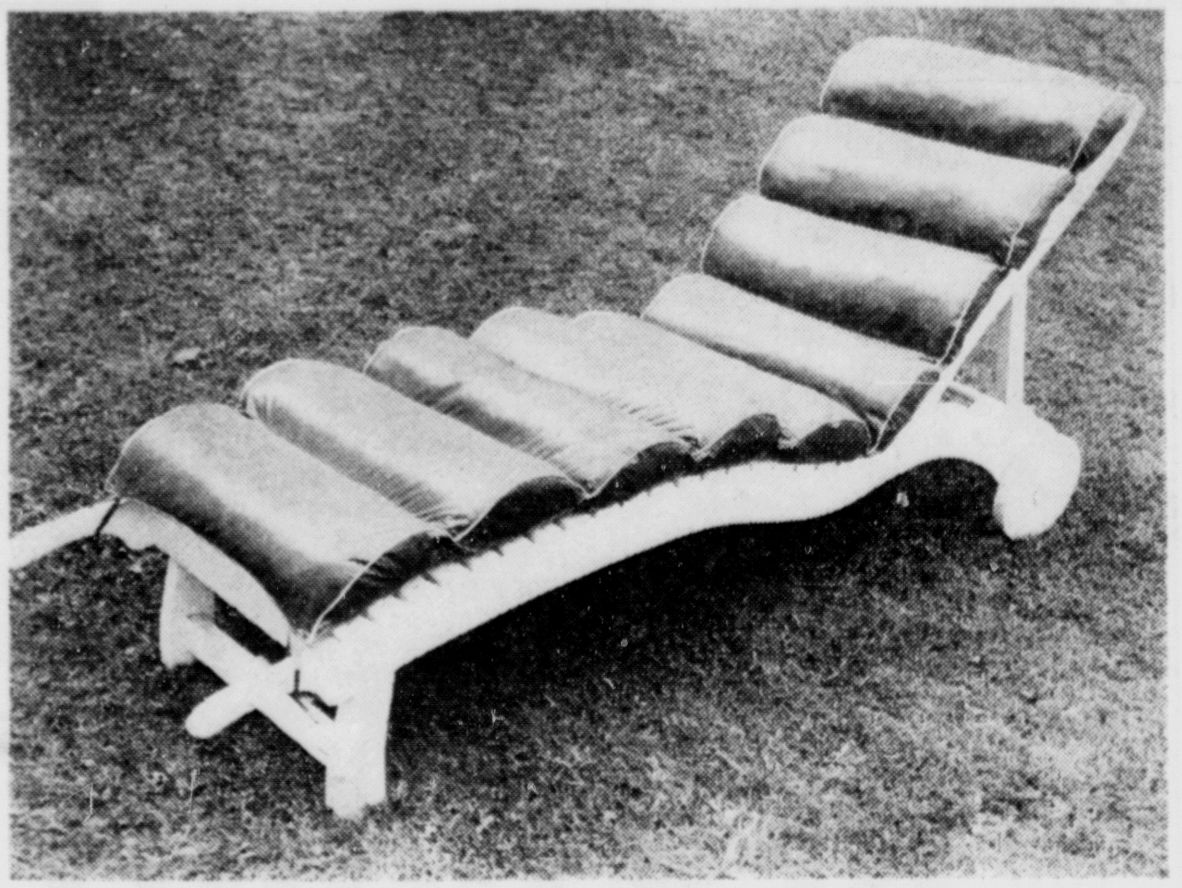
Every step of construction has been simplified so anyone old enough to understand what he reads has no difficulty turning out a smart-looking piece of furniture.

There are no complicated joints to make, difficult angles to cut. You don't need a dictionary to figure out directions.

WHEN PART "A" is fastened to "B", the pattern shows exact location, even position of screw and bolt holes. To further simplify construction, no special tools are required.

The chaise is over seven feet long, 28 inches wide. It can be wheeled around to follow sun or shade. When not used, the back drops down to permit easy storage.

Send 75 cents for Easi-Bild's Chaise Pattern No. 78 to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510. To insure safe delivery, indicate your zip code number.



WITH THE HELP of a detailed Easi-Bild pattern, the construction of this outdoor chaise longue from wood is a relatively simple project for the home handyman.

Making A Home Contemporary

Handyman's Page

The one-time hallmark of a contemporary home was a sliding glass door. Today, that is no longer sufficient.

Sliding glass doors are now used throughout the home. Walls of glass with one or two sliding panels are common in rear-facing living rooms and family rooms. In addition, glass doors from bedrooms onto private patios and from a front-facing living room onto a private sun deck or ground-level "sun and conversation" area cater to our increasing use of the outside of a home as an extension of the living area.

ANOTHER one-time hallmark was the absence of light fixtures in the ceiling. Today, the elaborate hanging light fixture in the living room and dining room is the "in" attraction.

New homes, except in the lowest price ranges, now always feature a built-in dishwasher.

Hand-cranked casement windows are out. Sliding aluminum windows are in. The gears on those cranking windows eventually get worn out, while the simplicity of a sliding window combined with the freedom from maintenance of aluminum is very appealing. And anodized aluminum in bronze is very handsome.

White is still a favorite outside, but earth tones in many other colors are the vogue. By the way, a colored paint on the outside may wear twice as long as white.

Vinyl in the family room has almost disappeared. Long-wearing and easy-cleaning carpet is the reason, not only because it's comfortable for children but good-looking for adult use as well.

AS FAR AS that's concerned, hardwood floors are rarely seen.

Some old stand-bys that seem to remain always in favor: Ceramic tile, first-class wood paneling, brick and Roman slump stone for fireplaces, plaster, and redwood siding.

BRIGHT IDEAS

FREIGHT BARRELS and other wooden kegs are hard to come by these days, but once you discover one, you have yourself a real find. For instance, they make perfect outdoor furniture—as cocktail or utility tables, as waste baskets and as seats. Look for them unpainted at lumberyards and similar places, them paint them brilliantly with enamel or flat outdoor paint, making the bands black.

Queens Of The Shade—

Hydrangeas Give Superb Color Show

Hydrangeas are among our most valuable summer-blooming shrubs.

For shade and semi-shaded spots, under tall trees, or along the east or north wall of a home, they are unsurpassed in their show of color. And their blooms continue through summer into fall.

HYDRANGEAS fall mainly into two groups — one the vigorous, taller growing variety with huge pink or blue flowers that look a tall man in the eye.

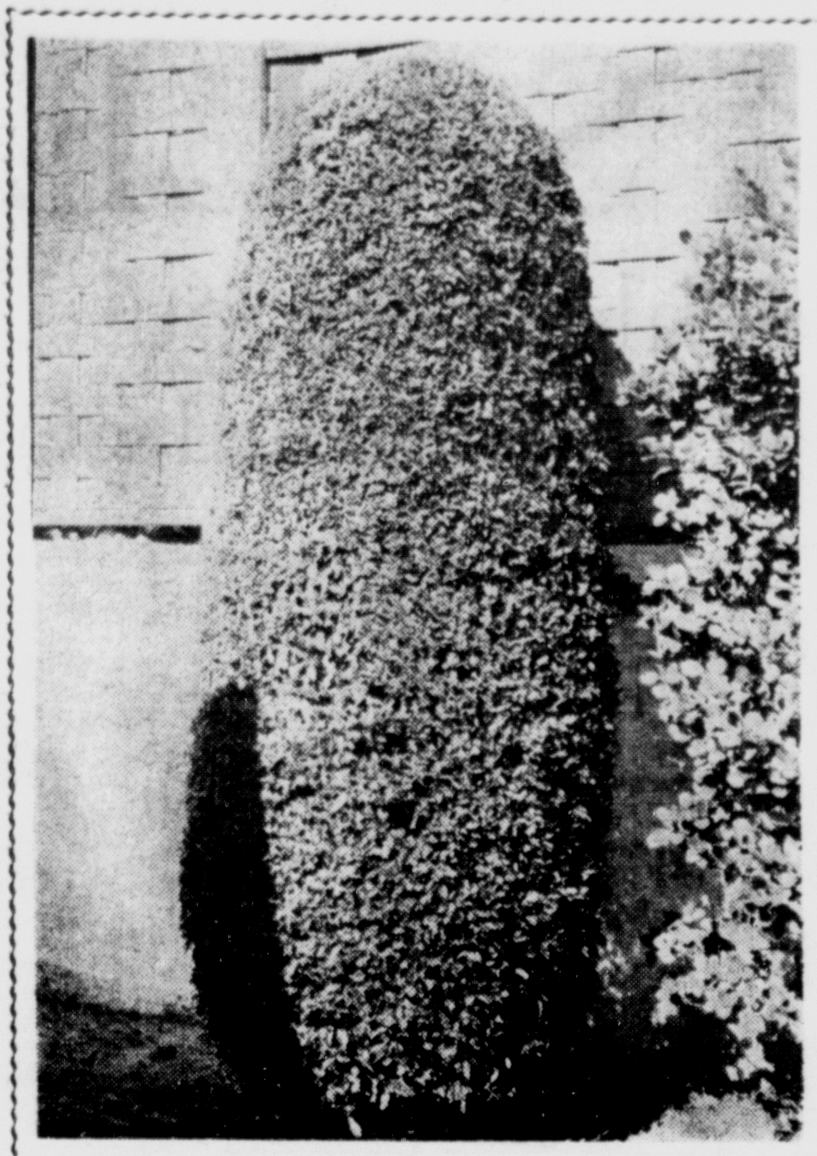
The other group includes the wonderful hybrids that were introduced in France and England during the 1930s. These are more compact and their color range is greater, with carmine and rose, white, pink and greenish-flowered forms available.

These hydrangeas are deciduous or mostly so, though certain varieties persist through winter in coastal gardens. And they are happiest in semi-shade though the coast-side gardener can often get away with planting them in considerable sun.

YOU SEE AN occasional mass planting of the taller hydrangeas under a hillside of oaks.

Nurserymen suggest planting them in tubs or half barrels on the terrace if you have limited garden space. The hybrid forms are ideal for a foundation planting, for a border in front of a fence, or for pot culture.

You'll find most hydrangeas in bloom at nurseries this month and next — a chance for you to buy and transplant them in full color. Give them a sandy, well-drained soil with plenty of peat moss and/or leaf mold worked in. Be sure they are never thirsty, especially during their bloom season.



A RATHER severe treatment with shears of this Wox-Leafed Privet shows how it may be used outside the hedge row. It is also a fine informal garden specimen, and may be found in nurseries as an espalier, pyramid, globe or "poodle." (Photo courtesy of California Association of Nurserymen)

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

- Plant vegetables. All of your summer favorites can go in now.
- Feed lawns frequently. A light application monthly is better than heavy feedings every second or third month.
- Feed tuberous begonias with liquid fish. Every two weeks for plants grown in pots, monthly for plants in the garden.
- Use an iron chelate on camillias, azaleas, hibiscus, hydrangeas, if foliage has a tendency to yellow.
- Plant carnations and chrysanthemums from nursery containers. Be sure to stake them when you set them out.
- Freshly cut flowers from your own garden make attractive and appropriate Memorial Day decorations for graves of loved ones.

Big Season Ahead For The Specials

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The television year 1967-68 shapes up as a very special season.

Perhaps it should be placed in quotes like this: "Special." Because, judging from the series announced for the new year, one must conclude the season doesn't sound special at all.

The weekly fare seems like the same dreary procession of laugh-tracked comedies, hard-bitten westerns, crime dramas and variety shows.

THE ONLY promising note is that the networks seem to have discovered the power of the special. Breaking up the weekly schedules with one-shot shows diversifies programming and brings back the thinking audience which has lost the viewing habit out of ennui.

The cold-cash value of specials is demonstrated in recent ratings. The three top shows were specials, and two others placed in among the first 11.

The networks have been scrambling to line up stars with enough talent and name to sustain hour-long or 90-minute specials.

NBC HAS Bob Hope for nine next season, and Danny Thomas will be doing six in conjunction with his weekly show. Andy Williams is set for three and there will be one apiece from Jack Benny, Bill Cosby and Rowan and Martin.

Bellringers Barbra Streisand and Dick Van Dyke will be returning to CBS for a special apiece, and probably Jim Nabors, Frank Sinatra, Red Skelton and Don Knotts.

Doris Day may well make her television debut in a special, since she has signed to make features for the new CBS feature film division.

ABC HAS signed Debbie Reynolds and Carol Channing to star in their own specials. The network also has the Oscar and Tony award shows and plans a number of taped dramas, including "The Diary of Anne Frank" and "Dial M for Murder."

CBS is doing its bit for culture by scheduling the Royal Shakespeare Co. of England, "S. Hurok Presents," specials based on the lives and works of Oscar Wilde and Anton Chekhov and more dramas from CBS Playhouse.

NBC is planning an original musical based on Robin Hood, a new version of "Androcles and the Lion," plus the Hallmark Hall of Fame and Bell Telephone Hours.

exciting concepts from Orinda pools

One reason more people are buying ORINDA pools this year is because ORINDA pools cost less to buy. Your ORINDA custom pool representative, in fact, can show you on paper that, not only is the base price lower in most cases, but when you add the options you want, the price advantage of an ORINDA pool becomes even greater.

And because it is an ORINDA pool, you get all the advantages of an ORINDA pool. The uncommon luxury of design and engineering by Orinda, and styling leadership that has made ORINDA Pools the best selling in northern California.

All of which is still just the beginning. *A giant Laars boiler is included with the 1967 Orinda Custom Royal Series providing low cost heating year long. You also have the traditionally conservative value of an ORINDA pool to enjoy. On top of all the other advantages.

In The Public Interest

For quite a while now, the Cleveland firm of Warner & Swasey, manufacturer of machinery, has been doing a remarkably fine job with its advertisements. The ads of this firm are calculated to inform the American public of those qualities, on the part of each of us, needed if we're to keep our country free and strong—and prosperous. We need a return to the importance of character, integrity and self-reliance. Let me quote from one of the Warner & Swasey ads:

The headline reads: "It wasn't the Goths that defeated Rome . . . It was the free circuses." And the body of the ad goes on to say: "Luxuries, power, indulgence had made the once-tough Roman people soft. To stay popular, their emperors gave them more and more of the ease they craved . . . free bread, free circuses, easier living.

"So the Romans softened up themselves for the ambitious, hard-working barbarians. And in 410 A.D. the greatest nation the world had ever seen was invaded and destroyed.

"The greedy cry of 'something for nothing,' the stupid whine of 'somebody else should sacrifice, not me' . . . could do exactly the same for this nation, NOW."

That's the way the ad reads. And it makes a lot of sense. You'll find that the line on the part of the average person applying for work is not . . . "Let me show you how much I can do for you" . . . over the past couple of decades it has gradually changed to: "What will you do for me?"

Employees who amble in to work chronically late, who spend interminable time on coffee breaks, lunch, and in idle conversation around the water cooler, or when the boss isn't looking, would be indignant if they were told to wait a while for their pay checks, or if a few dollars were withheld for the time they've "stolen" from their employer. Yes, they expect their pay checks as a matter of course, but any extra work or extra effort asked for on their part is met with a pained, petulant, put-upon expression. They really must believe in the deadly fairy tale that it's possible to get something for nothing.

You'd be amazed at the number of employees in the country who give no thought whatsoever to the well-being, success and growth of the company that pays their wages. They seem to feel that their pay checks are their due, whether they do anything to earn it or not, and that it's smart to get away with anything they can. They want still more money, still more time off, more leisure, more vacations, more sick leave, more retirement pay, but would be insulted if they were asked to produce more in order to earn these things.

Part of this is the fault of management. I think it's the duty, it is certainly wise, for management to make certain every new employee has an indoctrination course in the free enterprise system and how it works. If management is to be concerned with the well-being of its employees, it is certainly only fair that employees be concerned with the well-being of the company they're expecting to pay their rent, buy their clothes and food and send their kids to school. No one in his right mind can argue with this.

Any person who looks to industry or government for his security, without understanding that each of us must earn it for himself, is a fool. And sooner or later, it is inevitable that this person will find himself on the outside looking in.

MORE ON STRACK AND 4 TRACK CAR STEREO—A year or so ago the Detroit car manufacturers offered the public "car stereo" as an option in some of their cars. They chose the 8 track car stereo system. Naturally, a move such as this by a tremendously large industry exposed car stereo to millions of people. Before this, many people were not aware that car stereo existed; however, over 300,000 car stereo systems were already being enjoyed by drivers throughout the country. The concept was not new. The units prior to the Detroit options were all of the 4 Track type.

For many years now, those of us who specialize in the highest quality music standards have adopted the 4 track systems as offering good quality musical reproduction with a minimum of losses and cross-talk. Cross-talk is the phenomenum of hearing the adjacent sound track coming through backwards along with the track you are supposed to be hearing. It's like having an AM radio tuned between two stations. The manufacturers of reel-to-reel tape recorders have adopted and have been manufacturing 4 track stereo recorders for several years. The 4 track system has all but wiped out the original two track system except for the professional recording studios. For all high fidelity stereo applications, the 4 track tape system has proven itself to be reliable.

What about 8 track? Fact of the matter is, that in all of these growing years in stereo tape recording, manufacturers of reel-to-reel tape recorders have not introduced an 8 track unit. Cross-talk problems, production costs, frequency response for truly high fidelity purposes, and background noise level all have been factors. Now that 8 track units have been in operation for a short while, the gossip columns are telling a story. The record companies such as Capitol, RCA, and Columbia hold most of the music rights for recorded music. At first, these companies did not release their music rights to tape duplicating companies for the making of cartridges, then one at a time they released only for 8 track cartridges but not 4 track. Now they have begun releasing music rights for 4 track cartridge pre-recorded tapes. It is anybody's guess as to which way the industry will move. My guess is 4 track. But of course, here at Catania Sound we are quality minded.

Fred Friendly's Brainchild—TV Plunge Into Controversial Fields

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A live weekly news review on a network of more than 125 educational television stations promises to be the brightest, freshest — and most controversial — spot on the dials next season.

The experimental project, underwritten by a 10-million-dollar grant from the Ford Foundation for two years, is scheduled to start Oct. 29. It will be on Sunday nights for at least three hours, perhaps even four.

IT WAS CONCEIVED by Fred W. Friendly, the rangy giant who last year stormed out of CBS News, of which he was president, after the parent network broadcast a rerun of "I Love Lucy" instead of covering a foreign affairs hearing by a Senate committee. He is now a television adviser for the foundation.

Although he has a parent's love for his brainchild, Friendly has turned it over to a trusted former associate to avoid being both a donor and recipient of the Ford funds.

Even so, he talks about the plans as "we," rather than "they," who are former CBS News producer Av Westin, executive producer of the series, and his staff.

"WE'RE REALLY trying to turn the clock back to the not distant past when television time was not so expensive," Friendly explained. "When air time became so expensive, the commercial networks had to go for the lowest common denominator in audiences.

"We are trying to recreate the climate of a time when the cost of air time did not price experimentation out of the market."

Westin, he said, will operate with a staff of perhaps 50 — they have over 1,000 applications — and most of them are young and aggressive.

"COMMERCIAL television's worst sins are of omission," Friendly said. "Our program, if it were going now, would be taking a look at this business about the cost of drugs. It would have taken up the Ralph Nader book.

"It should be controversial and not afraid to look at Harlem's problems, at Vietnam, the death of a newspaper, theater — everything.

"Sure, it will make a lot of people angry. Sure, there will be rotten nights, but there will also be nights when you want to see and hear more. There will be things with which you disagree violently. There will be plays that shock you.

"YOU ARE GOING to hear opinions from everybody from the lunatic left to the lunatic right, and even the lunatic center."

Friendly, always a mover and shaker, believes the program will stir up news operations on the commercial networks. He believes that the popular TV documentary form is outmoded

FRED W. FRIENDLY
Turning back the clock

— "There has got to be more than that because the one thing that television does uniquely is make the viewer participate."

He thinks that where commercial television, because of assorted pressures, tends to be bland, public television, without sponsors, should bite, sting, generate excitement, curiosity and emotion.

"IT'S NOT MY baby any more," he said, "but I think it's pretty exciting."

He glanced at a framed sign in his office. It said: "If you believe in great things, you may be able to make other people believe in them."

Obviously, he does and has.
